1. REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS

(1) INTRODUCTION

301. Introduction.

The Legal Services Act 2007, much of which is not yet in force¹, makes significant changes to the regulation of persons who carry on certain legal activities². The Act creates a set of regulatory objectives³ to be followed by those with regulatory functions⁴ and establishes two new regulatory bodies, the Legal Services Board and the Office for Legal Complaints, to oversee the regulation of the legal services sector⁵.

Whilst the Act permits the existing regulators of individual legal professions to continue in a regulatory capacity as approved regulators⁶ there is a requirement for them to ensure that any functions of regulation are not prejudiced by any functions relating to representation⁷.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 is mainly brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law the Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 1 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/222, and the Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 2 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/1436 (amended by SI 2008/1591) had been made. As to the Lord Chancellor see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 477 et seq. The following applies where, by virtue of an amendment made to an enactment by the Legal Services Act 2007, a function of the Secretary of State is transferred to the Lord Chancellor (a 'transferred function'): Sch 22 para 18(1), (2). Any subordinate legislation made by the Secretary of State in exercise of a transferred function is to have effect as if made or done by the Lord Chancellor and, so far as is appropriate in consequence of the transfer, anything else done by the Secretary of State in exercise of a transferred function is to be treated as if done by the Lord Chancellor: Sch 22 para 18(3), (4).

2 See the Legal Services Act 2007 Pt 2 (ss 2-11); and PARAS 303, 311, 323-326.

3 As to the regulatory objectives see PARA 302.

4 For the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007 references to the 'regulatory functions' of an approved regulator are to any functions the approved regulator has under or in relation to its regulatory arrangements or in connection with the making or alteration of those arrangements: s 27(1).

5 As to the Legal Services Board see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 2; and PARA 303-326. As to the Office for Legal Complaints see s 114; and PARA 442 et seq.

6 See PARA 358 et seq.

7 As to the making of rules to ensure that the representative functions of an approved regulator do not prejudice the exercise of its regulatory functions see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 30(1); and PARA 374. When acting in its capacity as an approved regulator the Legal Services Board must ensure an appropriate separation of its activities: see s 62(4); and PARA 370.

302. Regulatory objectives.

The Legal Services Act 2007 sets out the following eight 'regulatory objectives' to guide the Legal Services Board¹, the approved regulators² and the Office for Legal Complaints³ in exercising their functions⁴. The 'regulatory objectives' are:

- 1 (1) protecting and promoting the public interest⁵;
- 2 (2) supporting the constitutional principle of the rule of law⁶;
- 3 (3) improving access to justice⁷;
- 4 (4) protecting and promoting the interests of consumers⁸;
- 5 (5) promoting competition in the provision of services provided by authorised persons⁹ (including services which do not involve the carrying on of activities which are reserved legal activities)¹⁰;
- 6 (6) encouraging an independent, strong, diverse and effective legal profession¹¹;
- 7 (7) increasing public understanding of the citizen's legal rights and duties¹²;
- 8 (8) promoting and maintaining adherence to the professional principles¹³.

1 See the Legal Services Act 2007 s 3(2); and PARA 311. As to the Legal Services Board see s 2; and PARAS 303-326.

2 See the Legal Services Act 2007 s 28(2); and PARA 372. As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358. See also s 176; and PARA 384.

3 As to the Office for Legal Complaints see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 114; and PARA 442 et seq.

4 See the Legal Services Act 2007 s 116(2); and PARA 446.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 1(1)(a).

6 Legal Services Act 2007 s 1(1)(b).

7 Legal Services Act 2007 s 1(1)(c).

8 Legal Services Act 2007 s 1(1)(d). 'Consumers' means persons:

- 1 (1) who use, have used or are or may be contemplating using, services provided by a person who is an authorised person in relation to an activity which is a reserved legal activity and any other services provided by a person which consist of or include a legal activity carried on by, or on behalf of, that person (s 207(1), (2));
- 2 (2) who have rights or interests which are derived from, or are otherwise attributable to, the use of such services by other persons (s 207(1)); or
- 3 (3) who have rights or interests which may be adversely affected by the use of such services by persons acting on their behalf or in a fiduciary capacity in relation to them (s 207(1)).

Until s 13 (see PARA 509) comes into force the reference to an authorised person in the definition of 'consumers' is to be treated as a reference to a person who will be an authorised person on the coming into force of s 13: Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 1 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/222, art 7(1). At the date at which this volume states the law no order had been made bringing s 13 into force. As to the meaning of 'reserved legal activities' see PARA 512.

For the purpose of the definition of 'consumers':

- 4 (a) if a person is carrying on an activity in his capacity as a trustee, the persons who are, have been or may be beneficiaries of the trust are to be treated as persons who use, have used or are or may be contemplating using services provided by the trustee in the trustee's carrying on of that activity (s 207(3)(a)); and

- 5 (b) a person who deals with another person in the course of that person carrying on of an activity is to be treated as using services provided by him in carrying on that activity (s 207(3)(b)).

9 For these purposes 'authorised persons' means authorised persons in relation to activities which are reserved legal activities: Legal Services Act 2007 s 1(4). As to the meaning of 'authorised person' in relation to activities which are reserved legal activities, see s 18; and PARA 515. Until the coming into force of s 13 (see PARA 509) a reference to an authorised person in s 1 is to be treated as a reference to a person who will be an authorised person on the coming into force of s 13: Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 1 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/222, art 7(1).

10 Legal Services Act 2007 s 1(1)(e), (2). As to the meaning of 'reserved legal activity' see PARA 512.

11 Legal Services Act 2007 s 1(1)(f).

12 Legal Services Act 2007 s 1(1)(g).

13 Legal Services Act 2007 s 1(1)(h). The 'professional principles' are:

- 6 (1) that authorised persons should act with independence and integrity (s 1(3)(a));
- 7 (2) that authorised persons should maintain proper standards of work (s 1(3)(b));
- 8 (3) that authorised persons should act in the best interests of their clients (s 1(3)(c));
- 9 (4) that persons who exercise before any court a right of audience or conduct litigation in relation to proceedings in any court by virtue of being authorised persons should comply with their duty to the court to act with independence in the interests of justice (s 1(3)(d)); and
- 10 (5) that the affairs of clients should be kept confidential (s 1(3)(e)).

As to the meaning of 'right of audience' and 'conduct litigation' see PARA 512 notes 3, 4. For the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007 (except where the context otherwise requires) 'court' includes:

- 11 (a) a tribunal that is (to any extent) a listed tribunal for, or for any of, the purposes of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 Sch 7 (functions etc of Administrative Justice and Tribunals Council) (Legal Services Act 2007 s 207(1));
- 12 (b) a court-martial (s 207(1));
- 13 (c) a statutory inquiry within the meaning of the Tribunals and Inquiries Act 1992 s 16(1) (Legal Services Act 2007 s 207(1));
- 14 (d) an ecclesiastical court (including the Court of Faculties) (s 207(1)).

(2) LEGAL SERVICES BOARD

(i) Establishment and Constitution

303. The Legal Services Board.

There is to be a body corporate called the Legal Services Board¹. The Board is to consist of a chairman², the Chief Executive of the Board³ and at least seven, but not more than ten⁴, other persons appointed by the Lord Chancellor⁵. However the validity of any act of the Board is not affected by a vacancy in the office of chairman or amongst the other members or by a defect in the appointment or any disqualification of a person as chairman or another member of the Board⁶.

The Board is not to be regarded as the servant or agent of the Crown or as enjoying any status, immunity or privilege of the Crown⁷ and members of the Board are disqualified from membership of the House of Commons⁸. The Board is a public authority for the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act 2000⁹ and its records are public records¹⁰. The Board must keep proper accounts and proper records in relation to the accounts¹¹ and is not to borrow money except with the consent of the Lord Chancellor or in accordance with a general authorisation given by the Lord Chancellor¹².

The Board may regulate its own procedure¹³.

1 Legal Services Act 2007 s 2(1). As to the functions of the Board see PARA 311 et seq. The Lord Chancellor may pay to the Board such sums as the Lord Chancellor may determine as appropriate for the purpose of meeting the expenditure of the Board incurred under or for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007 or any other enactment (including any expenditure incurred by it in its capacity as an approved regulator or its capacity as a licensing authority) and the Lord Chancellor may determine the manner in which and times at which those sums are to be paid and impose conditions on the payment of those sums: s 172(1)(a), (2). As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1. As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358. As to the meaning of 'licensing authority' see PARA 1478; and as to licensing authorities generally see PARA 1478 et seq.

2 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 1(1)(a).

3 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 1(1)(b). As to the Chief Executive see PARA 307.

4 The Lord Chancellor may by order substitute for the limit on the maximum number of persons a different limit: see the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 1(4). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 1(1). Until such time as the Board is first constituted under Sch 1 para 1 the Lord Chancellor has the power to modify the functions of a designated regulator or any other body: see Sch 22 paras 1-5. Such modifications have been made: see the Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 1 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/222, arts 4-8.

6 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 22.

7 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 26(1). Accordingly the Board's property is not to be regarded as property of or held on behalf of the Crown and the Board's staff are not to be regarded as servants or agents of the Crown or as enjoying any status, immunity or privilege of the Crown: Sch 1 para 26(2).

8 See the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975 Sch 1 Pt 2; and PARLIAMENT vol 78 (2010) PARA 908.

9 See the Freedom of Information Act 2000 Sch 1 Pt 6: and CONFIDENCE AND DATA PROTECTION vol 8(1) (2003 Reissue) PARA 583 et seq.

10 See the Public Records Act 1958 Sch 1 Pt 2; and CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 835 et seq.

11 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 25(1)(a). The Board must also prepare in respect of each financial year a statement of accounts: Sch 1 para 25(1)(b). Each statement of accounts must comply with any directions given by the Lord Chancellor, with the approval of the Treasury, as to:

- 15 (1) the information to be contained in it and the manner in which it is to be presented (Sch 1 para 25(2)(a));
- 16 (2) the methods and principles according to which the statement is to be prepared (Sch 1 para 25(2)(b));
- 17 (3) the additional information (if any) which is to be provided for the information of Parliament (Sch 1 para 25(2)(c)).

The Board must give a copy of each statement of accounts to the Lord Chancellor and to the Comptroller and Auditor General before the end of the month of August next following the financial year to which the statement relates: Sch 1 para 25(3). As to the Comptroller and Auditor General see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARAS 724-726. 'Financial year' means the period beginning with the day on which the Board is established and ending with the next following 31 March and each successive period of 12 months: Sch 1 para 25(6). The Comptroller and Auditor General must examine, certify and report on each statement of accounts which is so received and give a copy of the Comptroller and Auditor General's report to the Lord Chancellor: Sch 1 para 25(4). In respect of each financial year, the Lord Chancellor must lay before Parliament a document consisting of a copy of the statement of accounts for that year and a copy of the Comptroller and Auditor General's report on that statement: Sch 1 para 25(5). A requirement or power under the Legal Services Act 2007 to give a direction (or to direct) is a requirement or power to give a direction in writing: s 200(2). Likewise a requirement or power under the Legal Services Act 2007 to give a notice (or to notify) is a requirement or power to give notice in writing: s 200(1). Any power conferred by the Legal Services Act 2007 to give a direction includes power to revoke the direction: s 200(3). However this does not apply to the power conferred on an Ombudsman to give a direction under s 137 (directions on a determination of a complaint) (see PARA 475): s 200(4). 'Document' includes anything in which information is recorded in any form: s 201(1). In relation to a document in which information is recorded otherwise than in a legible form, any reference to the production of the document is a reference to the production of the information in a legible form or in a form from which it can readily be produced in a legible form: s 201(2). Where provision made (in whatever terms) by or under the Legal Services Act 2007 authorises or requires a notice, direction or any other document (including a copy of a document) to be given to a person the following provisions apply: s 202(1). The notice, direction or document may be given to:

- 18 (a) the person by delivering it to the person, by leaving it at the person's proper address or by sending it by post to the person at that address (s 202(2));
- 19 (b) a body corporate by being given to the secretary or clerk of that body (s 202(3));
- 20 (c) a partnership by being given to a partner in the partnership or a person having the control or management of the partnership business (s 202(4));
- 21 (d) any other unincorporated body by being given to a member of the governing body of the unincorporated body (s 202(5)).

For the purposes of s 202, and the Interpretation Act 1978 s 7 (service of documents by post) in its application to the Legal Services Act 2007 s 202, the proper address of a person is:

- 22 (i) in the case of a body corporate, the address of the registered or principal office of the body (s 202(6)(a));
- 23 (ii) in the case of a partnership, or any other unincorporated body, the address of the principal office of the partnership or body (s 202(6)(b));
- 24 (iii) in the case of a person to whom the notice or other document is given in reliance on any of heads (b)-(d) above, the proper address of the body corporate, partnership or other unincorporated body in question (s 202(6)(c));
- 25 (iv) in any other case, the last known address of the person in question (s 202(6)(d)).

In the case of a company registered outside the United Kingdom, a partnership carrying on business outside the United Kingdom or any other unincorporated body with offices outside the United Kingdom, the references in heads (i)-(iv) above to its principal office include references to its principal office within the United Kingdom (if any): s 202(7).

The above provisions have effect subject to s 203: s 202(8). The following apply where s 202 authorises the giving of a notice, direction or other document by its delivery to a particular person (the 'recipient'), and the notice, direction or other document is transmitted to the recipient by means of an electronic communications network or by other means but in a form that nevertheless requires the use of apparatus by the recipient to render it intelligible: s 203(1). The transmission has effect for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007 as a delivery of the notice, direction or other document to the recipient, but only if the requirements imposed by or under s 203 are complied with: s 203(2).

Where the recipient is the Board, the Office for Legal Complaints or an Ombudsman the recipient must have indicated its willingness to receive the notice, direction or other document by other means but in a form that nevertheless requires the use of apparatus by the recipient to render it intelligible, the transmission must be made in such manner, and satisfy such other conditions as the recipient may require and the notice, direction or other document must take such form as the recipient may require: s 203(3). As to the Office for Legal Complaints see s 114; and PARA 442 et seq.

Where the person making the transmission is the Board, the Office for Legal Complaints or an Ombudsman, that person may determine the manner in which the transmission is made and the form in which the notice, direction or other document is transmitted: s 203(4).

However, where the recipient is a person other than the Board, the Office for Legal Complaints or an Ombudsman the recipient or the person on whose behalf the recipient receives the notice, direction or other document, must have indicated to the person making the transmission the recipient's willingness to receive notices, directions or other documents transmitted in the form and manner used: s 203(5).

An indication to any person for the purposes of s 203(5):

- 26 (A) must be given to that person in such manner as that person may require (s 203(6)(a));
- 27 (B) may be a general indication or one that is limited to notices or documents of particular descriptions (s 203(6)(b));
- 28 (C) must state the address to be used and must be accompanied by such other information as that person requires for the making of the transmission (s 203(6)(c));
- 29 (D) may be modified or withdrawn at any time by a notice given to that person in such manner as that person may require (s 203(6)(d)).

An indication, requirement or determination given, imposed or made by the Board, the Office for Legal Complaints or an Ombudsman for the purposes of s 203 is to be given, imposed or made by being published by that person: s 203(7).

As to the meaning of 'electronic communications network' see the Communications Act 2003 s 32; and TELECOMMUNICATIONS vol 97 (2010) PARA 60 (definition applied by virtue of the Legal Services Act 2007 s 203(8)).

304. The chairman.

The chairman must be a lay person¹ appointed by the Lord Chancellor². It is a condition of the appointment of the chairman that the person appointed must not during the appointment:

- 9 (1) carry on any activity which is a reserved legal activity³;
- 10 (2) provide regulated claims management services⁴; or
- 11 (3) provide immigration advice or immigration services⁵, for or in expectation of any fee, gain or reward⁶.

The chairman ceases to be chairman upon ceasing to be a member of the Legal Services Board⁷.

The chairman is to be paid by the Board in accordance with provision made by or under his terms of appointment⁸. The terms of appointment may provide for the Board to pay or make payments towards the provision of a pension, allowance or gratuity to or in respect of that person⁹. If the Lord Chancellor thinks there are circumstances that make it right for a person ceasing to hold office as chairman to receive compensation, the Board may pay that person such compensation as the Lord Chancellor may determine¹⁰.

Appointment of ordinary members.

305. Appointment of ordinary members.

Before appointing a member of the Legal Services Board¹ other than the Chief Executive² (an 'ordinary member'), the Lord Chancellor³ must consult the Lord Chief Justice about the process for appointment of the member and about the person selected for appointment⁴. In appointing persons as ordinary members the Lord Chancellor must ensure that a majority of the members of the board are lay persons⁵. 'Lay person' is a reference to a person who has never been:

- 12 (1) an authorised person in relation to an activity which is a reserved legal activity⁶;
- 13 (2) a person authorised, by a person designated⁷ to provide services which are regulated claims management services⁸;
- 14 (3) an advocate in Scotland⁹;
- 15 (4) a solicitor in Scotland¹⁰;
- 16 (5) a member of the Bar of Northern Ireland¹¹;
- 17 (6) a solicitor of the Court of Judicature of Northern Ireland¹².

If an ordinary member who is a lay person becomes a person within heads (1) to (6) above that person ceases to be a member of the board¹³.

In appointing persons to be ordinary members, the Lord Chancellor must have regard to the desirability of securing that the board includes members who (between them) have experience in or knowledge of:

- 18 (a) the provision of legal services¹⁴;
- 19 (b) legal education and legal training¹⁵;
- 20 (c) consumer affairs¹⁶;
- 21 (d) civil or criminal proceedings and the working of the courts¹⁷;
- 22 (e) competition matters¹⁸;
- 23 (f) the maintenance of the professional standards of persons who provide legal services¹⁹;
- 24 (g) the maintenance of standards in professions other than the legal profession²⁰;
- 25 (h) the handling of complaints²¹;
- 26 (i) commercial affairs²²;
- 27 (j) non-commercial legal services²³;
- 28 (k) the differing needs of consumers²⁴;
- 29 (l) the provision of claims management services²⁵.

The ordinary members are to be paid by the board in accordance with provisions made by or under their terms of appointment²⁶. The terms of appointment may also provide for the Board to pay or make payments towards the provision of a pension, allowance or gratuity to or in respect of that person²⁷.

- 30 (1) a barrister (Sch 1 para 2(5)(a));
- 31 (2) a solicitor (Sch 1 para 2(5)(b));
- 32 (3) a public notary (Sch 1 para 2(5)(c));

- 34 (5) granted a certificate issued by the Institute of Legal Executives authorising the person to practise as a legal executive (Sch 1 para 2(5)(e));
- 35 (6) a registered patent attorney within the meaning of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 s 275(1) (see PATENTS AND REGISTERED DESIGNS vol 79 (2008) PARA 615) (Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 2(5)(f));
- 36 (7) a registered trade mark attorney, within the meaning of the Trade Marks Act 1994 (see TRADE MARKS AND TRADE NAMES vol 48 (2007 Reissue) PARA 34) (Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 2(5)(g)); or
- 37 (8) granted a right of audience or a right to conduct litigation in relation to any proceedings by virtue of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 ss 27(2)(a), 28(2)(a) (see PARAS 497-498) (Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 1 para 2(5)(h)).

306. Appointment terms and tenure of ordinary members.

An ordinary member¹ is to hold and vacate office in accordance with the terms and conditions of that member's appointment² which must be for a fixed period not exceeding five years³. He may at any time resign from office⁴ and may be removed from office by the Lord Chancellor⁵ if the Lord Chancellor is satisfied that the member:

- 30 (1) has failed without reasonable excuse to discharge the functions of the office for a continuous period of at least six months⁶;
- 31 (2) has been convicted of an offence⁷;
- 32 (3) is an undischarged bankrupt⁸; or
- 33 (4) is otherwise unfit to hold the office or unable to discharge its functions⁹.

He may also be removed from office by the Lord Chancellor if the member is the chairman and has breached certain conditions¹⁰ imposed on his appointment¹¹.

If the Lord Chancellor thinks there are circumstances that make it right for a person ceasing to hold office as an ordinary member to receive compensation, the Legal Services Board¹² may pay that person such compensation as the Lord Chancellor may determine¹³.

307. The Chief Executive and staff.

The Chief Executive is a member of the Legal Services Board¹ appointed by the Board². Where a person ceases to be employed as Chief Executive, that person ceases to be a member of the Board³. The Board may appoint such other staff as it considers appropriate to assist in the performance of its functions⁴. The Chief Executive and other staff are to be appointed on terms and conditions determined by the Board and paid by the Board in accordance with provision made by or under the terms of appointment⁵.

The terms and conditions on which the Chief Executive or any other member of staff is appointed may provide for the Board to pay or make payments towards the provision of a pension, allowance or gratuity to or in respect of that person⁶. The Board may pay compensation for loss of employment to or in respect of a member (or former member) of staff⁷.

The board may also make arrangements with such persons as it considers appropriate for assistance to be provided to it⁸.

308. Committees.

The Legal Services Board¹ may establish committees² and any committee so established may establish sub-committees³. 309. Application of seal and proof of instruments.

The application of the seal of the Legal Services Board¹ is to be authenticated by the signature of any member of the Board, or of its staff, who has been authorised (whether generally or specifically) by the Board for the purpose². In discharging its functions the Legal Services Board¹ must, so far as is reasonably practicable, act in a way which is compatible with the regulatory objectives² and which the Board considers most appropriate for the purpose of meeting those objectives³. It must also have regard to the principles under which regulatory activities should be transparent, accountable, proportionate, and consistent and targeted only at cases in which action is needed and any other principle appearing to it to represent the best regulatory practice⁴.

In managing its affairs, the Board must have regard to such generally accepted principles of good corporate governance as it is reasonable to regard as applicable to it⁵.

The Board may do anything calculated to facilitate, or incidental or conducive to, the carrying out of any of its functions⁶.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect⁷. The Board must assist in the maintenance and development of standards in relation to the regulation by approved regulators⁸ of persons authorised by them to carry on activities which are reserved legal activities⁹ and the education and training of persons so authorised¹⁰.

The Board must establish and maintain a panel of persons (to be known as the 'Consumer Panel') to represent the interests of consumers and must consider any representations made to it by the Consumer Panel¹¹.

316. Levy rules.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The Legal Services Board² must make rules³ providing for the imposition of a levy on leviable bodies⁴ for the purpose of raising an amount corresponding to the aggregate of:

- 45 (1) the leviable Board expenditure⁵;
- 46 (2) the leviable Office for Legal Complaints expenditure⁶; and
- 47 (3) the leviable Lord Chancellor expenditure⁷.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 ss 173, 204(2) are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the Legal Services Board see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 2; and PARA 303.

3 Before making rules under the Legal Services Act 2007 s 173, the Board must satisfy itself that the apportionment of the levy as between different leviable bodies will be in accordance with fair principles: s 173(3). The Board may not make rules under s 173 except with the consent of the Lord Chancellor: s 173(4). Any rules made by the Board under s 173 must be made by statutory instrument and the Statutory Instruments Act 1946 applies to the Board's powers to make such rules as if the Board were a Minister of the Crown: s 204(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such rules had been made.

4 A levy imposed under the Legal Services Act 2007 s 173 is payable to the Board: s 173(2). Any sum so received is payable into the Consolidated Fund: see s 175(1)(j). In s 173(5) the reference to 'an approved regulator' does not include the Board where it is designated as an approved regulator under s 62 (see PARA 367): s 173(11). As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 173(1)(a). 'Leviable Board expenditure' means the difference between:

(iv) Revocation of Designation

351. Order in Council.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where an Order in Council has been made designating a body as an authorised body², the Secretary of State may recommend to Her Majesty that an Order in Council be made revoking that designation³.

A recommendation may be made only if the authorised body has made a written request to the Secretary of State asking for it to be made and has agreed in writing to its being made⁴ or the Secretary of State is satisfied that the circumstances at the time when he is considering whether to make the recommendation are such that, had that body then been applying to become an authorised body, its application would have failed⁵.

Where such an Order is made, the Secretary of State must give the body written notice of the making of the Order and of his reasons for recommending that it be made, take such steps as are reasonably practicable to bring the making of the Order to the attention of the members of that body and publish notice of the making of the Order in such manner as he considers appropriate for bringing it to the attention of persons (other than those members) who, in his opinion, are likely to be affected by the Order: Sch 4 para 33(3) (as so added and prospectively repealed; amended by SI 2003/1887). 'Member', in relation to any professional or other body, other than any body established by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990, includes any person who is not a member of that body but who may be subject to disciplinary sanctions for failure to comply with any of that body's rules: s 119(1). UPDATE

358-359 'Approved regulator' and 'relevant approved regulator', Existing bodies as approved regulators

These provisions have effect as from 1 January 2010: SI 2009/3250.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/1. REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS/(5) APPROVED REGULATORS UNDER THE LEGAL SERVICES ACT 2007/(i) Introduction/C. DESIGNATION OF BODIES BY ORDER/360. Application.

C. DESIGNATION OF BODIES BY ORDER

360. Application.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where a body wishes to authorise persons to carry on one or more activities which constitute one or more reserved legal activities² it may apply to the Legal Services Board³ for the Board:

- 102 (1) to recommend that an order be made by the Lord Chancellor designating the body as an approved regulator in relation to the reserved legal activity or activities in question⁴; and
- 103 (2) to approve what the body proposes as its regulatory arrangements if such an order is made (the 'proposed regulatory arrangements')⁵.

The proposed regulatory arrangements must, in particular, include:

- 104 (a) details of the authority which the applicant proposes to give persons to carry on activities which are reserved legal activities and of the nature of the persons to whom the authority is to be given⁶;
- 105 (b) regulations (however they may be described) as to the education and training which persons must receive, and any other requirements which must be met by or in respect of them, in order for them to be authorised⁷; and
- 106 (c) rules (however they may be described) as to the conduct required of persons in carrying on any activity by virtue of the authority⁸.

An applicant may, at any time, withdraw the application by giving notice to that effect to the Board⁹.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 25 and Sch 4 are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to meaning of 'reserved legal activities' see PARA 512. The Lord Chancellor may, by order, make provision enabling applications to be made, considered and determined under the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 Pt 2 or Sch 10 Pt 1 (see PARAS 1479-1484) in relation to a provisional reserved activity, as if the activity were a reserved legal activity and enabling provisional designation orders to be made by the Lord Chancellor in respect of a provisional reserved activity, as if the activity were a reserved legal activity: s 25(1). Such an order may, in particular, provide that Sch 4 Pt 2 or Sch 10 Pt 1 is to apply, in relation to such cases as may be specified by the order, with such modifications as may be so specified: s 25(2). The Lord Chancellor may also, by order, make provision:

- 85 (1) for the purpose of enabling applications for authorisation to carry on an activity which is a provisional reserved activity to be made to and considered and determined by a body in respect of which a provisional designation order is made or the Board in its capacity as a licensing authority (s 25(3)(a));
- 86 (2) for the purpose of enabling persons to be deemed to be authorised to carry on an activity which is a new reserved legal activity by a relevant approved regulator in relation to the activity, or by the Board in its capacity as a licensing authority, for a period specified in the order (s 25(3)(b)).

For this purpose 'provisional reserved activity' means an activity in respect of which a provisional report under Sch 6 para 10 (see PARA 531) states that the Board is minded to make a recommendation for the purposes of s 24 (see PARAS 512, 525), 'provisional designation order' means an order made by the Lord Chancellor under Sch 4 Pt 2 or Sch 10 Pt 1 which is conditional upon the Lord Chancellor making an order under s 24 in respect of the provisional reserved activity, pursuant to a recommendation made by the Board following the provisional report and 'new reserved legal activity' means a legal activity which has become a reserved legal activity by virtue of an order under s 24: s 25(4). At the date at which this volume states the law no such orders had been made. As to the meaning of 'licensing authority' see PARA 1478 and as to licensing authorities generally see PARA 1478 et seq.

3 As to the Legal Services Board see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 2; and PARAS 303-326. 362. Advice.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The Legal Services Board² must give each of the persons listed below a copy of the application and accompanying material and a notice specifying a period within which any advice by the persons in heads (1), (2) and (4)³ must be given⁴. Those persons are:

- 107 (1) the Office of Fair Trading⁵;
- 108 (2) the Consumer Panel⁶;
- 109 (3) the Lord Chief Justice⁷; and
- 110 (4) such other persons as the Board considers it reasonable to consult regarding the application ('selected consultee')⁸.

The Board must give the applicant a copy of any advice duly given by the persons in heads (1) to (4) above⁹ and the applicant may make to the Board written representations and, if the Board authorises it to do so, oral representations, about the advice¹⁰. The Board must, as soon as practicable after the end of the period within which such representations may be made, publish any advice duly given¹¹ and any written representations¹² duly made¹³.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the Legal Services Board see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 2; and PARAS 303-326.

3 The advice under the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 6-8 (see notes 5-8).

4 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 5(1). A person (the 'consultee') to whom a copy of the application is given under Sch 4 para 5(1) may, for the purposes of giving advice under Sch 4 paras 6-9 (see notes 5-8), request the applicant or any other person to provide the consultee with such additional information as may be specified by the consultee: Sch 4 para 10. As to notices generally see PARA 303 note 11.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 5(2)(a). The Office of Fair Trading must give the Board such advice as the Office of Fair Trading thinks fit regarding whether the application should be granted: Sch 4 para 6(1). In deciding what advice to give, the Office of Fair Trading must, in particular, have regard to whether making an order under Sch 4 para 17 (see PARA 366) in accordance with the recommendation applied for would (or would be likely to) prevent, restrict or distort competition within the market for reserved legal services to any significant extent: Sch 4 para 6(2). As to the Office of Fair Trading see COMPETITION vol 18 (2009) PARA 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'reserved legal services' see PARA 512 note 2.

6 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 5(2)(b). The Consumer Panel must give the Board such advice as the Consumer Panel thinks fit regarding whether the application should be granted: Sch 4 para 7(1). In deciding what advice to give, the Consumer Panel must, in particular, have regard to the likely impact on consumers of the making of an order under Sch 4 para 17 (see PARA 366) in accordance with the recommendation applied for: Sch 4 para 7(2). As to the Consumer Panel see PARAS 323-326. As to the meaning of 'consumers' see PARA 302 note 8.

7 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 5(2)(c). The Board must give the Lord Chief Justice a copy of any advice duly given under Sch 4 paras 6-8, and a notice specifying a period within which any advice under Sch 4 para 9 must be given: Sch 4 para 9(1). The Lord Chief Justice must then give such advice to the Board as the Lord Chief Justice thinks fit regarding whether the application should be granted: Sch 4 para 9(2). In deciding what advice to give, the Lord Chief Justice must, in particular, have regard to the likely impact on the courts in England and Wales of the making of an order under Sch 4 para 17 (see PARA 366) in accordance with the recommendation applied for: Sch 4 para 9(3). As to the meaning of 'court' see PARA 302 note 13.

8 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 5(2)(d), (3). A selected consultee may give the Board such advice as the selected consultee thinks fit in respect of the application: Sch 4 para 8.

9 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 11(1).

10 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 11(2). The Board must make rules governing the making of oral and written representations: Sch 4 para 11(3). Such rules are non statutory and are not set out in this work. Representations must be made within the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which the copy of the advice is given to the applicant or such longer period as the Board may specify in a particular case: Sch 4 para 11(4). Where oral representations are made, the Board must prepare a report of those representations: Sch 4 para 11(5). Before preparing that report, the Board must give the applicant a reasonable opportunity to comment on a draft of the report and have regard to any comments duly made: Sch 4 para 11(6).

11 The advice given under the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 paras 6-9.

12 The written representations given under the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 11.

13 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 12(1). The Board must also publish the report (if any) prepared under Sch 4 para 11: Sch 4 para 12(1). Nothing in Sch 4 para 12(1) operates to prevent a person who gives advice under Sch 4 paras 6-9 from publishing that advice or to prevent a person who makes representations under Sch 4 para 11 from publishing those representations: Sch 4 para 12(2). A person (the 'publisher') publishing any such material (whether under Sch 4 para 12(1) or otherwise) must, so far as practicable, exclude any matter which relates to the private affairs of a particular individual the publication of which, in the opinion of the publisher, would or might seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that individual: Sch 4 para 12(3).

Such rules must in particular provide that the Board may grant an application in relation to a particular reserved legal activity⁴ only if it is satisfied:

368. The Legal Services Board as an approved regulator.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where an order has been made designating the Legal Services Board as an approved regulator² the order may designate the Board as an approved regulator in relation to a reserved legal activity³ only where:

- 124 (1) a body's designation as an approved regulator in relation to the activity is cancelled⁴; or
- 125 (2) the activity becomes a reserved legal activity by virtue of an order⁵.

However this does not prevent the order having effect in advance of an event within heads (1) and (2) above for the purpose of enabling the Board to authorise persons to carry on activities which constitute the reserved legal activity in question with effect from the occurrence of the event⁶.

The order must ensure that the Board, acting as an approved regulator, may make regulatory arrangements or modify its regulatory arrangements only with the approval of the Board (acting otherwise than in its capacity as an approved regulator or as a licensing authority)⁷.

These provisions have effect as from 1 January 2010: SI 2009/3250.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where an order is made modifying the functions of the Legal Services Board² the order may include (among other things) provision conferring on the Board powers to do any of the following:

- 126 (1) to authorise (otherwise than by the grant of a licence under the Legal Services Act 2007 Part 5³) persons or any category of persons (whether corporate or unincorporate) to carry on one or more activities which are reserved legal activities in relation to which the Board is designated as an approved regulator⁴;

The order may provide for any provision relating to licensing authorities' powers of intervention¹⁶:

- 138 (a) to apply in relation to the Board (in its capacity as an approved regulator) and regulated persons as it applies in relation to a licensing authority and licensed bodies (or managers or employees of such bodies) or to so apply with such modifications as are prescribed by the order¹⁷; or 139 (b) to make provision, in relation to the Board (in that capacity) and regulated persons, corresponding to any of the provisions made¹⁸, in relation to licensing authorities and licensed bodies (or managers or employees of such bodies)¹⁹.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 64 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 Ie an order under the Legal Services Act 2007 s 62(1)(b) (see PARA 367): s 64(1). As to the Legal Services Board see s 2; and PARAS 303-326.

For these purposes 'relevant authorised person' means a person authorised by the Board (other than by the grant of a licence under Pt 5 (ss 71-111) (see PARA 1476 et seq)) to carry on one or more activities which are reserved legal activities: s 64(5). 'Regulated person', in relation to a body, means any class of persons which consists of or includes:

92 (1) persons who are authorised by the body to carry on an activity which is a reserved legal activity (s 21(3)(a) (definition applied by s 64(5)); 93 (2) persons who are not so authorised, but are employees of a person who is so authorised (s 21(3)(b) (definition applied by s 64(5)).

In relation to an authorised person other than an individual, references in s 21(2), (3) to employees of the person include managers of the person: s 21(4).

94 (1) authorising or requiring the Board to establish and maintain a fund or funds (s 64(4)(a));

95 (2) authorising or requiring the Board to take out and maintain insurance with authorised insurers (s 64(4)(b));

Sch 3 para 12) to effect or carry out contracts of a relevant class (Legal Services Act 2007 s 64(5));

- 99 (c) a person who does not fall within head (a) or head (b) above and who may lawfully effect or carry out contracts of insurance of a relevant class in a member state other than the United Kingdom (s 64(5)).

A contract of insurance is of a relevant class if it insures against a risk arising from accident, credit, legal expenses, general liability to third parties, sickness, suretyship or miscellaneous financial loss: s 64(6)(a). The above definition of 'authorised insurer' must be read with the Financial Services and Markets Act 2000 s 22 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 48 (2008) PARA 84), and any relevant order under s 22, and with Sch 2: Legal Services Act 2007 s 64(6)(b).

11 Legal Services Act 2007 s 64(2)(h). See note 10. 'Compensation arrangements' in relation to a body, means arrangements to provide for grants or other payments for the purposes of relieving or mitigating losses or hardship suffered by persons in consequence of:

370-372 Separation of functions ... Duty to promote the regulatory objectives

These provisions have effect as from 1 January 2010: SI 2009/3250.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/1. REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS/(5) APPROVED REGULATORS UNDER THE LEGAL SERVICES ACT 2007/(i) Introduction/D. LEGAL SERVICES BOARD AS AN APPROVED REGULATOR/371. Regulatory conflict.

371. Regulatory conflict.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. An approved regulator² may make a request to the Legal Services Board³ (in its capacity as an approved regulator) that it reconsider the provision made by its regulatory arrangements to prevent a regulatory conflict with the conflicting regulator⁴. Such a request may be made if the approved regulator considers that the regulatory arrangements of the Board (in its capacity as an approved regulator) do not make appropriate provision to prevent a conflict between a requirement of those regulatory arrangements and a requirement of the regulatory arrangements of the approved regulator⁵.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 68 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358. An affected person in relation to an approved regulator may request the approved regulator to exercise its powers under s 68(1): s 68(2). 'Affected person' in relation to the Board or any other approved regulator, means any person authorised by the body to carry on a reserved legal activity or an employee or manager of such a person: s 68(11). As to the meaning of 'reserved legal activity' see PARA 512. As to the meaning of 'manager' see PARA 369 note 17.

3 As to the Legal Services Board see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 2; and PARAS 303-326.

4 See the Legal Services Board s 68(4). As to the meaning of 'regulatory arrangements' see PARA 377. For the purposes of s 68 'conflicting regulator' means in a case within s 68(1), the approved regulator making the request and in a case within s 68(3) or s 68(5), the approved regulator whose regulatory arrangements are considered to conflict with those of the Board: s 68(11). An affected person in relation to the Board may make a request under s 68(4) if the person considers that the regulatory arrangements of the Board (in its capacity as an approved regulator) do not make appropriate provision to prevent a conflict between a requirement of those regulatory arrangements and a requirement of the regulatory arrangements of an approved regulator: s 68(3). Section 68 also applies in relation to the Legal Services Board in its capacity as a licensing authority and its licensing rules: see s 103(2); and PARA 1478. As to the meaning of 'licensing rules' see PARA 1498 and as to licensing rules generally see PARA 1498 et seq.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 68(1). An affected person in relation to the Board may make an application to the Board for it to exercise its powers under s 32 (see PARA 388) to direct the approved regulator:

- 106 (1) to take steps to modify, in such manner as may be specified in the direction, the provision made by its regulatory arrangements to prevent a regulatory conflict with the Board (in its capacity as an approved regulator) (s 68(6)(a)); or
- 107 (2) if its regulatory arrangements do not make any such provision, to make such provision as may be specified in the direction to prevent such a conflict (s 68(6)(b)).

Such an application may be made if the person considers that the regulatory arrangements of an approved regulator do not make appropriate provision to prevent a conflict between a requirement of those regulatory arrangements and a requirement of the regulatory arrangements of the Board (in its capacity as an approved regulator): s 68(5).

Section 53(5)-(8) (see PARA 416) applies in relation to an application under s 68(6) as it applies in relation to an application under s 53, except that references to the applicant regulator are to be read as references to the person who made the application and references to the conflicting regulator are to be construed in accordance with s 68: s 68(10). An affected person in relation to an approved regulator (other than the Board) may make a request to the approved regulator that it reconsider the provision made by its regulatory arrangements to prevent a regulatory conflict with the Board: s 68(8).

Such a request may be made if the person considers that the regulatory arrangements of the approved regulator do not make appropriate provision to prevent a conflict between a requirement of those regulatory arrangements and a requirement of the regulatory arrangements of the Board (in its capacity as an approved regulator): s 68(7).

The Board (in its capacity as an approved regulator) and any other approved regulator must consider any request made to it under s 68: s 68(9).

374. Rules relating to the exercise of regulatory functions.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The Legal Services Board² must make rules ('internal governance rules') setting out requirements to be met by approved regulators³ for the purpose of ensuring:

- 142 (1) that the exercise of an approved regulator's regulatory functions is not prejudiced by its representative functions⁴; and
- 143 (2) that decisions relating to the exercise of an approved regulator's regulatory functions are so far as reasonably practicable taken independently from decisions relating to the exercise of its representative functions⁵.

The internal governance rules must require each approved regulator to have in place arrangements which ensure:

- 144 (a) that the persons involved in the exercise of its regulatory functions are, in that capacity, able to make representations to, be consulted by and enter into communications with the Board, the Consumer Panel⁶, the Office for Legal Complaints⁷ and other approved regulators⁸; and

REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS/(5) APPROVED REGULATORS UNDER THE LEGAL SERVICES ACT 2007/(ii) Duties and Functions of Approved Regulators/375. Modification of the functions of approved regulators.

375. Modification of the functions of approved regulators.

The Lord Chancellor may by order modify, or make other provision relating to, the functions of an approved regulator¹ or any other body (other than the Legal Services Board)².

The Lord Chancellor may make such an order only if the Board has made an appropriate recommendation³, a draft order was annexed to the recommendation and the order is in the same form as, or a form not materially different from, that draft order⁴. The recommendation may be made only with the consent of the approved regulator or other body to which the recommendation relates⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358.

2 Legal Services Act 2007 s 69(1). As to the Legal Services Board see s 2; and PARAS 303-326. At the date at which this volume states the law no such orders had been made. An order under s 69 also may make provision in relation to:

108 (1) the provision of immigration advice or immigration services (s 69(5)(a)); and

109 (2) persons authorised to provide such advice and services by the body to which the order relates (s 69(5)(b)), corresponding to the provision which may be made by virtue of s 64(2)-(4) (see PARA 369) in relation to reserved legal activities and persons authorised to carry on those activities (s 69(5)).

An order under s 69 may modify provisions made by or under any enactment (including the Legal Services Act 2007 or any Act passed after it), prerogative instrument or other instrument or document: s 69(6).

Any provision made by an order under s 69 may be expressed to be conditional upon:

110 (a) the body to which the order relates being designated by an order under Sch 4 paras 3-18 (see PARAS 360-366) as an approved regulator, or by an order under Sch 10 Pt 1 (see PARAS 1479-1484) as a licensing authority, in relation to one or more reserved legal activities specified in the proposed draft order (s 69(7)(a)); or

111 (b) the body to which the order relates becoming a designated qualifying regulator under the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 s 86A (see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM) (Legal Services Act 2007 s 69(7)(b)).

The powers to make an order conferred by s 69 are without prejudice to any powers (statutory or non-statutory) which an approved regulator or other body may have apart from s 69: s 69(8). The provisions of s 64(2)(a), (3), (4) (see PARA 369) apply in relation to an order under s 69 as they apply in relation to an order under s 62(1)(b) (see PARA 301) in relation to the Board: s 69(4). As to the meaning of 'reserved legal activities' see PARA 512. As to the meaning of 'licensing authority' see PARA 1478 and as to licensing authorities generally see PARA 1478 et seq.

Sections 69, 70 have effect subject to modifications which allow for their application to designated regulators until Sch 4 para 1 (see PARA 359) comes into force: see the Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 1 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/222, arts 2(c), 3, 4, 5.

3 The Board may make a recommendation under the Legal Services Act 2007 s 69 only with a view to an order being made which enables the body to which it relates to do one or more of the following:

112 (1) to become designated by an order under Sch 4 paras 3-18 (see PARAS 360-366) as an approved regulator, or designated by an order under Sch 10 Pt 1 (see PARAS 1479-1484) as a licensing authority, in relation to one or more reserved legal activities (s 69(3)(a));

- 113 (2) to authorise persons or any category of persons (whether corporate or unincorporate) to carry on one or more activities which are reserved legal activities in relation to which the body is (at the time the authorisation has effect) designated as an approved regulator, or to make regulatory arrangements (s 69(3)(b));
- 114 (3) to carry out its role as an approved regulator (including its role, if any, as a licensing authority) more effectively or efficiently (s 69(3)(c));
- 115 (4) to become a qualifying regulator under Sch 18 Pt 1 (see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM) (s 69(3)(d));
- 116 (5) if it is a designated qualifying regulator under the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 s 86A (see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM), to authorise persons to provide any additional advice or services the provision of which amounts to the provision of immigration advice or immigration services (Legal Services Act 2007 s 69(3)(e)).

As to modification of this provision see note 1.

4 Legal Services Act 2007 s 69(2). Before making a recommendation under s 69, the Board must publish a draft of the proposed recommendation and the proposed draft order: s 70(2). The draft must be accompanied by a notice which states that representations about the proposals may be made to the Board within a specified period: s 70(3). Before making the recommendation, the Board must have regard to any representations duly made: s 70(4). If the draft order to be annexed to the recommendation differs from the draft published in a way which is, in the opinion of the Board, material, the Board must, before making the recommendation, publish the draft order along with a statement detailing the changes made and the reasons for those changes: s 70(5). As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. After considering the application and any accompanying material, any other information provided by the approved regulator, any advice obtained², any representations duly made³, and any other information which the Legal Services Board⁴ considers relevant to the application, the Board must decide whether to grant the application⁵. The Board may grant the application in whole or in part⁶.

The Board may refuse the application only if it is satisfied that:

- 163 (1) granting the application would be prejudicial to the regulatory objectives⁷;
- 164 (2) granting the application would be contrary to any provision made by or by virtue of the Legal Services Act 2007 or any other enactment or would result in any of the designation requirements ceasing to be satisfied in relation to the approved regulator⁸;
- 165 (3) granting the application would be contrary to the public interest⁹;
- 166 (4) the alteration would enable the approved regulator to authorise persons to carry on activities which are reserved legal activities in relation to which it is not a relevant approved regulator¹⁰;
- 167 (5) the alteration would enable the approved regulator to license persons under the Legal Services Act 2007¹¹ to carry on activities which are reserved legal activities in relation to which it is not a licensing authority¹²; or
- 168 (6) the alteration has been or is likely to be made otherwise than in accordance with the procedures (whether statutory or otherwise) which apply in relation to the making of the alteration¹³.

The Board must give notice of its decision (the 'decision notice') to the approved regulator¹⁴. Where the Board decides to refuse the application (in whole or in part), the decision notice must specify the reasons for that decision¹⁵. The Board must publish the decision notice¹⁶.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. A person who is a regulated person² in relation to an approved regulator has a duty to comply with the regulatory arrangements of the approved regulator³ as they apply to that person⁴.

This applies in relation to the Legal Services Board⁵ in its capacity as a licensing authority and its licensing rules, as it applies in relation to an approved regulator and its regulatory arrangements⁶.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/1. REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS/(5) APPROVED REGULATORS UNDER THE LEGAL SERVICES ACT 2007/(iii) Regulatory Arrangements/B. ALTERATION/385. Complaints procedure.

385. Complaints procedure.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The regulatory arrangements of an approved regulator² must make provision requiring each relevant authorised person³ to establish and maintain procedures for the resolution of relevant complaints⁴ or to participate in, or make arrangements to be subject to, such procedures established and maintained by another person, and provision for the enforcement of that requirement⁵.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 112 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358. As to the meaning of 'regulatory arrangements' see PARA 377.

3 For these purposes 'relevant authorised person', in relation to an approved regulator, means a person in relation to whom the approved regulator is a relevant approved regulator: Legal Services Act 2007 s 112(3). For the purposes of s 112 and s 145 (as extended by s 161) a person authorised by the Claims Management Services Regulator under the Compensation Act 2006 Pt 2 (ss 4-15) to provide regulated claims management services is to be treated as a 'relevant authorised person' in relation to the Regulator: Legal Services Act 2007 s 161(2). As to the meaning of 'relevant approved regulator' see PARA 358. As to the meaning of 'Claims Management Services Regulator' see PARA 358 note 4. Section 112 applies in relation to the licensing rules of the Legal Services Board as it applies in relation to the regulatory arrangements of an approved regulator except that s 112(3) has effect as if for the definition of 'relevant authorised person' there were substituted 'relevant authorised person, in relation to the Board, means a person licensed by the Board under the Legal Services Act 2007 Pt 5' (ss 71-111): s 112(5). As to the Legal Services Board see s 2; and PARAS 303-326. As to the meaning of 'licensing rules' see PARA 1498 and as to licensing rules generally see PARA 1498 et seq.

4 For these purposes 'relevant complaint' in relation to a relevant authorised person, means a complaint which relates to an act or omission of that person and may be made under the scheme provided for by the Legal Services Act 2007 Pt 6 (ss 112-161): s 112(3).

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 112(1). The provision made for the purposes of s 112(1) must satisfy such requirements as the Legal Services Board may, from time to time, specify for the purposes of s 112(1) and the Board must publish any such requirements: s 112(2), (4).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/1. REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS/(5) APPROVED REGULATORS UNDER THE LEGAL SERVICES ACT 2007/(iii) Regulatory Arrangements/B. ALTERATION/386. Provision for redress.

386. Provision for redress.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The regulatory arrangements of an approved regulator² must not include any provision relating to redress³. This applies to licensing rules made by the Legal Services Board⁴ in its capacity as a licensing authority as it applies in relation to the regulatory arrangements of an approved regulator⁵.

However the above provisions do not prohibit the regulatory arrangements of an approved regulator from making provision requiring, or authorising the approved regulator to require, a relevant authorised person⁶:

- 169 (1) to investigate whether there are any persons who may have a claim⁷ against the relevant authorised person in relation to a matter specified by the approved regulator⁸;
- 170 (2) to provide the approved regulator with a report on the outcome of the investigation⁹;
- 171 (3) to identify persons ('affected persons') who may have such a claim¹⁰;
- 172 (4) to notify affected persons that they may have such a claim¹¹;
- 173 (5) to provide affected persons with information about the relevant authorised person's complaints procedures and the ombudsman scheme¹²;
- 174 (6) to ensure that the relevant authorised person's complaints procedures operate as if an affected person had made a complaint against the relevant authorised person in respect of the act or omission to which the claim relates¹³.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 ss 157, 158 are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358. As to the meaning of 'regulatory arrangements' see PARA 377. If at the time the Legal Services Act 2007 s 157(2) comes into force the regulatory arrangements of an approved regulator contravene s 157(1), any provision relating to redress included in those regulatory arrangements ceases to have effect at that time, subject to s 157(3): s 157(2). An order under s 211 which appoints a day for the coming into force of s 157(2) may include transitional provision in respect of any proceedings which, immediately before that day are awaiting determination under any provision relating to redress made by an approved regulator: s 157(3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. Section 157(3) is without prejudice to any other transitional provision which may be made by or under the Legal Services Act 2007 s 157(3).

3 Legal Services Act 2007 s 157(1). For these purposes 'provision relating to redress' means any provision made in regulatory arrangements (whether it is statutory or non-statutory) for redress in respect of acts or omissions of authorised persons and any provision connected with such provision: s 157(4). For the purposes of s 157(4) 'authorised person' means an authorised person in relation to any activity which is a reserved legal activity: s 157(6). Nothing in s 157 prevents an approved regulator making:

- 129 (1) provision in its regulatory arrangements of the kind required by s 112 (requirement for authorised persons to have complaints procedures etc) (s 157(5)(a));
- 130 (2) indemnification arrangements or compensation arrangements (s 157(5)(b)); or
- 131 (3) provision which by virtue of s 158 is not prohibited by s 157 (s 157(5)(c)).

As to the meaning of 'compensation arrangements' see PARA 369 note 11.

4 As to the Legal Services Board see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 2; and PARAS 303-326. As to the meaning of 'licensing rules' see PARA 1498 and as to licensing rules generally see PARA 1498 et seq.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 157(7).

6 Legal Services Act 2007 s 158(1). For the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007 s 158 'relevant authorised person', in relation to an approved regulator, means a person authorised by that approved regulator to carry on an activity which is a reserved legal activity and a relevant authorised person's complaints procedures are the procedures established by that person, or which that person participates in or is subject to, in accordance with regulatory arrangements made in accordance with s 112 (see PARA 385): s 158(3). Section 158 applies in relation to the Legal Services Board in its capacity as a licensing authority as it applies in relation to an approved regulator, and in relation to the Board references to regulatory arrangements are to be read as references to the Board's licensing rules: s 158(4). As to the meaning of 'licensing authority' see PARA 1478 and as to licensing authorities generally see PARA 1478 et seq.

7 For this purpose 'claim', in relation to a relevant authorised person, means a claim for redress resulting from an act or omission of that person: Legal Services Act 2007 s 158(2).

(iv) Performance Targets

387. Performance targets.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The Legal Services Board² may set one or more performance targets relating to the performance by an approved regulator of any of its regulatory functions³ or direct an approved regulator to set one or more performance targets relating to the performance by the approved regulator of any of its regulatory functions⁴, if the Board is satisfied that the following conditions are satisfied⁵.

Those conditions are:

175 (1) that an act or omission of the approved regulator (or a series of such acts or omissions) has had, or is likely to have, an adverse impact on one or more of the regulatory objectives⁶; and 176 (2) that it is appropriate to take the action proposed⁷ in all the circumstances of the case (including in particular the impact of taking the action on the other regulatory objectives)⁸.

If the Board proposes to take action in respect of an approved regulator it must give notice⁹ to the approved regulator describing the action it proposes to take, specifying the acts or omissions to which the proposed action relates and any other facts which, in the opinion of the Board, justify the taking of that action and specifying the time (not being earlier than the end of the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which the notice is given) before which representations with respect to that action may be made¹⁰.

Before taking action the Board must consider any representations which are duly made¹¹.

In exercising its regulatory functions, an approved regulator must seek to meet any performance target set for or by it under s 31: s 31(6).

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 31(1). The Board must publish any target set or direction given by it under s 31: s 31(7). The Board may take such steps as it regards as appropriate to monitor the extent to which any performance target set under s 31 is being, or has been, met: s 31(9). The Board must prepare and issue a policy statement with respect to the exercise of its functions under s 31: see s 49(1)(a); and PARA 412. (v) Directions

388. Making a direction.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The following provisions apply if the Legal Services Board² is satisfied:

- 177 (1) that an act or omission of an approved regulator³ (or a series of such acts or omissions) has had, or is likely to have, an adverse impact on one or more of the regulatory objectives⁴;
- 178 (2) that an approved regulator has failed to comply with any requirement imposed on it by or under the Legal Services Act 2007 or any other enactment⁵; or
- 179 (3) that an approved regulator has failed to ensure that the exercise of its regulatory functions⁶ is not prejudiced by any of its representative functions⁷ or has failed to ensure that decisions relating to the exercise of its regulatory functions are, so far as reasonably practicable, taken independently from decisions relating to the exercise of its representative functions⁸.

If, in all the circumstances of the case, the Board is satisfied that it is appropriate to do so, it may direct⁹ the approved regulator to take:

- 180 (a) in a case within head (1) above, such steps as the Board considers will counter the adverse impact, mitigate its effect or prevent its occurrence or recurrence¹⁰;
- 181 (b) in a case within head (2) or (3) above, such steps as the Board considers will remedy the failure, mitigate its effect or prevent its recurrence¹¹.

The direction:

- 182 (i) may only require an approved regulator to take steps which it has power to take¹²;
- 183 (ii) may require an approved regulator to take steps with a view to the modification of any part of its regulatory arrangements¹³.

The Board may not exercise its powers¹⁴ so as to give a direction requiring an approved regulator to take steps in respect of a specific disciplinary case or other specific regulatory proceedings (as opposed to all, or a specified class of, such cases or proceedings)¹⁵.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The following applies if the Legal Services Board² is satisfied that an approved regulator³ has failed to comply with a particular requirement⁴ and that, in all the circumstances of the case, it is appropriate to impose a financial penalty on the approved regulator⁵. The Board must make rules prescribing the maximum amount of a penalty which may be imposed⁶. The Board may impose a penalty, in respect of the failure, of such an amount as it considers appropriate, but not exceeding the maximum amount prescribed by the rules⁷. A penalty under these provisions is payable to the Board⁸.

If an appeal is made under s 39 (see PARA 396) in relation to a penalty, the penalty is not required to be paid until the appeal has been determined or withdrawn: s 40(2). If the Board grants an application under s 38(6) (see PARA 395) in relation to a penalty but any portion of the penalty is not paid by the time specified in relation to it by the Board under s 38(6), the Board may where it considers it appropriate require so much of the penalty as has not already been paid to be paid immediately: s 40(3). Where a penalty, or any portion of it, has not been paid by the time when it is required to be paid and no appeal relating to the penalty has been made under s 39 (see PARA 396) during the period within which such an appeal can be made or an appeal has been made under s 39 and determined or withdrawn, the Board may recover from the approved regulator, as a debt due to the Board, any of the penalty and any interest which has not been paid: s 40(4). 399. Advice.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. After complying with the notification provisions² the Legal Services Board³ must give each of the persons listed below a copy of the warning notice⁴ and accompanying draft⁵, a copy of any written representations duly made⁶ and a copy of the report (if any)⁷ and a notice specifying a period within which any advice⁸ must be given⁹. Those persons are:

- 206 (1) the Lord Chancellor¹⁰;
- 207 (2) the Office of Fair Trading¹¹;
- 208 (3) the Consumer Panel¹²;
- 209 (4) the Lord Chief Justice¹³; and
- 210 (5) such other persons as the Board considers it reasonable to consult in respect of the proposed intervention direction¹⁴.

The Board must give the approved regulator a copy of any advice duly given by the persons in heads (1) to (4) above¹⁵ and publish that advice¹⁶.

The approved regulator and any body that represents persons authorised by the approved regulator to carry on activities which are reserved legal activities may make to the Board written representations and, if the Board authorises it to do so, oral representations, about the advice¹⁷. The Board may allow any other person to make written or oral representations about the advice¹⁸. Where oral representations are made the Board must prepare a report of those representations¹⁹.

11 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 8 para 3(2)(b). The Office of Fair Trading must give the Board such advice as it thinks fit regarding whether the proposed intervention direction should be given: Sch 8 para 5(1). In deciding what advice to give, the Office of Fair Trading must, in particular, have regard to whether giving the proposed intervention direction would (or would be likely to) prevent, restrict or distort competition within the market for reserved legal services to any significant extent: Sch 8 para 5(2). As to the Office of Fair Trading see COMPETITION vol 18 (2009) PARA 6 et seq. As to the meaning of 'reserved legal services' see PARA 512 note 2.

13 Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 8 para 3(2)(d). The Board must give the Lord Chief Justice a copy of any advice duly given under Sch 8 paras 4-7 and a notice specifying a period within which any advice under Sch 8 para 8 must be given: Sch 8 para 8(1). Such advice is to be published along with any written representations made or report prepared under the Sch 8 para 2: see Sch 8 para 10(1)(b); and PARA 398. Nothing in Sch 8 para 10 operates to prevent a person who gives advice under Sch 8 paras 4-8 from publishing that advice or to prevent a person who makes representations under Sch 8 para 2 (see PARA 398) or Sch 8 para 10 from publishing those representations: Sch 8 para 11(1). A person (the 'publisher') publishing any such material (whether under Sch 8 para 10 or otherwise) must, so far as practicable, exclude any matter which relates to the private affairs of a particular individual the publication of which, in the opinion of the publisher, would or might seriously and prejudicially affect the interests of that individual: Sch 8 para 11(2).

Such rules are non-statutory and are not set out in this work. Representations under Sch 8 para 10 must be made within the period of 28 days beginning with the day on which the representations and advice are published under Sch 8 para 10(1)(b) (see PARA 398) or such longer period as the Board may specify in a particular case: Sch 8 para 10(6). REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS/(5) APPROVED REGULATORS UNDER THE LEGAL SERVICES ACT 2007/(vii) Intervention Directions/B. EFFECT/401. Effect of intervention directions.

B. EFFECT

401. Effect of intervention directions.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The following applies where an intervention direction² has effect in respect of a function of an approved regulator (the 'relevant function')³.

The approved regulator must give the specified person⁴ all such assistance, in connection with the proposed exercise of the relevant function by the specified person in pursuance of the direction, as the approved regulator is reasonably able to give⁵.

On an application by the specified person (or a person appointed by the specified person to act on its behalf) a judge of the High Court, Circuit judge or justice of the peace may issue a warrant authorising that person to enter and search the premises of the approved regulator and take possession of any written or electronic records found on the premises⁶. The person so authorised may, for the purpose of the exercise by the specified person of the relevant function, take copies of written or electronic records found on a search carried out by virtue of the warrant⁷. The judge or justice of the peace may not issue the warrant unless satisfied that its issue is necessary or desirable for the exercise by the specified person of the relevant function⁸.

2 As to the meaning of 'intervention direction' see PARA 397.

3 Legal Services Act 2007 s 42(1). As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358.

4 For these purposes 'specified person' means the Legal Services Board or, where a person is nominated by it as mentioned in the Legal Services Act 2007 s 41(2) (see PARA 397), that person: s 42(9). The Legal Services Board must make rules as to the persons a specified person may appoint for the purposes of s 42(3): s 42(10). Such rules are non-statutory and are not set out in this work. As to the Legal Services Board see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 2; and PARAS 303-326. The powers of the Board under ss 42, 43 are not exercisable by the Board as an approved regulator: see s 67(1); and PARA 358 note 7.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 42(2). If at any time it appears to the Board that an approved regulator has failed to comply with an obligation imposed on it by, or by virtue of, an intervention direction or s 42(2), the Board may make an application to the High Court under s 43: s 43(1). If, on an application under s 43(1), the High Court decides that the approved regulator has failed to comply with the obligation in question, it may order the approved regulator to take such steps as the High Court directs for securing that the obligation is complied with: s 43(2). Section 43 is without prejudice to any other powers conferred on the Board by Pt 4 (ss 27-70): s 43(3).

6 Legal Services Act 2007 s 42(3). The Lord Chancellor must make regulations:

143 (1) specifying further matters which a judge or justice of the peace must be satisfied of, or matters which a judge or justice of the peace must have regard to, before issuing a warrant (s 42(6)(a)); and

- 144 (2) regulating the exercise of a power conferred by a warrant issued under s 42(3) or by s 42(4) (whether by restricting the circumstances in which a power may be exercised, by specifying conditions to be complied with in the exercise of a power, or otherwise) (s 42(6)(b)).

Regulations under s 42(6)(b) must in particular make provision as to the circumstances in which written or electronic records of which a person has taken possession by virtue of a warrant issued under s 42(3) may be copied or must be returned: s 42(7). But the Lord Chancellor may not make regulations under s 41(6) unless they are made in accordance with a recommendation made by the Board or the Lord Chancellor has consulted the Board about the making of the regulations: s 41(8). At the date at which this volume states the law no such regulations had been made.

(viii) Cancellation of Approval

405. Generally.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The Lord Chancellor may by order cancel a body's designation as an approved regulator² in relation to all the reserved legal activities³ in relation to which it is an approved regulator or in relation to one or more, but not all, of those reserved legal activities, with effect from a date specified in the order⁴. But the Lord Chancellor may only make such an order in accordance with a recommendation made by the Legal Services Board⁵ under the following provisions⁶.

The Board must recommend that an order is made cancelling a body's designation as an approved regulator in relation to one or more reserved legal activities if the body applies to the Board for such a recommendation to be made⁷. The application must be made in such form and manner as may be prescribed by rules made by the Board and be accompanied by the prescribed fee⁸. The body must publish a notice giving details of the application in accordance with such requirements as may be specified in rules made by the Board⁹.

The Board may recommend that an order is made cancelling a body's designation as an approved regulator in relation to one or more reserved legal activities if it is satisfied that an act or omission of an approved regulator (or a series of such acts or omissions) has had, or is likely to have, an adverse impact on one or more of the regulatory objectives and that it is appropriate to cancel the body's designation in relation to the activity or activities in question in all the circumstances of the case (including in particular the impact of cancelling the designation on the other regulatory objectives)¹⁰.

3 As to the meaning of 'reserved legal activities' see PARA 512.

4 Legal Services Act 2007 s 45(1). At the date at which this volume states the law no such order had been made. The following applies where a body (the 'former regulator') has its designation in relation to one or more reserved legal activities cancelled by an order under s 45: s 46(1). The Lord Chancellor may by order make such modifications of provisions made by or under any enactment (including the Legal Services Act 2007 or any enactment passed after that Act), prerogative instrument or other instrument or document and such transitional or consequential provision, as the Lord Chancellor considers necessary or expedient in consequence of the cancellation: s 46(2). The Board must prepare and issue a policy statement with respect to the exercise of its functions under s 45: see s 49(1)(d); and PARA 412. The powers of the Board under ss 45, 46 are not exercisable by the Board as an approved regulator: see s 67(1); and PARA 358 note 7.

The Lord Chancellor must publish a notice given under s 45(8): s 45(9). As to notices generally see PARA 303 note 11.

10 Legal Services Act 2007 s 45(5). The Board may not determine that it is appropriate to cancel a body's designation in relation to an activity or activities unless it is satisfied that the matter cannot be adequately addressed by the Board exercising the powers available to it under ss 31-43: s 45(6). See note 9. Schedule 9 makes further provision about the making of recommendations under s 45(5): s 45(7), Sch 9 para 1. The Board may not make a recommendation under s 45(5) in respect of a body's designation as an approved regulator in relation to a reserved legal activity at any time when, by virtue of Sch 5 Pt 2 (protection of rights during a transitional period), any person is being treated as authorised by the body to carry on that activity: s 45(10).

409. Transfer arrangements.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where a body (the 'former regulator') has its designation in relation to one or more reserved legal activities cancelled by order² the Lord Chancellor may by order make transfer arrangements³. The transfer arrangements:

- 220 (1) must make such provision as is necessary to ensure that, where a person is treated under those arrangements as being authorised to carry on a protected activity by the new regulator, that person is subject to the regulatory arrangements of the new regulator⁴;
- 221 (2) may make provision requiring amounts held by the former regulator which represent amounts paid to it by way of practising fees⁵ by the persons to whom the transfer arrangements apply (or a part of the amounts so held) to be paid to the new regulator and treated as if they were amounts paid by those persons by way of practising fees to the new regulator⁶.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 46 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 Is cancelled by order under the Legal Services Act 2007 s 45 (see PARA 405). As to the meaning of 'reserved legal activities' see PARA 512. Where the Legal Services Board has its designation as an approved regulator cancelled in relation to one or more reserved legal activities s 46 (other than s 46(4)(b)) applies: see s 65(1), (2); and PARA 367.

3 Legal Services Act 2007 s 46(1), (3). 'Transfer arrangements' are arrangements in accordance with which each person authorised by the former regulator who consents to the arrangements is, from the time the cancellation takes effect, treated as being authorised to carry on each protected activity by either a relevant approved regulator, in relation to the protected activity, who consents to the transfer arrangements or the Board acting in its capacity as a relevant approved regulator in relation to the protected activity by virtue of an order made under s 62: s 46(4). The Lord Chancellor may make an order under s 46 only if the Board has made a recommendation in accordance with s 47 and the order is in the same form as, or in a form which is not materially different from, the draft order annexed to that recommendation: s 46(7). A person is 'authorised by the former regulator' if immediately before the time the cancellation takes effect the person is authorised by the former regulator (other than by virtue of a licence under Pt 5) to carry on an activity which is a reserved legal activity to which the cancellation relates and in relation to that person the activity which that person is authorised to carry on is a 'protected activity' and 'new regulator' means the approved regulator within s 46(4) (a) or s 46(4)(b): s 46(8). As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358.

4 Legal Services Act 2007 s 46(5)(a). Section 46(5)(a) is subject to any transitional provision which may be made by the transfer arrangements, including provision modifying the regulatory arrangements of the new regulator as they apply to persons to whom the transfer arrangements apply: s 46(6). As to the meaning of 'regulatory arrangements' see PARA 377.

5 For this purpose 'practising fee', in relation to an approved regulator, means a fee payable by a person under the approved regulator's regulatory arrangements in circumstances where the payment of the fee is a condition which must be satisfied for that person to be authorised by the approved regulator to carry on one or more activities which are reserved legal activities: Legal Services Act 2007 s 46(9). However, 'practising fee' does not include a fee payable by a licensed body to its licensing authority under licensing rules: s 46(10). As to the meaning of 'licensing authority' see PARA 1478 and as to licensing authorities generally see PARA 1478 et seq. A person so authorised may, for the purpose of continuing regulation, take copies of written or electronic records found on a search carried out by virtue of the warrant⁸. The judge or justice of the peace may not issue the warrant unless satisfied that its issue is necessary or desirable for the purpose of continuing regulation⁹.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where the Lord Chancellor seeks the advice of the Competition Commission², the Commission must investigate the matter³. The Secretary of State is empowered to appoint a Legal Services Ombudsman whose appointment is for a period of not more than three years, renewable at the end of the term². He must not be an authorised advocate³, authorised litigator⁴, licensed conveyancer⁵, authorised practitioner⁶, or notary⁷.

The Secretary of State must pay to, or in respect of, the Ombudsman, such amounts by way of remuneration, pensions, allowances or gratuities or by way of provision for any such benefits as he may determine⁸. In certain circumstances⁹ he may appoint an acting Ombudsman and may pay to any person so appointed such remuneration as he may determine¹⁰.

1 As from a day to be appointed the Legal Services Ombudsman is abolished (see PARA 423) and accordingly the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 ss 21-26 and Sch 3 are repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 s 159(2), Sch 23. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

The appointment is made for the purpose of conducting investigations under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990: s 21(1) (as so prospectively repealed; amended by SI 2003/1887). The Ombudsman must hold and vacate office in accordance with the terms of his appointment: s 21(3)(b) (as so prospectively repealed). The Legal Services Complaints Commissioner is disqualified for membership of the House of Commons and the Northern Ireland Assembly: see the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975 Sch 1 Pt III and the Northern Ireland Assembly Disqualification Act 1975 Sch 1 Pt III (both entries prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 23).

At the date at which this volume states the law, s 37 had not been brought in force. As to the meaning of 'conveyancing services' see PARA 495 note 5. See further PARA 1319.

If the Ombudsman ceases to hold office, and it appears to the Lord Chancellor that there are special circumstances which make it right that he should receive compensation, the Lord Chancellor may pay to him such sum as he may determine with the consent of the Treasury: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 3 para 3(2) (as so prospectively repealed; amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 15 Pt II and SI 2003/1887).

9 Ie where:

158 (1) the Ombudsman's office becomes vacant (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 3 para 9(1)(a) (prospectively repealed (see note 1); amended by SI 2003/1887)); or

- 159 (2) the Ombudsman is incapable of exercising his functions, or considers that it would be inappropriate for him to exercise any of them in connection with a particular matter, because of a possible conflict of interests or for any other reason (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 3 para 9(1)(b) (as so prospectively repealed)).

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The Legal Services Ombudsman² must not investigate an allegation while:

- 245 (2) an appeal is pending against the determination of the complaint by that body⁴; or
- 246 (3) the time within which such an appeal may be brought by any person has not expired⁵.

- 248 (b) the Ombudsman is satisfied that, even though the complaint is being investigated by the professional body concerned, an investigation by him is justified⁷.

The Ombudsman must not investigate any issue which is being or has been determined by a court, the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal⁸, the Disciplinary Tribunal of the Council of the Inns of Court, or any tribunal specified in an order made by the Secretary of State⁹. Nor may he investigate any allegation relating to a complaint against any person which concerns an aspect of his conduct in relation to which he has immunity from any action in negligence or contract¹⁰. - 249 (i) the complaint relates to a matter which arose before 1 November 1990¹¹; or
- 250 (ii) the person making the complaint may be entitled to bring proceedings in any court in respect of the matter complained of¹².

428. Investigation by the Ombudsman.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. If the Legal Services Ombudsman² investigates an allegation he may investigate the matter to which the complaint relates, and may at any time discontinue his investigation³. If the Ombudsman decides not to investigate an allegation which he would be entitled to investigate, or discontinues an investigation he has begun, he must notify the decision and the reason for it to the person making the allegation, any person with respect to whom the complaint was made, and the professional body concerned⁴.

The Secretary of State may give general directions concerning the discharge of the Ombudsman's functions⁵. Subject to any such direction and to the provisions of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990, the Ombudsman may make such provision as he considers appropriate for the discharge of his functions⁶.

1 As from a day to be appointed the Legal Services Ombudsman is abolished (see PARA 423) and accordingly the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 ss 21-26 and Sch 3 are repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 s 159(2), Sch 23. To the extent that that expenditure is not met by payments under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 3 para 7(1), it must be met by the Secretary of State out of money provided by Parliament: Sch 3 para 7(1A) (as so prospectively repealed; added by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 50 and amended by SI 2003/1887). The Ombudsman may, with the approval of the Secretary of State, pay fees or allowances to any person who, in the Ombudsman's opinion, is qualified to assist him in the discharge of his functions and who so assists him: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 3 para 7(2) (as so prospectively repealed; amended by SI 2003/1887).

6 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 3 para 1(3) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1). In particular, the Ombudsman may make provision as to:

430. Procedure and offences.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where the Legal Services Ombudsman² is conducting an investigation he may require any person to furnish such information or produce such documents as he considers are relevant to the investigation³. For the purposes of any such investigation, the Ombudsman has the same powers as the High Court in respect of attendance and examination of witnesses, including the administration of oaths or affirmations and the examination of witnesses abroad, and in respect of the production of documents⁴.

If any person is in contempt of the Ombudsman⁵ in relation to any investigation conducted by him⁶, the Ombudsman may certify that contempt to the High Court⁷, and the High Court may inquire into the matter⁸. After hearing any witness produced against, or on behalf of, the person concerned and considering any statement offered in his defence, the High Court may deal with him in any manner that would be available to it had he been in contempt of the High Court⁹.

1 As from a day to be appointed the Legal Services Ombudsman is abolished (see PARA 423) and accordingly the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 ss 21-26 and Sch 3 are repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 s 159(2), Sch 23. 5 A person is in contempt of the Ombudsman if he acts, or fails to act, in any way which would constitute contempt if the investigation being conducted by the Ombudsman were civil proceedings in the High Court: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 25(5) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1).

- 253 (3) any other person with respect to whom he makes a recommendation⁶; and

- 259 (e) the person or professional body to pay compensation under head (c) or head (d) above make a separate payment to the person making the allegation of a specified amount by way of reimbursement of the cost or part of the cost of making the allegation¹⁵.

If after completing any investigation under the Legal Services Act 2007 the Ombudsman considers that, rather than recommending the taking of any action by any person or professional body under head (c), (d) or (e) above, he should make an order requiring the taking of that action by the person or body he must afford the person or body, and the person who made the allegation, a reasonable opportunity of appearing before him to make representations and having considered any representations from them, he may, in reporting his conclusions, make the order¹⁶.

Publication of any report by the Ombudsman and any publicity given for failure to comply with a recommendation are absolutely privileged for the purposes of the law of defamation¹⁷.

UPDATE

435 Appointment

NOTE 2--House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975 Sch 1 Pt III amended: SI 2009/1941.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/1. REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS/(6) COMPLAINTS AND DISCIPLINE/(iii) Legal Services Complaints Commissioner/436. Functions.

436. Functions.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. If it appears to the Secretary of State that complaints about members of any professional body² are not being handled effectively and efficiently, he may by direction require the Legal Services Complaints Commissioner to consider exercising in relation to the body such of the following powers as are specified in the direction³.

Those powers are:

- 260 (1) to require a professional body to provide information, or make reports, to the Commissioner about the handling of complaints about its members⁴;
- 261 (2) to investigate the handling of complaints about the members of a professional body⁵;
- 262 (3) to make recommendations in relation to the handling of complaints about the members of a professional body⁶;
- 263 (4) to set targets in relation to the handling of complaints about the members of a professional body⁷; and
- 264 (5) to require a professional body to submit to the Commissioner a plan for the handling of complaints about its members⁸.

1 As from a day to be appointed the Legal Services Complaints Commissioner is abolished (see PARA 423) and accordingly the Access to Justice Act 1999 ss 51, 52, Sch 8 are repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 s 159(2), Sch 23. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 As to the meaning of 'professional body' see PARA 425 note 4 (definition applied by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(10) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1)).

3 Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(1) (as prospectively repealed (see note 1); amended by SI 2003/1887). Where a direction under s 52(1) in relation to a professional body has been given (and not revoked), the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 24(1) (see PARA 433) (power of Legal Services Ombudsman to make recommendations about arrangements for investigation of complaints) must not have effect in relation to the body: Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(8) (as so prospectively repealed). The Secretary of State may require any professional body in relation to which a direction under s 52 had been given (and not revoked) to make payments of such amounts as the Secretary of State considers appropriate to the Commissioner towards meeting the expenditure incurred (or to be incurred) by him in the discharge of his functions: Sch 8 para 7(1) (as so prospectively repealed; amended by SI 2003/1887). To the extent that that expenditure is not met by payments under the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 8 para 7(1) it must be met by the Secretary of State out of money provided by Parliament: Sch 8 para 7(2) (as so prospectively repealed; amended by SI 2003/1887). The Commissioner may, with the approval of the Secretary of State, pay fees or allowances to any person who, in the Commissioner's opinion, is qualified to assist him in the discharge of his functions and who so assists him: Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 8 para 7(3) (as so prospectively repealed; amended by SI 2003/1887).

5 Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(2)(b) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1).

6 Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(2)(c) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1).

7 Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(2)(d) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1).

8 Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(2)(e) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1). As to failure to provide a plan see PARA 437.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/1. REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS/(6) COMPLAINTS AND DISCIPLINE/(iii) Legal Services Complaints Commissioner/437. Failure to provide plan.

437. Failure to provide plan.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where the Legal Services Complaints Commissioner requires a professional body² to submit to him a plan for the handling of complaints about its members but the body:

- 265 (1) fails to submit to him a plan which he considers adequate for securing that such complaints are handled effectively and efficiently³; or
- 266 (2) submits to him such a plan but fails to handle complaints in accordance with it⁴, he may require the body to pay a penalty⁵.

However before requiring a professional body to pay such a penalty the Commissioner must afford it a reasonable opportunity of appearing before him to make representations⁶.

In determining the amount of any penalty which a professional body is to be required to pay the Commissioner must have regard to all the circumstances of the case, including in particular the total number of complaints about members of the body and, where the penalty is imposed in respect of a failure to handle complaints in accordance with a plan, the number of complaints not so handled and the assets of the body and the number of its members⁷.

The penalty must be paid to the Commissioner who must pay it to the Secretary of State⁸.

1 As from a day to be appointed the Legal Services Complaints Commissioner is abolished (see PARA 423) and accordingly the Access to Justice Act 1999 ss 51, 52, Sch 8 are repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 s 159(2), Sch 23. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 As to the meaning of 'professional body' see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 22; and PARA 425 note 4 (definition applied by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(10) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1)).

3 Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(3)(a) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1).

4 Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(3)(b) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1).

5 Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(3) (as prospectively repealed: see note 1). The Secretary of State must by order made by statutory instrument specify the maximum amount of any penalty under s 52(3): s 52(5) (as so prospectively repealed (see note 1); amended by SI 2003/1887). Accordingly the Legal Services Complaints Commissioner (Maximum Penalty) Order 2004, SI 2004/2758, has been made and the maximum amount of any penalty under the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 52(3) is whichever is the lesser of £1,000,000 and 1% of the amount which is specified as the total income from all sources of the professional body in that body's most recent audited accounts at the date on which the penalty is imposed: Legal Services Complaints Commissioner (Maximum Penalty) Order 2004, SI 2004/2758, art 2.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The Legal Services Complaints Commissioner may appoint such staff as he thinks necessary for the discharge of his functions² and may delegate any of his functions to such members of staff as he thinks fit³.

Appointments must be made by the Commissioner on such terms and conditions (including terms as to pensions, allowances and gratuities) as he may, with the approval of the Secretary of State, determine⁴.

REGULATION OF THE LEGAL PROFESSIONS/(6) COMPLAINTS AND DISCIPLINE/(iv) Office for Legal Complaints/B. VOLUNTARY SCHEME/463. Power to establish a voluntary scheme.

B. VOLUNTARY SCHEME

463. Power to establish a voluntary scheme.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The Office for Legal Complaints² may make rules ('voluntary scheme rules') establishing a scheme (the 'voluntary scheme') under which legal services complaints³ may be resolved quickly and with minimum formality by an independent person⁴. The scheme may only be made in relation to such kind of legal services complaints as may be specified by order made by the Lord Chancellor for such a purpose⁵.

Under the voluntary scheme redress may be provided to the complainant but no disciplinary action may be taken against the respondent⁶.

Voluntary scheme rules may confer functions on ombudsmen⁷ for the purposes of the voluntary scheme⁸.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 164 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the Office for Legal Complaints see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 114; and PARA 442.

3 'Legal services complaint' means a complaint which relates to an act or omission of an eligible person (the 'respondent') in the course of that person providing legal services: Legal Services Act 2007 s 164(4). For that purpose a person is eligible if at the time the act or omission took place there was no activity in relation to which the person was an authorised person or is to be regarded as having been such a person by virtue of s 129 (see PARA 466): s 164(5). As to the meaning of 'authorised person' in relation to activities which are reserved legal activities, see s 18; and PARA 515.

4 See the Legal Services Act 2007 s 164(1), (2). For the purposes of s 164 'legal services' means services provided by a person which consist of or include legal activities carried on by, or on behalf of, that person: s 164(10). Section 131 (see PARA 469) applies for the purposes of the voluntary scheme as it applies for the purposes of the ombudsman scheme: s 174(8). As to the 'ombudsman scheme' see PARA 465. Sections 155, 156 (see PARAS 472-473) apply in relation to voluntary scheme rules as they apply in relation to scheme rules: s 164(9).

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 164(2). The order may in particular specify a kind of legal services complaint by reference to the description of the complainant, of the respondent, or of the legal services to which the complaint relates: s 164(3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such orders had been made. The Lord Chancellor may make an order under s 164(2) only on the recommendation of an interested body: s 165(1). An interested body must, if requested to do so by the Lord Chancellor, consider whether or not it is appropriate to make a recommendation for such an order. An interested body must, before making a recommendation for such an order publish a draft of the proposed recommendation, invite representations regarding the proposed recommendation and consider any such representations which are made: s 165(3). Where the Lord Chancellor receives a recommendation from an interested body for an order under s 164(2), the Lord Chancellor must consider whether to follow the recommendation: s 165(4). If the Lord Chancellor decides not to follow the recommendation, the Lord Chancellor must publish a notice to that effect which includes the Lord Chancellor's reasons for the decision: s 165(5). For the purposes of s 165 'interested body' means the Office for Legal Complaints, the Legal Services Board or the Consumer Panel: s 165(6). As to notices generally see PARA 303 note 11. 464. Operation of voluntary scheme.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. A complaint may be determined under the voluntary scheme² only if:

- 291 (1) the complainant falls within a class of persons specified in voluntary scheme rules³ as qualified to make a complaint⁴;
- 292 (2) the complainant wishes to have the complaint dealt with under the scheme⁵;
- 293 (3) at the time of the act or omission to which the complaint relates, the respondent was participating in the scheme and voluntary scheme rules were in force in relation to the legal services⁶ in question⁷; and
- 294 (4) at the time the complaint is made under the scheme the respondent has not withdrawn from the scheme in accordance with its provisions⁸.

A person qualifies for participation in the voluntary scheme if the person falls within a class of persons specified as qualified in voluntary scheme rules⁹.

Complaints are to be dealt with and determined under the voluntary scheme on standard terms fixed by the Office for Legal Complaints¹⁰ with the consent of the Legal Services Board¹¹ and the Office may modify the standard terms only with the consent of the Board¹².

Section 204(3) which sets out provisions relating to orders, regulations and rules made under the Legal Services Act 2007 applies to the standard terms as it applies to rules made by the Office for Legal Complaints: see s 166(7). The standard terms may in particular make provision:

- 197 (1) requiring the making of payments to the Office for Legal Complaints by persons participating in the scheme of such amounts, at such times and in such circumstances, as may be determined by the Office (s 166(8)(a));
- 198 (2) as to the award of costs on the determination of a complaint (including provision for an award of costs in favour of the Office for the purpose of providing a contribution to resources deployed in dealing with the complaint) (s 166(8)(b)).

Any sum so received is payable into the Consolidated Fund: see s 175(1)(i). As to the Consolidated Fund see CONSTITUTIONAL LAW AND HUMAN RIGHTS vol 8(2) (Reissue) PARA 711 et seq; PARLIAMENT vol 78 (2010) PARAS 1028-1031.

C. OMBUDSMAN SCHEME

(A) GENERALLY

465. The ombudsman scheme.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. A new legal complaints scheme (the 'ombudsman scheme')² is introduced by the Legal Services Act 2007 under which complaints which:

- 295 (1) relate to an act or omission of a person (the 'respondent')³ in carrying on an activity⁴; and
- 296 (2) are within the jurisdiction of the scheme⁵, may be resolved quickly and with minimum formality by an independent person⁶.

Under the scheme redress may be provided to the complainant⁷ but no disciplinary action may be taken against the respondent⁸.

The scheme is to be administered by the Office for Legal Complaints⁹.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 ss 113, 115 are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 The scheme is to be operated under a name (which must include the word 'ombudsman') chosen by the Office for Legal Complaints: Legal Services Act 2007 s 115(3).

3 As to the meaning of 'respondent' see PARA 466 note 3.

4 Legal Services Act 2007 s 113(1)(a).

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 113(1)(b). As to when a complaint is within the jurisdiction of the scheme see s 125; and PARA 466.

6 Legal Services Act 2007 s 113(1).

7 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 157 (see PARA 386) prevents provision relating to redress being included in the regulatory arrangements of an approved regulator, or licensing rules made by the Legal Services Board in its capacity as a licensing authority: s 113(3). As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358. As to the Legal Services Board see s 2; and PARAS 303-326. 'Complainant', in relation to a complaint, means the person who makes the complaint: s 160. As to the modification of references to the complainant in Pt 6 (ss 112-161) see s 132(4); and PARA 470 note 5. As to the meaning of 'licensing authority' see PARA 1478 and as to licensing authorities generally see PARA 1478 et seq. As to the meaning of 'licensing rules' see PARA 1498 and as to licensing rules generally see PARA 1498 et seq.

8 Legal Services Act 2007 s 113(2). But neither the scheme nor any provision made by Pt 6 (ie ss 112-161) affects any power of an approved regulator, or the Legal Services Board in its capacity as a licensing authority, to take disciplinary action: s 113(4). 'Disciplinary action' means the imposition of sanctions, in respect of a breach of conduct rules or discipline rules, on a person who is an authorised person in relation to an activity which is a reserved legal activity: s 113(5). As to the meaning of 'authorised person' in relation to activities which are reserved legal activities see s 18; and PARA 515. As to the meaning of 'conduct rules' see PARA 377 note 5. As to the meaning of 'discipline rules' see PARA 369 note 8.

9 Legal Services Act 2007 s 115(2). As to the Office for Legal Complaints see s 114; and PARA 442. The scheme is to be administered by the Office in accordance with the Pt 6 (ss 112-161) and with scheme rules made by the Office: s 115(1). 'Scheme rules' means rules made by the Office for Legal Complaints: s 115(2). As to scheme rules see PARA 471.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/1. Acts and omissions by employees.

469. Acts and omissions by employees.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. For the purposes of the ombudsman scheme², any act or omission by a person in the course of the person's employment is to be treated as also an act or omission by the person's employer, whether or not it was done with the employer's knowledge or approval³.

For the purposes of the ombudsman scheme⁴, any act or omission by a partner in a partnership in the course of carrying on, in the usual way, business of the kind carried on by the partnership is to be treated as also an act or omission by the partnership⁵. However this does not apply if the partner had no authority to act for the partnership and the person purporting to rely on that subsection knew, at the time of the act or omission, that the partner had no such authority⁶.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 131 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

470. Continuity of complaints.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The ability of a person to make a complaint about an act or omission of a partnership or other unincorporated body is not affected by any change in the membership of the partnership or body². Scheme rules must make provision determining the circumstances in which, for the purposes of the ombudsman scheme, an act or omission of a person ('A') is, where A ceases to exist and another person ('B') succeeds to the whole or substantially the whole of the business of A, to be treated as an act or omission of B³.

Such rules must, in relation to cases where an act or omission of A is treated as an act or omission of B, make provision about the treatment of complaints under the ombudsman scheme which are outstanding against A at the time A ceases to exist⁴. Scheme rules must also make provision permitting such persons as may be specified in the rules to continue a complaint made by a person who has died or is otherwise unable to act⁵.

Operation of the ombudsman scheme.

471. Operation of the ombudsman scheme.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Scheme rules must set out the procedure for the making of complaints under the ombudsman scheme² and the investigation, consideration and determination of complaints by an ombudsman³.

The rules may (among other things) make provision:

- 307 (1) for the whole or part of a complaint to be dismissed, in specified circumstances, without consideration of its merits⁴;
- 308 (2) for the reference of a complaint, in specified circumstances and with the consent of the complainant, to another body with a view to it being determined by that body instead of by an ombudsman⁵;
- 309 (3) for a person who, at the relevant time⁶ was an authorised person in relation to an activity to be treated in specified circumstances, for the purposes of the scheme⁷, as if that person were a co-respondent in relation to a complaint⁸;
- 310 (4) about the evidence which may be required or admitted and the extent to which it should be oral or written⁹;
- 311 (5) for requiring parties to the complaint to attend to give evidence and produce documents, and for authorising the administration of oaths by ombudsmen¹⁰;
- 312 (6) about the matters which are to be taken into account in determining whether an act or omission was fair and reasonable¹¹;
- 313 (7) for an ombudsman, in such circumstances as may be specified, to award expenses to persons in connection with attendance at a hearing before an ombudsman¹²;
- 314 (8) for an ombudsman to award costs against the respondent in favour of the complainant¹³;
- 315 (9) for an ombudsman to award costs against the complainant or the respondent in favour of the Office for Legal Complaints¹⁴ for the purpose of providing a contribution to resources deployed in dealing with the complaint, if in the ombudsman's opinion that person acted so unreasonably in relation to the complaint that it is appropriate in all the circumstances of the case to make such an award¹⁵;
- 316 (10) for the purpose of facilitating the settlement of a complaint with the agreement of the parties to it¹⁶;
- 317 (11) for specified persons to be notified of complaints, determinations and directions under the ombudsman scheme¹⁷.

No person may be required by scheme rules to provide any information or give any evidence which that person could not be compelled to provide or give in evidence in civil proceedings before the High Court or to produce any document which that person could not be compelled to produce in such proceedings¹⁸.

4 Legal Services Act 2007 s 133(3)(a). The circumstances specified under s 133(3)(a) may include the following:

- 204 (1) the ombudsman considers the complaint or part to be frivolous or vexatious or totally without merit (s 133(4)(a));
- 205 (2) the ombudsman considers that the complaint or part would be better dealt with under another ombudsman scheme, by arbitration or by other legal proceedings (s 133(4)(b));
- 206 (3) the ombudsman considers that there has been undue delay in the making of the complaint or part, or the provision of evidence to support it (s 133(4)(c));
- 207 (4) the ombudsman is satisfied that the matter which is the subject of the complaint or part has previously been dealt with under another ombudsman scheme, by arbitration or by other legal proceedings (s 133(4)(d));
- 208 (5) the ombudsman considers that there are other compelling reasons why it is inappropriate for the complaint or part to be dealt with under the ombudsman scheme (s 133(4)(e)).

(C) DETERMINATIONS UNDER THE SCHEME

475. Determination of complaints.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. A complaint is to be determined under the ombudsman scheme² by reference to what is, in the opinion of the ombudsman making the determination, fair and reasonable in all the circumstances of the case³.

The determination may contain one or more of the following:

- 331 (1) a direction that the respondent⁴ make an apology to the complainant⁵;
- 332 (2) a direction that the fees to which the respondent is entitled in respect of the services to which the complaint relates (the 'fees') are limited to such amount as may be specified in the direction and the respondent comply, or secure compliance, with such one or more of the permitted requirements as appear to the ombudsman to be necessary in order for effect to be given to the direction⁶;
- 333 (3) a direction that the respondent pay compensation to the complainant of such an amount as is specified in the direction in respect of any loss which has been suffered by, or any inconvenience or distress which has been caused to, the complainant as a result of any matter connected with the complaint⁷;
- 334 (4) a direction that the respondent secure the rectification, at the expense of the respondent, of any such error, omission or other deficiency arising in connection with the matter in question as the direction may specify⁸;
- 335 (5) a direction that the respondent take, at the expense of the respondent, such other action in the interests of the complainant as the direction may specify⁹.

The power of the ombudsman to make a direction under heads (1) to (5) above is not confined to cases where the complainant may have a cause of action against the respondent for negligence¹⁰.

Where a determination is made under the ombudsman scheme in respect of a complaint, the total value of directions under heads (3) to (5) above contained in the determination must not exceed £30,000¹¹.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 ss 137-139 are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the ombudsman scheme see PARA 465.

3 Legal Services Act 2007 s 137(1).

4 As to the meaning of 'respondent' see PARA 466 note 3.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 137(2)(a). As to the meaning of 'complainant' see PARA 465 note 7.

6 Legal Services Act 2007 s 137(2)(b). For the purposes of s 137(2)(b) the 'permitted requirements' are:

- 209 (1) that the whole or part of any amount already paid by or on behalf of the complainant in respect of the fees be refunded (s 137(3)(a));
- 210 (2) that the whole or part of the fees be remitted (s 137(3)(b));
- 211 (3) that the right to recover the fees be waived, whether wholly or to any specified extent (s 137(3)(c)).

Where a direction is made under s 137(2)(b) which requires that the whole or part of any amount already paid by or on behalf of the complainant in respect of the fees be refunded the direction may also provide for the amount payable under the direction to carry interest from a time specified in or determined in accordance with the direction, at the rate specified in or determined in accordance with scheme rules: s 137(4).

7 Legal Services Act 2007 s 137(2)(c). Where a direction is made under s 137(2)(c) the direction may also provide for the amount payable under the direction to carry interest from a time specified in or determined in accordance with the direction, at the rate specified in or determined in accordance with scheme rules: s 137(4).

8 Legal Services Act 2007 s 137(2)(d).

9 Legal Services Act 2007 s 137(2)(e).

10 Legal Services Act 2007 s 137(5).

11 Legal Services Act 2007 s 138(1). For this purpose the total value of such directions is the aggregate of the amount of any compensation specified in a direction under s 137(2)(c) and the amount of any expenses reasonably incurred by the respondent when complying with a direction under s 137(2)(d) or (e): s 138(2). For the purposes of determining that total value, any interest payable on an amount within s 137(2)(a), by virtue of s 137(4) (see note 7), is to be ignored: s 138(3). An interested body may, at any time, recommend to the Lord Chancellor that s 138(1) should be amended so as to substitute the amount specified in the recommendation for the amount for the time being specified in that provision and the Lord Chancellor may accordingly amend s 138(1) by order: s 139(1), (2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such orders had been made. An interested body must, if requested to do so by the Lord Chancellor, consider whether or not it is appropriate to make a recommendation under s 139(2): s 139(3). An interested body must, before making a recommendation under s 139(2) publish a draft of the proposed recommendation, invite representations regarding the proposed recommendation and consider any such representations which are made: s 139(4). Where the Lord Chancellor receives a recommendation under s 139(2), the Lord Chancellor must consider whether to follow the recommendation: s 139(5). If the Lord Chancellor decides not to follow the recommendation, the Lord Chancellor must publish a notice to that effect which includes the Lord Chancellor's reasons for the decision: s 139(6). For the purposes of s 139 'interested body' means the Office for Legal Complaints, the Legal Services Board or the Consumer Panel: s 139(7). As to notices generally see PARA 303 note 11. TEXT AND NOTE 1--Day appointed in relation to Legal Services Act 2007 s 137(4) is 1 January 2009: SI 2008/3149.

Acceptance or rejection of determination.

476. Acceptance or rejection of determination.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. When an ombudsman² has determined a complaint the ombudsman must prepare a written statement of the determination³. The statement must give the ombudsman's reasons for the determination, be signed by the ombudsman and require the complainant⁴ to notify the ombudsman, before a time specified in the statement (the 'specified time'), whether the complainant accepts or rejects the determination⁵. The ombudsman must give a copy of the statement to the complainant, the respondent⁶ and any relevant authorising body in relation to the respondent⁷.

If the complainant notifies the ombudsman that the determination is accepted by the complainant, it is binding on the respondent and the complainant and is final⁸. If, by the specified time, the complainant has not notified the ombudsman of the complainant's acceptance or rejection of the determination, the complainant is to be treated as having rejected it⁹. However if:

- 336 (1) the complainant notifies the ombudsman after the specified time that the determination is accepted by the complainant¹⁰;
- 337 (2) the complainant has not previously notified the ombudsman of the complainant's rejection of the determination¹¹; and
- 338 (3) the ombudsman is satisfied that such conditions as may be prescribed by the scheme rules for the purposes of this subsection are satisfied¹², the determination is treated as if it had never been rejected¹³.

The ombudsman must give notice of the outcome to the complainant, the respondent and any relevant authorising body in relation to the respondent¹⁴. A copy of the determination on which appears a certificate signed by an ombudsman is evidence that the determination was made under the scheme¹⁵.

The notice may require the information or documents to be provided or produced before the end of such reasonable period as may be specified in the notice and in the case of information, in such manner or form as may be so specified⁷.

An ombudsman may take copies of or extracts from a document produced and require the person producing the document to provide an explanation of it⁸.

220 (1) that there has been a serious failure by the relevant authorising body to discharge its regulatory functions (s 146(5)(a)); or

221 (2) if such a requirement has been imposed on the body on more than one occasion, that the relevant authorising body has persistently failed adequately to discharge its regulatory functions (s 146(5)(b)), the ombudsman may make a report to that effect to the Board: s 146(5).

494. Introduction.

Until a day to be appointed¹ the right to carry out certain legal activities² is governed by provisions of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990³. However, as from a day to be appointed⁴ the right to carry out certain legal services is mainly governed by provisions of the Legal Services Act 2007⁵. Until those provisions come into force⁶, a not for profit body, a community interest company or an independent trade union is entitled to carry on any activity which is a reserved legal activity⁷. Furthermore⁸ provision is also made⁹ for certain persons to be deemed to be authorised by approved regulators to carry on certain activities¹⁰.

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 ss 27-31A are repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 84(d), Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

(2) PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES UNDER THE

495. The statutory objective and the general principle.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions apply¹. The statutory objective of Part II of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990² is the development of legal services in England and Wales (and in particular the development of advocacy³, litigation⁴, conveyancing⁵ and probate services⁶) by making provision for new or better ways of providing such services and a wider choice of persons providing them, while maintaining the proper and efficient administration of justice⁷.

As a general principle, the question of whether a person should be granted a right of audience or a right to conduct litigation in relation to any court or proceedings should be determined only by reference to whether:

- 361 (1) he is qualified in accordance with the educational and training requirements appropriate to the court or proceedings⁸;
- 362 (2) he is a member⁹ of a professional or other body which has rules of conduct¹⁰ governing the conduct of its members, has an effective mechanism for enforcing those rules and is likely to enforce them¹¹;
- 363 (3) in the case of a body whose members are or will be providing advocacy services, the rules of conduct make satisfactory provision in relation to the court or proceedings in question requiring any such member not to withhold those services¹²;

- 1. (a) on the ground that the nature of the case is objectionable to him or to any section of the public;
- 2. (b) on the ground that the conduct, opinions or beliefs of the prospective client are unacceptable to him or to any section of the public;
- 3. (c) on any ground relating to the source of any financial support which may properly be given to the prospective client¹³ for the proceedings in question¹⁴; and

- 364 (4) in relation to the court or proceedings the rules of conduct are appropriate in the interests of the proper and efficient administration of justice¹⁵.

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 17 is repealed (and s 119(1) is amended so as to repeal the definition of 'statutory objective') by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 84(a), 97(1), (2), Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Pt II (ss 17-70): see the text and notes 3-15. See also PARA 496 et seq.

3 'Advocacy services' means any services which it would be reasonable to expect a person who is exercising, or contemplating exercising, a right of audience in relation to any proceedings, or contemplated proceedings, to provide: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119(1). 'Right of audience' means the right to appear before and address a court including the right to call and examine witnesses: s 119(1) (amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 6 paras 4, 10(1), (3)). 'Proceedings' means proceedings in any court: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119(1). As to the meaning of 'court' see PARA 426 note 12.

4 'Litigation services' means any services which it would be reasonable to expect a person who is exercising, or contemplating exercising, a right to conduct litigation in relation to any proceedings, or contemplated proceedings, to provide: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119(1). 'Right to conduct litigation' means the right:

222 (1) to issue proceedings before any court (s 119(1) (amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 6 paras 4, 10(1), (3))); and 223 (2) to perform any ancillary functions in relation to proceedings, such as entering appearances to actions (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119(1)).

As from a day to be appointed head (1) above is amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 97(1), (5) to apply to the issuing of proceedings in any court in England and Wales and the definition of the 'right to conduct litigation' also includes the right to commence, prosecute and defend such proceedings. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

5 'Conveyancing services' means the preparation of transfers, conveyances, contracts and other documents in connection with, and other services ancillary to, the disposition or acquisition of estates or interests in land: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119(1). For the purposes of the definition of conveyancing services, 'disposition' does not include a testamentary disposition or any disposition in the case of such a lease as is referred to in the Law of Property Act 1925 s 54(2) (short leases) but, subject to that, includes in the case of leases both their grant and their assignment; and 'acquisition' has a corresponding meaning: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119(2).

6 As to the meaning of 'probate services' see para 427 note 5.

7 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 17(1), (2) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

8 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 17(3)(a) (prospectively repealed: see note 1). As to the education and training of solicitors see PARA 646 et seq. As to the education and training of barristers see PARA 1060 et seq.

9 As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 351 note 3.

10 Ie however described: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 17(3)(b)(i) (prospectively repealed: see note 1). For these purposes, any references to rules of conduct include a reference to rules of practice: s 119(3).

11 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 17(3)(b) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

12 Rules of conduct which allow a member of the body in question to withhold his services if there are reasonable grounds for him to consider that, having regard to the circumstances of the case, the nature of his practice or his experience and standing, he is not being offered a proper fee, are not on that account to be taken as being incompatible with the principle set out in Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 17(3) ('general principle'): ss 17(4), (5), 119(1) (prospectively amended and repealed: see note 1).

13 Eg on the ground that such support will be available under the Legal Aid Act 1988 (see generally LEGAL AID): Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 17(3)(c)(iii) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

14 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 17(3)(c) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

15 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 17(3)(d) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

UPDATE

495-498 The statutory objective and the general principle ... Right to conduct litigation

Repeal of these provisions in force 1 January 2010: SI 2009/3250.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(2) PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES UNDER THE COURTS AND LEGAL SERVICES ACT 1990/497. General grounds for determining the exercise of rights of audience.

497. General grounds for determining the exercise of rights of audience.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The question whether a person has a right of audience² before a court³ or in relation to any proceedings⁴ is to be determined solely in accordance with the provisions of Part II⁵ of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990⁶.

A person has a right of audience before a court in relation to any proceedings only in the following cases:

- 369 (1) where he has a right of audience before that court in relation to those proceedings granted by the appropriate authorised body⁷, and that body's qualification regulations⁸ and rules of conduct⁹ have been approved for the purposes of these provisions in relation to that right¹⁰;
- 370 (2) where head (1) above does not apply but he has a right of audience before that court in relation to those proceedings granted by or under any enactment¹¹;
- 371 (3) where head (1) above does not apply but he has a right of audience granted by that court in relation to those proceedings¹²;
- 372 (4) where he is a party to the proceedings and would have had a right of audience, in his capacity as such a party, had the 1990 Act not been passed¹³; or
- 373 (5) where he is employed¹⁴ or is otherwise engaged to assist in the conduct of litigation and is doing so under instruction given¹⁵ by a qualified litigator¹⁶ and the proceedings are being heard in chambers in the High Court or a county court and are not reserved family proceedings¹⁷.

Every person who exercises before any court a right of audience granted by an authorised body has:

- 374 (a) a duty to the court to act with independence in the interests of justice¹⁸; and
- 375 (b) a duty to comply with rules of conduct of the body relating to the right and approved for the purposes of the rights of audience¹⁹;

and those duties must override any obligation which the person may have (otherwise than under the criminal law) if it is inconsistent with them²⁰.

Nothing in these provisions affects the power of any court in any proceedings to refuse to hear a person, for reasons which apply to him as an individual, who would otherwise have a right of audience before the court in relation to those proceedings²¹; but where a court so refuses to hear a person it must give its reason for refusing²².

Where a court does not permit²³ the appearance of advocates²⁴, or permits their appearance only with leave, no person has a right of audience before that court in relation to any proceedings solely by virtue of these provisions²⁵.

Certain statutory provisions relating to unqualified persons²⁶ do not apply in relation to any act done in the exercise of a right of audience²⁷.

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27 is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 84(a), Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 As to the meaning of 'right of audience' see PARA 495 note 3.

3 As to the meaning of 'court' see PARA 426 note 12.

4 As to the meaning of 'proceedings' see PARA 495 note 3.

5 In the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Pt II (ss 17-70): see PARAS 495, 497 et seq.

6 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(1). As to the general principle governing the grant of rights of audience and the statutory duty of those exercising the function of granting such rights see ss 17, 18; and PARAS 495-496. As to the offences of acting in the purported exercise of a right of audience or pretending to be entitled to exercise rights of audience see PARAS 584-585. The Restrictive Practices Court Act 1976 s 8 (prospectively repealed by the Competition Act 1998 Sch 14 Pt 1) gives a right of audience before the restrictive practices court but this court no longer functions.

7 For these purposes, 'authorised body' means:

224 (1) the Bar Standards Board (see PARA 1049) (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(9));

225 (2) the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619 et seq) (s 27(9)); and

226 (3) any professional or other body which has been designated by Order in Council as an authorised body for such purposes (s 27(9)).

The wording in the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(9) in head (1) above refers to the General Council of the Bar, and in head (2) above refers to the Law Society. However in practice the body responsible for the regulation of barristers is the Bar Standards Board (see PARA 1049), and the body responsible for the regulation of solicitors is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619 et seq). 'Appropriate authorised body', in relation to any person claiming to be entitled to any right of audience by virtue of s 27(2)(a) (see head (1) in the text) means the authorised body granting that right and of which that person is a member: s 27(9). As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 351 note 3. Any person (including a barrister or solicitor) who has a right of audience granted by an authorised body in accordance with the provisions of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 is referred to therein as an 'authorised advocate': see s 119(1) (definition prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 97(1), (2), Sch 23). As to the meaning of 'barrister' see PARA 1033 and as to barristers generally see PARA 1033 et seq. As to the meaning of 'solicitor' see PARA 600 note 1 and as to solicitors generally see PARA 600 et seq. An authorised advocate may be entitled to examine any witness at an inquest: see the Coroners Rules 1984, SI 1984/552, r 20(1); and CORONERS vol 9(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1023.

8 For these purposes, 'qualification regulations', in relation to an authorised body, means regulations (however they may be described) as to the education and training which members of that body must receive in order to be entitled to, or to exercise, any right of audience granted by it: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(9). As to the education and training of solicitors see PARA 646 et seq.

9 For these purposes, 'rules of conduct', in relation to an authorised body, means rules (however they may be described) as to the conduct required of members of that body in exercising any right of audience granted by it: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(9). In any Act any reference to rules of conduct (including until a day to be appointed those references in ss 27(9), 28(5) and as from a day to be appointed the Legal Services Act 2007 s 21 (see PARA 377)) includes a reference to rules of practice: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119(3) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 97(1), (6)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to rules of conduct generally see PARA 495.

- 16 For these purposes, 'qualified litigator' means:
- 241 (1) any practising solicitor (ie one who has a practising certificate in force or is employed wholly or mainly for the purpose of providing legal services to his employer (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(9) (amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 6 paras 4, 6(1), (4) (b)));
 - 242 (2) any recognised body (ie any body recognised under the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9 (incorporated practices: see PARA 688)) (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(9)); and
 - 243 (3) any person who is exempt from the requirement to hold a practising certificate by virtue of the Solicitors Act 1974 s 88 (saving for solicitors to public departments and the City of London: see PARA 642) (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(9)).
- 17 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(2)(e). For these purposes, 'family proceedings' has the same meaning as in the Matrimonial and Family Proceedings Act 1984 and includes any other proceedings which are family proceedings for the purposes of the Children Act 1989; and 'reserved family proceedings' means such category of family proceedings as the Secretary of State may, after consulting the president of the Law Society and with the concurrence of the President of the Family Division, by order prescribe: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27(9) (amended by SI 2003/1887). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such order had been made.

495-498 The statutory objective and the general principle ... Right to conduct litigation

Repeal of these provisions in force 1 January 2010: SI 2009/3250.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(2) PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES UNDER THE COURTS AND LEGAL SERVICES ACT 1990/498. Right to conduct litigation.

498. Right to conduct litigation.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The question whether a person has a right to conduct litigation², or any category of litigation, is to be determined solely in accordance with the provisions of Part II³ of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990⁴.

A person has a right to conduct litigation in relation to any proceedings⁵ only in the following cases:

- 376 (1) where he has a right to conduct litigation in relation to those proceedings granted by the appropriate authorised body⁶ and that body's qualification regulations⁷ and rules of conduct⁸ have been approved for those purposes in relation to that right⁹;
- 377 (2) where head (1) above does not apply but he has a right to conduct litigation in relation to those proceedings granted by or under any enactment¹⁰;
- 378 (3) where head (1) above does not apply but he has a right to conduct litigation granted by that court¹¹ in relation to those proceedings¹²;
- 379 (4) where he is a party to those proceedings and would have had a right to conduct the litigation, in his capacity as such, if the 1990 Act had not been passed¹³.

Every person who exercises in relation to proceedings in any court a right to conduct litigation granted by an authorised body has:

- 380 (a) a duty to the court to act with independence in the interests of justice¹⁴; and
- 381 (b) a duty to comply with rules of conduct of the body relating to the right and approved for the purposes of the rights to conduct litigation¹⁵;

and those duties must override any obligation which the person may have (otherwise than under the criminal law) if it is inconsistent with them¹⁶.

Where, immediately before 1 January 1991, no restriction was placed on the persons entitled to exercise any right to conduct litigation in relation to a particular court, or in relation to particular proceedings, nothing in these provisions is to be taken to place any such restriction on any person¹⁷.

Certain statutory provisions relating to unqualified persons¹⁸ do not apply in relation to any act done in the exercise of a right to conduct litigation¹⁹.

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28 is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 84(a), Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 As to the meaning of 'right to conduct litigation' see PARA 495 note 4.

3 ie the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Pt II (ss 17-70): see PARAS 495-497, 499 et seq.

4 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(1) (prospectively repealed: see note 1). As to the general principle governing the grant of rights to conduct litigation and the statutory duty of those exercising the function of granting such rights see ss 17, 18; and PARAS 495-496. As to the offences of acting in the purported exercise of rights of litigation or pretending to be entitled to conduct litigation see PARAS 584-585. Nothing in s 28 must be taken to require the Bar Standards Board or the Institute of Legal Executives to grant a right to conduct litigation: s 28(5A) (added by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 40(1), (3); and prospectively repealed). The wording in the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(5A) refers to the General Council of the Bar. However in practice the body responsible for the regulations of barristers is the Bar Standards Board: see PARA 1049.

5 As to the meaning of 'proceedings' see PARA 495 note 2.

6 For these purposes, 'authorised body' means:

- 244 (1) the Solicitors Regulation Authority (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(5) (prospectively repealed: see note 1));
- 245 (2) the Bar Standards Board (s 28(5) (amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 40(1), (2)));
- 246 (3) the Institute of Legal Executives (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(5) (amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 40(1), (2); and prospectively repealed)); and
- 247 (4) any professional or other body which has been designated by Order in Council as an authorised body for such purposes (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(5); and prospectively repealed).

The wording in the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(5) in head (1) refers to the Law Society, and in head (2) refers to the General Council of the Bar. However in practice the body responsible for the regulation of solicitors is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619 et seq), and the body responsible for the regulation of barristers is the Bar Standards Board (see PARA 1049). The Association of Law Costs Draftsmen has been designated by Order in Council as an authorised body for the purposes of s 28: see the Association of Law Costs Draftsmen Order 2006, SI 2006/3333, art 3. 'Appropriate authorised body', in relation to any person claiming to be entitled to any right to conduct litigation by virtue of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(2)(a) (see head (1) in the text) means the authorised body granting that right and of which that person is a member: s 28(5) (as so prospectively repealed). As to the meaning of 'member' see PARA 351 note 3. Any person (including a solicitor) who has a right to conduct litigation granted by an authorised body in accordance with the provisions of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 is referred to therein as an 'authorised litigator': see s 119(1) (definition prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 97(1), (2), Sch 23). Cf PARA 497 note 7. As to the meaning of 'solicitor' see PARA 600 note 1 and as to solicitors generally see PARA 600 et seq.

7 For these purposes, 'qualification regulations', in relation to an authorised body, means regulations (however they may be described) as to the education and training which members of that body must receive in order to be entitled to, or exercise, any right to conduct litigation granted by it: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(5) (prospectively repealed: see note 1). As to the education and training of solicitors see PARA 646 et seq. Cf PARA 497 note 8. As to the education and training of barristers see PARA 1060. As to the education and training of legal executives see PARAS 1469-1470.

8 For these purposes, 'rules of conduct', in relation to any authorised body, means rules (however they may be described) as to the conduct required of members of that body in exercising any right to conduct litigation granted by it: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(5) (prospectively repealed: see note 1). In any Act any reference to rules of conduct (including until a day to be appointed those references in ss 27(9), 28(5) and as from a day to be appointed the Legal Services Act 2007 s 21 (see PARA 377)) includes a reference to rules of practice: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 119(3) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 97(1), (6)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to rules of conduct generally see PARA 495.

9 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(2)(a) (amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 6 paras 4, 7(1), (2), Sch 15 Pt II; prospectively repealed (see note 1)).

10 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(2)(b) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

11 As to the meaning of 'court' see PARA 426 note 12.

12 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(2)(c) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

13 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(2)(d) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

14 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(2A)(a) (added by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 42(2); prospectively repealed (see note 1)).

15 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(2A)(b) (as added (see note 14); prospectively repealed (see note 1)).

16 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(2A) (as added (see note 14); prospectively repealed (see note 1)). A court may not limit the right to conduct litigation in relation to proceedings before the court to only some of those who have the right by virtue of s 28: s 28(4A) (added by the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 6 paras 4, 7(1), (3); as so prospectively repealed).

17 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(4) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

18 Ie the Solicitors Act 1974 s 20 (prospectively repealed) (unqualified person not to act as a solicitor: see PARA 589); s 22 (prospectively repealed) (unqualified person not to prepare certain documents: see PARA 595) and s 25 (costs where an unqualified person acts as a solicitor: see PARA 590): Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 28(6).

Regulation of right of Scottish and Northern Ireland lawyers to practise in England and Wales.

499. Regulation of right of Scottish and Northern Ireland lawyers to practise in England and Wales.

The Secretary of State¹ may by regulations prescribe circumstances in which, and conditions subject to which, a practitioner² who is qualified to practise in Scotland or Northern Ireland may, in such capacity as may be prescribed, exercise in England and Wales³:

- 382 (1) prescribed rights of audience⁴; or
- 383 (2) prescribed rights to conduct litigation⁵, without being entitled to do so apart from the regulations⁶.

He may also by regulations make provision for the purpose of enabling practitioners who are qualified to practise in Scotland or Northern Ireland to become qualified to practise in England and Wales on terms, and subject to conditions, corresponding or similar to those on which practitioners who are qualified to practise in member states of the European Community may become qualified to practise in that jurisdiction⁷.

Regulations made under these provisions may modify any rule of law or practice which the Secretary of State⁸ considers should be modified in order to give effect to the regulations⁹.

As from a day to be appointed¹⁰ regulations may be made under the above provisions¹¹ only if:

- 384 (a) the Legal Services Board¹² has made a recommendation¹³;
- 385 (b) draft regulations were annexed to the recommendation¹⁴;
- 386 (c) the regulations are in the same form as, or a form not materially different from, the draft regulations¹⁵.

1 As from a day to be appointed the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 60 is amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 para 83, 89(a), (b), (d) so that the functions carried out by the Secretary of State under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 60 are instead carried out by the Lord Chancellor. - 249 (2) any person falling within such category as may be prescribed (s 60(5)(b)).

As from a day to be appointed the words 'solicitor of the Supreme Court of Northern Ireland' in head (1) above are replaced by the words 'solicitor of the Court of Judicature of Northern Ireland' by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 3. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the meaning of 'solicitor' see PARA 600 note 1 and as to solicitors generally see PARA 600 et seq.

6 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 60(1). Such regulations may, in particular:

- 250 (1) prescribe any right of audience which may not be exercised by a person in England and Wales unless he is instructed to act together with a person who has that right of audience there (s 60(3)(a));
- 251 (2) prescribe legal services which may not be provided by any person practising by virtue of the regulations (s 60(3)(b));
- 252 (3) prescribe the title or description which must be used by any person practising by virtue of the regulations (s 60(3)(c));
- 253 (4) provide for the means by which the qualification of any person claiming to be entitled to practise by virtue of the regulations is to be verified (s 60(3)(d));
- 254 (5) provide for such professional or other body as may be prescribed to have power to investigate and deal with any complaint made against a person practising by virtue of the regulations (s 60(3)(e)).

The draft must be accompanied by a notice which states that representations about the proposals may be made to the Board within a specified period: s 60A(2) (as so prospectively added). Before making the recommendation, the Board must have regard to any representations duly made: s 60A(3) (so prospectively added). If the draft regulations to be annexed to the recommendation differ from the draft regulations previously published in a way which is, in the opinion of the Board, material, the Board must, before making the recommendation, publish the draft recommendations along with a statement detailing the changes made and the reasons for the changes: s 60A(4).

in the revocation of approval for the purposes of probate

Repeal of these provisions in force 1 January 2010: SI 2009/3250.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. Role of Consultative Panel in the revocation of approval for the purposes of probate.

506. Role of Consultative Panel in the revocation of approval for the purposes of probate.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where the Secretary of State is considering whether to make a revoking order on certain grounds² he must seek the advice of the Consultative Panel and the Consultative Panel must carry out such investigations with respect to the approved body as it considers appropriate³.

Where the Secretary of State has not sought the advice of the Consultative Panel but the Consultative Panel has reason to believe that there may be grounds for recommending that a revoking order be made with respect to an approved body⁴, it may carry out such investigations with respect to the approved body as it considers appropriate⁵.

If, on concluding any investigation carried out under these provisions the Consultative Panel considers that there are grounds for recommending the making of a revoking order with respect to the approved body concerned, it must advise the Secretary of State accordingly⁶.

If the Consultative Panel advises the Secretary of State that there are grounds for recommending the making of a revoking order with respect to an approved body, the Secretary of State must send written notice of that advice, and of the effect of such an order, to that body⁷.

It is the duty of the Secretary of State to consider any advice given to him by the Consultative Panel under the above provisions⁸ and, having done so, the Secretary of State must send to the President a copy of any such advice⁹ and inform the President of his view as to whether or not a revoking order with respect to the approved body concerned should be made¹⁰.

It is the duty of the President to consider the information sent to him by the Secretary of State, to inform the Secretary of State of his own decision in the matter and to give his reasons, in writing, for his decision¹¹.

No revoking order is to be made with respect to the approved body unless the Secretary of State and the President agree that it should be made¹².

No person is to be required to provide any such information, or produce any copy of a document, which he could not be compelled to provide or produce in civil proceedings before a court: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 9 para 8(2). THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(3) RESERVED LEGAL ACTIVITIES UNDER THE LEGAL SERVICES ACT 2007/(i) Introduction/510. Court's right to refuse right to conduct litigation and right of audience.

510. Court's right to refuse right to conduct litigation and right of audience.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Nothing in the Legal Services Act 2007 affects the power of any court in any proceedings to refuse to hear a person (for reasons which apply to that person as an individual) who would otherwise have a right of audience before the court in relation to those proceedings². Where a court so refuses to hear a person it must give its reasons for doing so³.

However a court may not limit the right to appear before the court in any proceedings, or the right to conduct litigation in relation to proceedings before the court, to only some of those who are entitled to exercise that right by virtue of the Legal Services Act 2007⁴.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 192 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 Legal Services Act 2007 s 192(1). As to the meaning of 'right of audience' see PARA 512 note 3. Where immediately before the commencement of s 13 (entitlement to carry on reserved legal activities) (see PARA 509), or by virtue of any provision made by or under an enactment passed subsequently, a court does not permit the appearance of advocates, or permits the appearance of advocates only with leave, no person may exercise a right of audience before the court, in relation to any proceedings, solely by virtue of being entitled to do so under the Legal Services Act 2007: s 192(3). For the purposes of s 192 'advocate', in relation to any proceedings, means a person exercising a right of audience as a representative of, or on behalf of, any party to the proceedings: s 192(6).

511. Legal professional privilege.

any communication, document⁸, material or information relating to the provision of services in question is privileged from disclosure in like manner as if P had at all material times been acting as P's client's solicitor⁹.

Where a licensed body provides services to a client and the individual ('E') through whom the body provides those services is a relevant lawyer¹⁰, or acts at the direction and under the supervision of a relevant lawyer (the 'supervisor'), any communication, document, material or information relating to the provision of the services in question is privileged from disclosure only if, and to the extent that, it would have been privileged from disclosure if the services had been provided by E or, if E is not a relevant lawyer, by the supervisor and at all material times the client had been the client of E or, if E is not a relevant lawyer, of the supervisor¹¹.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 190 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'barrister' see PARA 1033.

This applies whether or not the legal professional privilege provisions have been brought into force for other purposes: Sch 22 para 17(2). The relevant period is the period which begins when the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A comes into force and ends when Sch 5 para 7 ceases to apply in relation to the body: Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 22 para 17(3). During a transitional period s 190(5)(h) is modified: see Sch 22 para 17(5). For the purposes of Sch 22 para 15 the 'transitional period' means the period which begins with the day on which the Administration of Justice Act 1985 ss 9, 9A, 32 and 32A (as amended and substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Schs 16, 17) come into force, and ends with the day appointed for the coming into force of s 13 (entitlement to carry on a reserved legal activity): Sch 22 para 15(3).

4 Legal Services Act 2007 s 190(1)(a). For these purposes 'advocacy services' means any services which it would be reasonable to expect a person who is exercising, or contemplating exercising, a right of audience in relation to any proceedings, or contemplated proceedings, to provide: s 190(6). 509-514 Introduction ... Employed advocates

These provisions have effect for all purposes as from 1 January 2010: SI 2009/3250.

511-512 Legal professional privilege, Meaning of reserved legal activity

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(3) RESERVED LEGAL ACTIVITIES UNDER THE LEGAL SERVICES ACT 2007/(ii) Reserved Legal Activities/512. Meaning of 'reserved legal activity'.

(ii) Reserved Legal Activities

512. Meaning of 'reserved legal activity'.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. 'Reserved legal activity'² means:

- 405 (1) the exercise of a right of audience³;
- 406 (2) the conduct of litigation⁴;
- 407 (3) reserved instrument activities⁵;
- 408 (4) probate activities⁶;
- 409 (5) notarial activities⁷;
- 410 (6) the administration of oaths⁸.

The Lord Chancellor may, by order, amend provisions of the Legal Services Act 2007⁹ so as to add any legal activity to the activities which are reserved legal activities¹⁰.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 ss 12, 24 are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed for all purposes, but the definition of 'reserved legal activity' had been brought into force for the purposes of ss 1 (see PARA 302), 69(4)(as modified: see PARA 375), Sch 1 para 2(3)-(5) (see PARAS 304, 305), and Sch 22 para 2(6), (7)(b) (see PARA 303): see the Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 1 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/222, art 3. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 'Legal activity' means:

- 274 (1) an activity which is a reserved legal activity within the meaning of the Legal Services Act 2007 as originally enacted (s 12(2)(a)); and
- 275 (2) any other activity which consists of one or both of the following:
 - 1. (a) the provision of legal advice or assistance in connection with the application of the law or with any form of resolution of legal disputes (s 12(b)(i));
 - 2. (b) the provision of representation in connection with any matter concerning the application of the law or any form of resolution of legal disputes (s 12(b)(ii)).

However 'legal activity' does not include any activity of a judicial or quasi-judicial nature (including acting as a mediator): s 12(4). For the purposes of s 12(3) 'legal dispute' includes a dispute as to any matter of fact the resolution of which is relevant to determining the nature of any person's legal rights or liabilities: s 12(5). For the purposes of Pt 6 (ss 112-161) (and ss 1, 21, 27 as they apply in relation to Pt 6) regulated claims management services are to be treated as a reserved legal activity: s 161(1)(b). As to the meaning of 'regulated claims management services' see the Compensation Act 2006 s 4(2)(e); and DAMAGES (definition applied by the Legal Services Act 2007 s 161(4)). Services provided by a person which consist of or include reserved legal activities carried on by, or on behalf of, that person are 'reserved legal services' for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007: see s 207(1).

3 Legal Services Act 2007 s 12(1)(a). 'Right of audience' means the right to appear before and address a court, including the right to call and examine witnesses, but it does not include a right to appear before or address a court, or to call or examine witnesses, in relation to any particular court or in relation to particular proceedings, if immediately before the appointed day no restriction was placed on the persons entitled to exercise that right: Sch 2 para 3. For the purposes of Sch 2 'appointed day' means the day appointed for the coming into force of s 13 (see PARA 509): Sch 2 para 2. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the overriding duty a person exercising a right of audience owes to the court see PARA 513. As to employed advocates see PARA 514. As to when a person is exempt for the purposes of the right of audience see Sch 3 para 1; and PARA 517. As to bodies which are approved regulators in relation to the right of audience see PARAS 359-360. As to the meaning of 'court' see PARA 302 note 13. As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358.

4 Legal Services Act 2007 s 12(1)(b). 'Conduct of litigation' means the issuing of proceedings before any court in England and Wales, the commencement, prosecution and defence of such proceedings and the performance of any ancillary functions in relation to such proceedings (such as entering appearances to actions): Sch 2 para 4(1). However 'conduct of litigation' does not include any activity, in relation to any particular court or in relation to any particular proceedings, if immediately before the appointed day no restriction was placed on the persons entitled to carry on that activity: Sch 2 para 4(2). As to the overriding duty a person conducting litigation owes to the court see PARA 513. As to when a person is exempt for the purposes of carrying on any activity which constitutes the conduct of litigation see Sch 3 para 2; and PARA 518. As to bodies which are approved regulators in relation to the conduct of litigation see PARAS 359-360.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 12(1)(c). 'Reserved instrument activities' means:

- 276 (1) preparing any instrument of transfer or charge for the purposes of the Land Registration Act 2002 (see LAND REGISTRATION) (Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 2 para 5(1)(a));
- 277 (2) making an application or lodging a document for registration under the Land Registration Act 2002 (Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 2 para 5(1)(b));
- 278 (3) preparing any other instrument relating to real or personal estate for the purposes of the law of England and Wales or instrument relating to court proceedings in England and Wales (Sch 2 para 5(1)(c)).

However 'reserved instrument activities' does not include the preparation of an instrument relating to any particular court proceedings if, immediately before the appointed day, no restriction was placed on the persons entitled to carry on that activity: Sch 2 para 5(2). As to when a person is exempt for the purposes of carrying on any activity which constitutes reserved instrument activities see Sch 3 para 3; and PARA 519. As to bodies which are approved regulators in relation to reserved instrument activities see PARAS 359-360.

6 Legal Services Act 2007 s 12(1)(d). 'Probate activities' means preparing any probate papers for the purposes of the law of England and Wales or in relation to any proceedings in England and Wales: Sch 2 para 6(1). For these purposes 'probate papers' means papers on which to found or oppose a grant of probate or a grant of letters of administration: Sch 2 para 6(2). As to when a person is exempt for the purposes of carrying on any activity which constitutes probate activities see Sch 3 para 3; and PARA 519. As to bodies which are approved regulators in relation to probate activities see PARAS 359-360.

7 Legal Services Act 2007 s 12(1)(e). 'Notarial activities' means activities which, immediately before the appointed day, were customarily carried on by virtue of enrolment as a notary in accordance with the Public Notaries Act 1801 s 1 (see PARA 1418): Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 2 para 7(1). Schedule 2 para 7(1) does not include activities carried on by virtue of the Solicitors Act 1974 ss 22, 23 (see PARAS 592, 595) or by virtue of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 113 (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 1026): Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 2 para 7(2). As to when a person is exempt for the purposes of carrying on any activity which constitutes notarial activities see Sch 3 para 3; and PARA 519. As to bodies which are approved regulators in relation to notarial activities see PARAS 359-360.

8 Legal Services Act 2007 s 12(1)(f). 'Administration of oaths' means the exercise of the powers conferred on a commissioner for oaths by the Commissioners for Oaths Act 1889 (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARAS 1026-1027), the Commissioners for Oaths Act 1891 (see CIVIL PROCEDURE vol 11 (2009) PARA 1027), the Stamp Duties Management Act 1891 s 24 (see STAMP DUTIES AND STAMP DUTY RESERVE TAX vol 44(1) (Reissue) para 1110): Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 2 para 8. As to when a person is an exempt person for the purposes of the administration of oaths see Sch 3 para 6; and PARA 522. As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Where a person exercises before any court² a right of audience³, or conducts litigation⁴ in relation to proceedings⁵ in any court, by virtue of being an authorised person in relation to the activity in question⁶, then that person has a duty to the court in question to act with independence in the interests of justice⁷. That duty, and the duty to comply with relevant conduct rules⁸ override any obligations which the person may have (otherwise than under the criminal law) if they are inconsistent with them⁹.

UPDATE

509-514 Introduction ... Employed advocates

These provisions have effect for all purposes as from 1 January 2010: SI 2009/3250.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(3) RESERVED LEGAL ACTIVITIES UNDER THE LEGAL SERVICES ACT 2007/(iii) Authorised Persons/515. Authorised persons.

(iii) Authorised Persons

515. Authorised persons.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions apply¹. A person is entitled to carry on a relevant activity which is a reserved legal activity² where the person is an authorised person in relation to the relevant activity³. For the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007 an 'authorised person', in relation to an activity (the 'relevant activity') which is a reserved legal activity, means:

- 413 (1) a person who is authorised to carry on the relevant activity by a relevant approved regulator⁴ in relation to the relevant activity (other than by virtue of a licence under the Legal Services Act 2007 Part 5)⁵; or
- 414 (2) a licensable body which, by virtue of such a licence, is authorised to carry on the relevant activity by a licensing authority in relation to the reserved legal activity⁶.

However in the case of a person who is authorised by a listed body⁷ to exercise any right of audience before a court in relation to any proceedings or to conduct litigation in relation to any proceedings, it is irrelevant whether the person's authorisation was granted before or on or after the appointed day⁸. Likewise in the case of a licensed conveyancer who is authorised to carry on an activity which is a reserved instrument activity by a conveyancing licence⁹, it is irrelevant whether the licence was granted before or on or after the day on which the provisions entitling a person to carry on a reserved legal activity come into force¹⁰.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 18 and Sch 5 are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'reserved legal activity' see PARA 512. The following applies for the interpretation of references in the Legal Services Act 2007 to a person carrying on an activity which is a reserved legal activity: s 15(1). References to a person carrying on an activity which is a reserved legal activity include a person ('E') who is an employee of a person ('P') and carries on the activity in E's capacity as such an employee: s 15(2). It is irrelevant whether P is entitled to carry on the activity: s 15(3). P does not carry on an activity (the 'relevant activity') which is a reserved legal activity by virtue of E carrying it on in E's capacity as an employee of P, unless the provision of relevant services to the public or a section of the public (with or without a view to profit) is part of P's business: s 15(4). Relevant services are services which consist of or include the carrying on of the relevant activity by employees of P in their capacity as employees of P: s 15(5). Where P is an independent trade union, persons provided with relevant services do not constitute the public or a section of the public where:

- 281 (1) the persons are provided with the relevant services by virtue of their membership or former membership of P or of another person's membership or former membership of P (s 15(6)(a)); and
- 282 (2) the services are excepted membership services (s 15(6)(b)).

'Excepted membership services' means relevant services which relate to or have a connection with:

- 283 (a) relevant activities of a member, or former member, of the independent trade union (s 15(7)(a));

- 284 (b) any other activities carried on for the purposes of or in connection with, or arising from, such relevant activities (s 15(7)(b));
- 285 (c) any event which has occurred (or is alleged to have occurred) in the course of or in connection with such relevant activities or activities within head (b) (s 15(7)(c));
- 286 (d) activities carried on by a person for the purposes of or in connection with, or arising from, the person's membership of the independent trade union (s 15(7)(d)); and such other relevant services as the Lord Chancellor may by order specify: s 15(7).

In s 15(7) 'relevant activities', in relation to a person who is or was a member of an independent trade union, means any employment (including self-employment), trade, occupation or other activity to which the person's membership of the trade union relates or related: s 15(12).

The Lord Chancellor may by order make provision about the circumstances in which relevant services do or do not relate to, or have a connection with, the matters mentioned in heads (a)-(d) above: s 15(8).

Subject to that, the Lord Chancellor may by order make provision about:

- 287 (i) what does or does not constitute a section of the public (s 15(9)(a));
- 288 (ii) the circumstances in which the provision of relevant services to the public or a section of the public does or does not form part of P's business (s 15(9)(b)).

If P is a body, references to an employee of P include references to a manager of P: s 15(11). The Lord Chancellor may make an order under the above provisions only on the recommendation of the Legal Services Board: s 15(10). As to the meaning of 'manager' see PARA 369 note 17. Before determining whether it is appropriate to hold a section 24 investigation or a section 26 investigation in respect of an activity the Board may also seek the advice of the Lord Chief Justice⁷.

In deciding what advice to give, the Lord Chief Justice must, in particular, have regard to the likely impact on the courts in England and Wales of the making of such an order in respect of the activity in question⁸.

The Board must publish any advice given under the above provisions⁹.

(4) EUROPEAN LAWYERS

(i) Introduction

534. Introduction.

The Treaty Establishing the European Community (the 'EC Treaty') prohibits, within the parameters of a specified framework, restrictions on the freedom of establishment of nationals of member states in the territory of other member states¹ and on the freedom to provide services within the member states of the European Union².

Each member state is required to recognise as a lawyer for the purpose of the provision of services in its territory any person qualified as a lawyer in another member state, including a person qualified in the United Kingdom to practise as a barrister or a solicitor³; and all lawyers are entitled to pursue their professional activities on a permanent basis in any other member state under their home-country professional title⁴. A lawyer pursuing such activities must observe the rules of professional conduct of the host state without prejudice to his obligations in his home state⁵. Depending on circumstances, a host member state may require a lawyer qualified in another member state to be introduced to the presiding judge and, where appropriate, to the president of the local Bar, and to work in conjunction with a lawyer who practises before the judicial authority in question and who would, where necessary, be answerable to that authority⁶.

1 See the Treaty Establishing the European Community (Rome, 25 March 1957; TS 1 (1973); Cmnd 5179) arts 43-48 (formerly arts 52-58; renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam: see Treaty Citation (No 2) (Note) [1999] All ER (EC) 646, ECJ). These articles are concerned with the freedom of establishment of nationals of one member state in the territory of another member state. Article 43 includes the right to pursue self-employed occupations; and art 47 provides for the issue of directives for the mutual recognition of diplomas, certificates and other evidence of formal qualifications. See further EC Parliament and Council Directive 2005/36 (OJ L255, 30.09.05, p 22) on the recognition of professional qualifications; and the European Communities (Recognition of Professional Qualifications) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2781. It has been held that EC Treaty art 43 (as renumbered) is directly applicable and that freedom of establishment prevents a member state from denying, on the basis of the national legislation and the rules of professional conduct which are in force in that state, to a national of another member state the right to enter and exercise the legal profession solely on the ground that he is a foreign national, or that he maintains chambers simultaneously in another member state: see Case 2/74 Reyners v Belgian State [1974] ECR 631, [1974] 2 CMLR 305, ECJ; Case 107/83 Ordre des Avocats au Barreau de Paris v Klopp [1984] ECR 2971, [1985] 1 CMLR 99. See also Case 71/76 Thieffry v Conseil de l'Ordre des Avocats à la cour de Paris [1977] ECR 765, [1977] 2 CMLR 373. Provided, however, that it avoids discrimination against nationals of other member states, each member state is free, in the absence of specific rules in the matter, to regulate the exercise of the legal profession in its territory; thus a member state whose legislation requires lawyers wishing to establish themselves in its territory to be registered at a Bar may impose the same requirement on lawyers from other member states who rely on the right of establishment provided by the EC Treaty to establish themselves there: Case 292/86 Gullung v Conseil des Ordres des Avocats des Barreaux de Colmar et de Saverne [1990] 1 QB 234, [1988] ECR 111, ECJ.

2 See the EC Treaty arts 49-55 (formerly arts 59-66; renumbered by virtue of the Treaty of Amsterdam: see Treaty Citation (No 2) (Note) [1999] All ER (EC) 646, ECJ). These articles are concerned with the freedom to provide services within the member states. Article 50 includes activities of the professions in the provision of services.

3 EC Council Directive 77/249 (OJ L078, 26.3.77, p 17) to facilitate the effective exercise by lawyers of freedom to provide services, arts 1, 2; implemented in the United Kingdom by the European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910 (see PARA 536 et seq). Activities relating to the representation of a client in legal proceedings or before public authorities are to be pursued in each host member state under the conditions established for lawyers established in that state, with the exception of any conditions requiring residence or registration with a professional organisation in the host state: EC Council Directive 77/249 (OJ L078, 26.3.77, p 17) art 4(1); and see also Case 33/74 Van Binsbergen v Bestuur van de Bedrijfsvereniging voor de Metaalnijverheid [1974] ECR 1299, [1975] 1 CMLR 298, ECJ. As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1063 note 13.

EC Council Directive 77/249 (OJ L078, 26.3.77, p 17) cannot be relied upon by a lawyer established in one member state who wishes to provide services in another member state where he has been prohibited access to the legal profession for reasons relating to dignity, integrity and probity: Case 292/86 Gullung v Conseil des Ordres des Avocats des Barreaux de Colmar et de Saverne [1990] 1 QB 234, [1988] ECR 111, ECJ.

4 EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L077, 14.3.98, p 36) to facilitate practice of the profession of lawyer on a permanent basis in a member state other than that in which the qualification was obtained and implemented in the United Kingdom by the European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119 (see PARA 541 et seq). A lawyer wishing to practise in a member state other than that in which he obtained his professional qualification must register with the competent authority in that state: see EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L077, 14.3.98, p 36) art 3 implemented by the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 (see PARA 627).

5 EC Council Directive 77/249 (OJ L078, 26.3.77, p 17) art 4(2); EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L077, 14.3.98, p 36) art 6(1). A lawyer pursuing activities other than those relating to the representation of a client in legal proceedings remains subject to the rules of professional conduct of the state from which he comes, and must also adhere to the rules which govern the profession in the host state to the extent that such rules are capable of being observed by a lawyer who is not established in the host state and to the extent to which their observance is objectively justified: see EC Council Directive 77/249 (OJ L078, 26.3.77, p 17) art 4(4).

6 EC Council Directive 77/249 (OJ L078, 26.3.77, p 17) art 5; EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L077, 14.3.98, p 36) art 5(3). As to the extent to which a registered European lawyer may practise see PARA 678.

535. Meaning of 'European lawyer'.

A European lawyer is a person who is a national of the United Kingdom¹ or another specified state and who is authorised in any of those states to pursue professional activities under a specified professional title². The states (in addition to the United Kingdom) specified for these purposes are Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Cyprus, the Czech Republic, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Iceland, Italy, Latvia, Liechtenstein, Lithuania, Luxembourg, Malta, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, the Republic of Ireland, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland³. Solicitors and barristers of England and Wales or Northern Ireland, and solicitors and advocates under the law of Scotland, are not European lawyers for these purposes⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'United Kingdom' see PARA 1063 note 13. As to United Kingdom nationality see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM vol 4(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 7.

2 European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 2 (amended by SI 2004/1117); European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 2(1), (2)(a), (b); Consolidated Regulations (2007) Sch 1; Code of Conduct of the Bar of England and Wales (8th Edn, 2004) para 1001. For the titles attaching to persons who are authorised to pursue professional activities in these states for these purposes see European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 2 (amended by SI 2004/1117 and the European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 2(4) (as so amended)).

Where, however, a person is a European lawyer registered with more than one of the solicitors' professional bodies or the barristers' professional bodies or the Law Society of Scotland or the Faculty of Advocate and subsequently acquires the title used by members of one of those bodies, then for these purposes he continues to fall within the definition of a 'European lawyer' in relation to that other professional body for the period that he remains registered with that other professional body: European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 2(2)(c), (3).

(ii) European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978

536. Generally.

The European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978¹ has effect for the purpose of enabling a European Lawyer² to pursue his professional activities in any part of the United Kingdom by providing, under the conditions specified in or permitted by the EC Council Directive to facilitate the effective exercise by lawyers of the freedom to provide services³, services otherwise reserved to barristers and solicitors⁴.

1 Ie the European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910.

2 As to the meaning of 'European lawyer' see PARA 535.

3 Ie EC Council Directive 77/249 (OJ L078, 26.3.77, p 17).

4 European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 4 (amended by SI 2004/1117). 'Barrister' and 'solicitor' mean, in relation to any part of the United Kingdom, a person practising in that part as a barrister or solicitor as the case may be: art 2. As to the provision of services by a European lawyer by way of legal advice and assistance or legal aid see the European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 10; and LEGAL AID vol 65 (2008) PARA 10.

537. Representation in legal proceedings.

No enactment or rule of law or practice must prevent a European lawyer¹ from providing any service in relation to any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, before any court, tribunal or public authority (including appearing before and addressing the court, tribunal or public authority) by reason only that he is not a barrister or solicitor²; provided that throughout he is instructed with, and acts in conjunction with, a barrister or solicitor who is entitled to practise before the court, tribunal or public authority concerned and who could properly provide the service in question³.

Nothing in the European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978⁴ enables a European Lawyer, if he is instructed and acts in conjunction with a barrister in any proceedings, to provide in the course of those proceedings, or of any related proceedings, any service which a barrister could not properly provide⁵. Likewise nothing in the order enables a European Lawyer, if he is instructed with and acts in conjunction with a solicitor in any proceedings, to provide in the course of the those proceedings, or of any related proceedings, any service which a solicitor could not properly provide⁶.

1 As to the meaning of 'European lawyer' see PARA 535.

2 As to the meaning of 'barrister' and 'solicitor' see PARA 536 note 4.

3 European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 5 (amended by SI 2004/1117). A European lawyer is an exempt person for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007: see Sch 3 para 7; and PARA 523.

5 European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 6(b) (amended by SI 2004/1117). A European lawyer in salaried employment who is instructed with and acts in conjunction with a barrister in any proceedings may provide a service on behalf of his employer in those proceedings only in so far as a barrister in such employment could properly do so: European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 7 (amended by SI 2004/1117).

THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(4) EUROPEAN LAWYERS/(ii) European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978/538. Drawing of documents etc not related to legal proceedings.

538. Drawing of documents etc not related to legal proceedings.

No enactment or rule of law must prevent a European lawyer¹ from drawing or preparing for remuneration in England or Wales an instrument relating to personal estate by reason only that he is not a barrister or solicitor². Nothing in the European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978³ entitles a European lawyer to draw or prepare for remuneration any instrument creating or transferring an interest in land or for obtaining title to administer the estate of a deceased person⁴.

THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(4) EUROPEAN LAWYERS/(ii) European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978/539. Title, description and verification of status.

539. Title, description and verification of status.

In providing any services, a European lawyer¹ must use the professional title and description applicable to him in his country of origin, expressed in the language or one of the languages of that country, together with the name of the professional organisation by which he is authorised to practise or the court of law before which he is entitled to practise in that country².

A competent authority³ may at any time request a person seeking to provide any services to verify his status as a European lawyer⁴. Where such a request has been made, the person to whom it is made must not, except to the extent (if any) allowed by the competent authority making the request, be entitled to provide services in the United Kingdom until he has verified his status as a European lawyer to the satisfaction of that authority⁵.

1 As to the meaning of 'European lawyer' see PARA 535.

2 European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 11 (amended by SI 2004/1117).

3 For these purposes a competent authority in relation to England and Wales is:

323 (1) where the services which the person concerned seeks to provide are reserved to barristers, the Bar Standards Board (European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 14(a)); or

324 (2) where head (1) does not apply, the Solicitors Regulation Authority (art 14(b)); or 325 (3) in any case, any court, tribunal or public authority before which the person concerned seeks to provide services (art 14(c)).

540. Professional misconduct.

A complaint may be made to a disciplinary authority that a European lawyer¹ providing any services has failed to observe a condition or rule of professional conduct referred to in the relevant Council Directive² and applicable to him³.

Where such a complaint is made, the disciplinary authority⁴ concerned must consider and adjudicate upon it in accordance with the same procedure, and subject to the same rights of appeal, as apply in relation to a barrister or solicitor⁵ (as the case may be) over whom that authority has jurisdiction⁶.

Where a disciplinary authority finds that a European lawyer against whom such a complaint has been made has committed a breach of a condition or a rule of professional conduct mentioned in that article, that authority:

454 (1) must report that finding to the European lawyer's own professional authority⁷; and 455 (2) may, if it thinks fit, direct him not to provide services in the United Kingdom, except to such extent and under such conditions (if any) as the disciplinary authority may specify in the direction⁸.

1 As to the meaning of 'European lawyer' see PARA 535.

2 Ie EC Council Directive 77/249 (OJ L078, 26.3.77, p 17) art 4 (see PARA 534).

3 European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 15(1) (amended by SI 2004/1117).

4 A disciplinary authority in relation to England is:

326 (1) where the services in question are reserved to barristers an authority having disciplinary jurisdiction over barristers (European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 15(3)(a));

327 (2) where head (1) does not apply, an authority having disciplinary jurisdiction over solicitors in the part of the United Kingdom concerned (art 15(3)(b)).

5 As to the meaning of 'barrister' and 'solicitor' see PARA 536 note 4.

6 European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 15(2) (amended by SI 2004/1117).

7 European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 16(1)(a) (amended by SI 2004/1117).

8 European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910, art 16(1)(b). A disciplinary authority may at any time, if it thinks fit, vary, cancel or suspend the operation of a direction given by it under art 16(1)(b): art 16(2). A European lawyer in respect of whom a direction is made under art 16(1)(b) must not be entitled to provide services in the United Kingdom except as allowed by the direction: art 17.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(4) EUROPEAN LAWYERS/(iii) European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000/542. Registration.

542. Registration.

Each professional body¹ must establish and maintain a register of registered European lawyers². Subject to certain restrictions³, a European lawyer who wishes to pursue professional activities under his home professional title⁴ on a permanent basis in England and Wales must apply to be entered on the register maintained by a professional body⁵ and a professional body must enter on its register the name of a European lawyer who makes such an application⁶.

A European lawyer who wishes to register with a professional body must provide the professional body with a certificate confirming his registration with the competent authority in each home state under whose home professional title he intends to practise⁷.

An application for registration must comply with any applicable regulations made by the relevant professional body and be accompanied by the appropriate fee⁸.

A European lawyer must not be registered at the same time both with one of the solicitors' professional bodies and with one of the barristers' professional bodies⁹.

1 'Professional body' means, subject to the European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 16, any of the solicitors' professional bodies or the barristers' professional bodies: reg 2(1).

2 European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 15. Subject to reg 18, a European lawyer may apply to be entered on the registers maintained by more than one professional body: reg 16(5). Where a professional body publishes the names of solicitors or barristers registered with it, it must also publish the names of any European lawyers registered with it: reg 24(1). For this purpose 'publishes' or 'publish' includes the provision of information to a legal publisher: reg 24(2). As to the register see PARAS 627, 1102 et seq. As to the meaning of 'European lawyer' see PARA 535. 'Registered European lawyer' means a European lawyer who is registered with a professional body in accordance with reg 17 and whose registration has not been withdrawn or suspended (reg 2(1)) and a person who is registered with the Solicitors Regulation Authority under reg 17 is a 'registered European lawyer' for the purposes of the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9 (see s 9(8) (added by SI 2000/1119)), the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 (see r 24.01), the Solicitors' Accounts Rules 1998 (see r 2(2)(ta)) and the Solicitors' Indemnity Insurance Rules 2008 (see r 3.1). References in the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, to registered European lawyers are references to lawyers whose names are entered in the register of registered European lawyers maintained by the Solicitors Regulation Authority under the European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 15 and include, where appropriate, those who have ceased to be registered in that register or whose registration has been suspended: Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, r 2(4).

3 See subject to the European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 18.

4 As to the meaning of 'home professional title' see PARA 545 note 2.

5 European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 16(1). A professional body must consider an application for registration under reg 16 as soon as is reasonably practicable, and must notify the European lawyer of its decision, and if the application is rejected or granted subject to conditions, the reasons upon which the rejection or the imposition of conditions is based, within four months of receipt of an application complying with reg 16(2), (4): reg 19(1). Where the professional body fails to take a decision and notify the European lawyer within four months in accordance with reg 19(1), it must be deemed to have taken a decision to reject his application and to have notified it to him on the last day of that period: reg 19(2). Where a professional body withdraws or suspends a registration, it must notify the European lawyer of its decision and of the reasons upon which the withdrawal or suspension is based: reg 19(3). Within three months of the notification to him of the professional body's decision, or later with the permission of the appeal body, the European lawyer may appeal against the decision to the Master of the Rolls if he is a solicitor and to the Visitors to the Inns of Court if he is a barrister: reg 20(1), Sch 1. An appeal body may, for the purpose of determining the appeal order the professional body to register the European lawyer, refuse the appeal or remit the matter to the professional body with such directions as the appeal body sees fit: reg 20(2). The appeal body must give reasons for its decision: reg 20(3).

6 European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 17(1). Where a professional body registers a European lawyer in accordance with reg 17(1) it must inform the competent authority in the home state of the registration: reg 17(2). Any certificate purporting to be signed by an officer of a professional body and stating that a person is, or is not, registered with that professional body or was, or was not, registered with that professional body during a period specified in the certificate, must, unless the contrary is proved, be evidence of that fact and be taken to have been so signed: reg 23.

7 European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119, reg 16(2). A professional body may require that the certificate referred to in reg 16(2) must not have been issued more than three months before the date of the application under reg 16: reg 16(3). As to the meaning of 'home state' see PARA 545 note 2.

545. Practice of professional activities.

A registered European lawyer¹ is entitled to carry out under his home professional title² any professional activity that may lawfully be carried out by a member of the professional body³ with which he is registered and any enactment or rule of law or practice with regard to the carrying out of professional activities by members of that professional body is to be interpreted and applied accordingly⁴.

A registered European lawyer who is in salaried employment may carry out professional activities under his home professional title to the same extent that an employed member of the professional body with which he is registered may do so⁵.

Where a registered European lawyer¹ is engaged in any professional activity authorised by the professional organisation in his home state which gave him the authorisation to practise or any professional activity that may be carried out by a member of the professional body² with which he is registered, he must comply with certain requirements³.

Those requirements are that a registered European lawyer must:

- 460 (1) use his home professional title expressed in an official language of his home state in a manner which avoids confusion with the title of solicitor or barrister⁴;
- 461 (2) indicate the professional organisation by which he is authorised to practise or the court of law before which he is entitled to practise in that state⁵; and
- 462 (3) indicate the professional body with which he is registered in the United Kingdom⁶.

547. Joint practice.

A registered European lawyer¹ may carry out professional activities under his home professional title as part of a joint practice²:

- 463 (1) to the same extent and in the same manner as a member of the professional body³ with which he is registered may do so, with a member of the professional body with which he is registered, a registered European lawyer who is registered with the same professional body or any other person permitted by the professional body with which he is registered⁴; or
- 464 (2) with another European lawyer who is practising on a permanent basis under his home professional title in that registered European lawyer's home state⁵.

Where a registered European lawyer is a member of a joint practice in his home state, he may use the name of that practice with his home professional title when practising as a registered European lawyer⁶. However rules of conduct of the professional body with which a registered European lawyer is registered may prohibit the use by him of the name of a joint practice to the extent that that name is also used by persons who are not European lawyers or solicitors of any part of the United Kingdom and those rules prohibit members of that professional body from using that name⁷.

548. Representation in legal proceedings.

No enactment or rule of law or practice must prevent a registered European lawyer¹ from pursuing professional activities relating to the representation of a client in any proceedings before any court, tribunal or public authority (including addressing the court, tribunal or public authority) only because he is not a solicitor or barrister².

In such proceedings where the professional activities in question may³ be lawfully provided only by a solicitor, barrister or other qualified person, a registered European lawyer must act in conjunction with a solicitor or barrister who is entitled to practise before the court, tribunal or public authority concerned and who could lawfully provide those professional activities⁴.

550. Professional conduct.

Where a registered European lawyer¹ is practising under his home professional title² in the United Kingdom, he is subject to the same rules of professional conduct as a member of the professional body with which he is registered, and if he is registered with more than one, he is subject to the rules of professional conduct of all the professional bodies with which he is registered³.

Where a registered European lawyer fails to comply with those rules, he is subject to the same rules of procedure, penalties and remedies as a member of the professional body with which the European lawyer is registered and, if appropriate, is subject to disciplinary proceedings brought by an appropriate authority⁴. Any sanction against a registered European lawyer in relation to disciplinary proceedings may include withdrawal or suspension of his registration⁵. The appropriate authority must give reasons for its decision⁶.

Where a professional body intends to begin disciplinary proceedings against a registered European lawyer, it must inform the competent authority in his home state⁷ of the intention to begin those proceedings and furnish it with all the relevant details, co-operate with that authority throughout those proceedings and inform that authority of the decision reached in those proceedings, including the decision in any appeal, as soon as practicable after the decision is given⁸.

Where the competent authority in the registered European lawyer's home state withdraws his authorisation to practise under the home professional title either temporarily or permanently, his registration with the professional body must be automatically withdrawn to the same extent⁹.

Where there is an appeal against a decision in disciplinary proceedings against a registered European lawyer, the body responsible for hearing the appeal must afford the competent authority in the registered European lawyer's home state an opportunity to make representations in relation to that appeal¹⁰.

Where a registered European lawyer¹ applies to the professional body² where he has been registered to become a solicitor or barrister³, as the case may be, and that professional body requires him to pass an aptitude test⁴, he may apply to the professional body for an exemption from that requirement on one of the following grounds⁵.

- 465 (1) he is a European lawyer and has been registered with that professional body for at least three years and he has for a period of at least three years effectively and regularly pursued in England and Wales professional activities under his home professional title⁶ in the law of England and Wales⁷;
- 466 (2) he is a European lawyer and has been registered with that professional body for at least three years and he has for a period of at least three years effectively and regularly pursued in England and Wales professional activities under his home professional title and he has for a period of less than three years effectively and regularly pursued in England and Wales, professional activities under his home professional title in the law of England and Wales⁸.

The professional body must grant an exemption applied for under the above provisions if it considers that the necessary requirements⁹ have been met¹⁰. However the professional body may refuse to grant an exemption if it considers that the registered European lawyer would be unfit to practise as a solicitor or barrister¹¹. The registration of a registered European lawyer ceases from the date he is granted entry into the profession of solicitor or barrister¹².

When deciding whether to grant an application under reg 19(3), the professional body must take into account the professional activities the registered European lawyer has pursued during the period he has been registered and any knowledge and professional experience he has gained of, and any training he has received in, the law of any part of the United Kingdom and the rules of professional conduct of the profession concerned: reg 32(2). Subject to reg 32(4), in the case of an application under reg 29(3), the professional body must assess and verify the registered European lawyer's effective and regular professional activity and his capacity to continue the activity he has pursued at an interview: reg 32(3). A professional body must consider an application under reg 29 as soon as is reasonably practicable, and must notify the applicant of its decision and, if the application is rejected, the reasons for the rejection, within four months of receipt of all the relevant documents: reg 34(1). Where the professional body fails to take a decision and notify the registered European lawyer within four months in accordance with reg 34(1), it must be deemed to have taken a decision to reject his application and to have notified it to him on the last day of that period: reg 34(2). Within three months of the notification to him of the professional body's decision, or later with the permission of the appeal body, the registered European lawyer may appeal against the decision to the appeal body specified in Sch 1: reg 35(1). An appeal body may, for the purpose of determining any appeal under Pt V give the exemption and the authorisation to enter into the profession of solicitor or barrister, as the case may be, refuse the appeal or remit the matter to the professional body with such directions as the appeal body sees fit: reg 35(2). The appeal body must give reasons for its decision: reg 35(3).

NOTE 4--The qualification regulations are now defined as European Communities (Recognition of Professional Qualifications) Regulations 2007, SI 2007/2781: SI 2000/1119 reg 2(1) (definition substituted by SI 2009/1587). An aptitude test is now such a test under the Qualification Regulations reg 26(a): SI 2000/1119 reg 29(1) (amended by SI 2009/1587). SI 2007/2781 amended: SI 2008/2683, SI 2009/1587, SI 2009/1885.

THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(4) EUROPEAN LAWYERS/(iii) European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000/552. Practice under the title of solicitor or barrister.

552. Practice under the title of solicitor or barrister.

Where a registered European lawyer¹ is granted entry into the profession of solicitor or barrister² the following provisions apply³. The lawyer must be entitled to continue to practise in England and Wales, under his home professional title⁴, and to use his home professional title, expressed in an official language of his home state⁵, alongside the title of solicitor or barrister, provided that he continues to be authorised in his home state to pursue professional activities under that title⁶. For the purposes of rules of professional conduct, including those relating to disciplinary and complaints procedures, the lawyer's continuing practice in the United Kingdom under his home professional title is deemed to form part of his practice as a solicitor or barrister, and those rules must apply to his practice under his home professional title as they do to his practice as a solicitor or barrister⁷.

2 As to the meaning of 'solicitor' and 'barrister' see PARA 544 note 8.

Where reg 36 applies, a lawyer's registration in accordance with reg 17 with the professional body whose title he has acquired must cease from the date he is entitled to use that title: reg 36(4). However this does not affect any registration the lawyer may have in another part of the United Kingdom: reg 36(5).

(5) OTHER LEGAL SERVICE PROVIDERS

(i) Claims Management Services

553. Provision of regulated claims management services.

A person may not provide regulated claims management services¹ unless he is an authorised person², he is an exempt person³, the requirement for authorisation has been waived in relation to him⁴ or he is an individual acting otherwise than in the course of a business⁵, and a person commits an offence if he contravenes this provision⁶.

A person also commits an offence if he falsely holds himself out as being an authorised person, an exempt person, or the subject of a waiver⁷, or if he offers to provide regulated claims management services⁸ and provision by him of those services would constitute an offence⁹.

1 'Claims management services' means advice or other services in relation to the making of a claim; and 'claim' means a claim for compensation, restitution, repayment or any other remedy or relief in respect of loss or damage or in respect of an obligation, whether the claim is made or could be made by way of legal proceedings, in accordance with a scheme of regulation (whether voluntary or compulsory) or in pursuance of a voluntary undertaking: Compensation Act 2006 s 4(2)(b), (c). Services are regulated if they are of a kind prescribed by order of the Secretary of State, or provided in cases or circumstances of a kind prescribed by order of the Secretary of State: s 4(2)(e). As from a day to be appointed the Secretary of State may not make such an order unless it is made in accordance with a recommendation by the Legal Services Board or the Secretary of State has consulted the Board about the making of the order: s 4(2A) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 2). At the date at which this volume states the law no order had been made bringing this provision into force, however, the Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Order 2006, SI 2006/3319, has already been made under the Compensation Act 2006 s 4(2)(e) and services of the kind listed in heads (1)-(5) are prescribed if rendered in relation to the making of a claim described in heads (a)-(f) or in relation to a cause of action that may give rise to such a claim: Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Order 2006, SI 2006/3319, art 4(1). The kinds of service prescribed are:

- 331 (1) advertising for, or otherwise seeking out (for example, by canvassing or direct marketing), persons who may have a cause of action (art 4(2)(a));
- 332 (2) advising a claimant or potential claimant in relation to his claim or cause of action (art 4(2)(b));
- 333 (3) referring details of a claim or claimant, or a cause of action or potential claimant, to another person, including a person having the right to conduct litigation unless such a referral is not undertaken for or in expectation of a fee, gain or reward (art 4(2)(c), (4));
- 334 (4) investigating, or commissioning the investigation of, the circumstances, merits or foundation of a claim, with a view to the use of the results in pursuing the claim (art 4(2)(d));
- 335 (5) representation of a claimant (whether in writing or orally, and regardless of the tribunal, body or person to or before which or whom the representation is made) (art 4(2)(e)).

The kinds of claim are:

- 336 (a) claims for personal injuries, within the meaning of the Civil Procedure Rules 1998, SI 1998/3132 (see CIVIL PROCEDURE) (Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Order 2006, SI 2006/3319, art 4(3)(a));

- 337 (b) claims under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Scheme established under the Criminal Injuries Compensation Act 1995 (see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE) (Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Order 2006, SI 2006/3319, art 4(3)(b));
- 338 (c) claims for a benefit specified or referred to in the Compensation (Specification of Benefits) Order 2006, SI 2006/3321, art 3 (Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Order 2006, SI 2006/3319, art 4(3)(c));
- 339 (d) claims in relation to employment (including claims in relation to wages and salaries and other employment-related payments, and claims in relation to wrongful or unfair dismissal, redundancy, discrimination and harassment) (art 4(3)(d));
- 340 (e) claims for housing disrepair (that is, claims under the Landlord and Tenant Act 1985 s 11 (see LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(1) (2006 Reissue) PARAS 416-417) or the Defective Premises Act 1972 s 4 (see LANDLORD AND TENANT vol 27(1) (2006 Reissue) PARA 475), claims in relation to the disrepair of premises under a term of a tenancy agreement or lease or under the common law relating to nuisance or negligence, but not claims for statutory nuisance under the Environmental Protection Act 1990 s 82 (see NUISANCE vol 78 (2010) PARAS 210-212) (Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Order 2006, SI 2006/3319, art 4(3)(e));
- 341 (f) claims in relation to financial products or services (art 4(3)(f)).

The Secretary of State may by order provide that a claim for a specified benefit is to be treated as a claim for the purposes of the Compensation Act 2006 Pt 2 (ss 4-15): s 4(5). He may specify a benefit under s 4(5) only if it appears to him to be a United Kingdom social security benefit designed to provide compensation for industrial injury: s 4(6). Accordingly a claim for any of the following benefits is treated as a claim for the purposes of the Compensation Act 2006 Pt 2:

- 342 (i) industrial injuries benefit (Compensation (Specification of Benefits) Order 2006, SI 2006/3321, art 3(a));
- 343 (ii) any supplement or additional allowance, or increase of benefit or allowance, to which a recipient of such a benefit may be entitled under the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 (see SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS) or any other Act (Compensation (Specification of Benefits) Order 2006, SI 2006/3321, art 3(b));
- 344 (iii) a benefit under a scheme referred to in the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 Sch 8 para 2 or 4 (Compensation (Specification of Benefits) Order 2006, SI 2006/3321, art 3(c));
- 345 (iv) a benefit under the Pneumoconiosis etc (Workers' Compensation) Act 1979 (see SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 168 et seq) (Compensation (Specification of Benefits) Order 2006, SI 2006/3321, art 3(d)).

As to the meaning of 'industrial injuries benefit' see the Social Security Contributions and Benefits Act 1992 s 94; and SOCIAL SECURITY AND PENSIONS vol 44(2) (Reissue) PARA 127.

Provision of services includes, in particular, the provision of financial services or assistance, the provision of services by way of or in relation to legal representation, referring or introducing one person to another, and making inquiries; and a person does not provide claims management services by reason only of giving, or preparing to give, evidence, whether or not expert evidence: Compensation Act 2006 s 4(3).

2 'Authorised person' means a person authorised by the Regulator under the Compensation Act 2006 s 5(1) (a) (see PARA 562): s 4(2)(a).

3 The Secretary of State may by order provide that the Compensation Act 2006 s 4(1) does not prevent the provision of regulated claims management services by a person who is a member of a specified body: s 6(1). The Secretary of State may by order provide that s 4(1) does not prevent the provision of regulated claims management services by a specified person or class of person, in specified circumstances or by a specified person or class of person in specified circumstances: s 6(2). Provision by virtue of s 6(1) or s 6(2) may be expressed to have effect subject to compliance with specified conditions: s 6(3). A person is 'exempt' if, or in so far as s 4(1) does not by virtue of s 6 prevent him from providing regulated claims management services: s 6(5). As from a day to be appointed the Secretary of State must not make an order under s 6(1) or s 6(2) unless it is made in accordance with a recommendation made by the Legal Services Board, or the Secretary of State has consulted the Legal Services Board about the making of the order: s 6(3A) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 4). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. However the Compensation (Exemptions) Order 2007, SI 2007/209, has been made.

4 Ie by virtue of regulations made under the Compensation Act 2009 s 9.

5 Compensation Act 2006 s 4(1). An individual acts in the course of a business if, in particular, he acts in the course of an employment, or he otherwise receives or hopes to receive money or money's worth as a result of his action: s 4(4). Section 4(1) does not prevent the provision of regulated claims management services by a person who is established or appointed by virtue of an enactment: s 6(4).

6 Compensation Act 2006 s 7(1). A person guilty of such an offence is liable, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, to a fine, or to both, or, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months, to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum, or to both: s 7(2) (amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 5(1), (2)). However in relation to an offence committed before the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 154(1) the reference to 12 months is to be read as a reference to six months: Compensation Act 2006 s 7(3) (substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 5(1), (3)). The 'statutory maximum', with reference to a fine or penalty on summary conviction for an offence, is the prescribed sum within the meaning of the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 32: see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1 (definition added by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 170(1), Sch 15 para 58); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 140. 'Prescribed sum' means £5,000 or such sum as is for the time being substituted in this definition by order under the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 143(1): see s 32(9) (amended by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 17(2)); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 141.

7 Compensation Act 2006 s 11(1), referring to a waiver in accordance with regulations under s 9.

8 A person offers to provide services if he makes an offer to a particular person or class of person, makes arrangements for an advertisement in which he offers to provide services, or makes arrangements for an advertisement in which he is described or presented as competent to provide services: Compensation Act 2006 s 11(3). Where a person commits an offence by causing material to be displayed or made accessible, he is treated as committing the offence on each day during any part of which the material is displayed or made accessible: s 11(5).

9 Compensation Act 2006 s 11(2). A person guilty of such an offence is liable, on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, to a fine, or to both, or, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months, to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum, or to both: s 11(4) (amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 8(1), (2)). However in relation to an offence committed before the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 154(1) the reference to 12 months is to be read as a reference to six months: Compensation Act 2006 s 11(6) (substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 8(1), (3)).

THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(5) OTHER LEGAL SERVICE PROVIDERS/(i) Claims Management Services/559. Exemption of independent trade unions and students' unions.

559. Exemption of independent trade unions and students' unions.

The Compensation Act 2006¹ does not prevent the provision of a regulated claims management service by an independent trade union² to a member³ (including a retired member or a student member) of the trade union, a member of the family of that member⁴ or a former member of the trade union⁵ to whom the trade union may, under its rules, provide claims management services, or a member of the family of such a former member⁶.

The Compensation Act 2006 does not prevent the provision of a regulated claims management service by a students' union⁷ to a member of the students' union or⁸ a member of a constituent or affiliated association or body⁹.

1 le the Compensation Act 2006 s 4(1) (see PARA 553).

2 As to the meaning of 'independent trade union' see the Trade Union and Labour Relations (Consolidated) Act 1992; and EMPLOYMENT vol 39 (2009) PARA 91 (definition applied by the Compensation (Exemptions) Order 2007, SI 2007/209, art 10(2)).

3 'Member' of a trade union does not include a person who, under the rules of the trade union, is a member only for the purpose of pursuing a claim or claims: Compensation (Exemptions) Order 2007, SI 2007/209, art 10(3)(b).

4 Whether a person is a member of the family of a member of a trade union is to be decided in accordance with the rules of the trade union: Compensation (Exemptions) Order 2007, SI 2007/209, art 10(3)(c).

5 Whether a person is or has been a member (including a retired member or a student member) of a trade union is to be decided in accordance with the rules of the trade union: Compensation (Exemptions) Order 2007, SI 2007/209, art 10(3)(a).

6 Compensation (Exemptions) Order 2007, SI 2007/209, art 10(1). An exemption of a trade union under art 10 is subject to compliance by the trade union with the condition that the trade union, in providing regulated claims management services, must act in accordance with the code of practice for the provision of regulated claims management services by trade unions issued by the Secretary of State on 28 November 2006: art 10(4). The Code of Practice for the provision of Regulated Claims Management Services by Trade Unions sets out the key principles by which trade unions are governed when providing regulated claims management services and breach of the code could lead to the Secretary of State removing the exemption: see the Code of Practice for the provision of Regulated Claims Management Services by Trade Union.

7 As to the meaning of 'students' union' see the Education Act 1994 s 20; and EDUCATION vol 15(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1060.

8 This applies in the case of a students' union referred to in the Education Act 1994 s 20(3) (see EDUCATION vol 15(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 1060).

560. Exemption of certain providers of referrals.

The Compensation Act 2006¹ does not prevent the provision of a regulated claims management service of referring details of potential claims or potential claimants to another person if:

- 467 (1) the person who refers those details (the 'introducer') provides no other regulated claims management service²;
- 468 (2) the provision of the service is incidental to the introducer's main business³;
- 469 (3) the details are referred to authorised persons or legal practitioners or firms of legal practitioners⁴;
- 470 (4) the introducer refers such details only to persons of those kinds⁵;
- 471 (5) of the cases that the introducer refers to such persons, he is paid, in money or money's worth, for no more than 25 cases per calendar quarter⁶; and
- 472 (6) the persons to whom the details are referred must be satisfied that the introducer obtains those details in a way consistent with the rules prescribed⁷ by the Regulator⁸.

561. Exemption for claims in certain circumstances.

The Compensation Act 2006¹ does not prevent the provision of a regulated claims management service in the circumstances that:

- 473 (1) a claim has been made by a person (the 'claimant') against another person (the 'defendant')²; and
- 474 (2) the service is provided to the defendant in connection with the making of a counterclaim against the claimant arising out of the same set of facts as the claim referred to in head (1) or the making of a claim against a third party (whether for contribution, as a subrogated claim or otherwise) which is incidental to or consequent on the claim referred to in head (1)³.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(5) OTHER LEGAL SERVICE PROVIDERS/(i) Claims Management Services/562. Designation of the Regulator.

562. Designation of the Regulator.

The Secretary of State may by order designate a person (the 'Regulator')¹ to authorise persons to provide regulated claims management services², to regulate the conduct of authorised persons, and to exercise such other functions as are conferred on the Regulator³. The Secretary of State may designate a person only if satisfied that the person:

- 475 (1) is competent to perform the functions of the Regulator;
- 476 (2) will make arrangements to avoid any conflict of interest between the person's functions as Regulator and any other functions; and
- 477 (3) will promote the interests of persons using regulated claims management services, including, in particular, by setting and monitoring standards of competence and professional conduct for persons providing regulated claims management services, promoting good practice by persons providing regulated claims management services, in particular in relation to the provision of information about charges and other matters to persons using or considering using the services, promoting practices likely to facilitate competition between different providers of regulated claims management services, and ensuring that arrangements are made for the protection of persons using regulated claims management services, including arrangements for the handling of complaints about the conduct of authorised persons⁴.

The Regulator must comply with any directions or guidance given to him, try to meet any targets set for him⁵ and, until a day to be appointed, have regard to any code of practice issued to him by the Secretary of State⁶.

1 At the date at which this volume states the law no such orders had been made. A reference to the Regulator includes a reference to a person acting on behalf of the Regulator or with his authority: Compensation Act 2006 s 5(7). As from a day to be appointed the Secretary of State may designate a person only on the recommendation of the Legal Services Board: s 5(1A) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 3(1), (2)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. The Secretary of State may by order revoke a person's designation under the Compensation Act 2006 s 5(1): s 5(8). However as from a day to be appointed the Secretary of State may revoke the designation on the recommendation of the Legal Services Board: s 5(8) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 3(1), (8)(a)).

For the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007 Pt 6 (and ss 1, 21, 27 as they apply in relation to Pt 6):

- 354 (1) the Claims Management Services Regulator is to be treated as an approved regulator (s 161(1)(a));
- 355 (2) regulated claims management services are to be treated as a reserved legal activity (s 161(1)(b));
- 356 (3) a person authorised by the Claims Management Services Regulator, under the Compensation Act 2006 Pt 2, to provide regulated claims management services is to be treated as an authorised person in relation to that activity (Legal Services Act 2007 s 161(1)(c));
- 357 (4) the Claims Management Services Regulator is to be treated as a relevant authorising body in relation to such a person (s 161(1)(d)); and

- 358 (5) regulations under the Compensation Act 2006 s 9 and Schedule (regulations about the functions of the Claims Management Services Regulator etc) are to be treated as regulatory arrangements of the Claims Management Services Regulator (Legal Services Act 2007 s 161(1)(e)).

For the purposes of ss 112 and 145 (as extended by s 161) a person authorised by the Claims Management Services Regulator under the Compensation Act 2006 Pt 2 to provide regulated claims management services is to be treated as a 'relevant authorised person' in relation to the Regulator: Legal Services Act 2007 s 161(2). The Compensation Act 2006 s 9 and Schedule (regulations about the functions of the Claims Management Regulator etc) are subject to any requirements imposed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Pt 6 in relation to the regulatory arrangements of the Claims Management Regulator: s 161(3).

For the purposes of s 161 'Claims Management Services Regulator' means the person designated under the Compensation Act 2006 s 5(1) or at a time when no person is so designated, the Board and 'regulated claims management services' has the same meaning as in the Compensation Act 2006 Pt 2: Legal Services Act 2007 s 161(4).

2 As to the meaning of 'regulated claims management services' see the Compensation Act 2006 s 4(2)(e); and DAMAGES.

3 Compensation Act 2006 s 5(1). The Secretary of State may pay grants to the Regulator (which may be on terms and conditions, including terms and conditions as to repayment with or without interest): s 5(6). The Secretary of State may by order transfer (whether for a period of time specified in the order or otherwise) a function of the Regulator to the Secretary of State and while no person is designated under s 5(1) the Secretary of State must exercise functions of the Regulator: s 5(9), (10). However, as from a day to be appointed s 5(9), (10) is amended and the Secretary of State may, on the recommendation of the Legal Services Board, by order transfer (whether for a period of time specified in the order or otherwise) a function of the Regulator to the Legal Services Board, and while no person is designated under s 5(1) the Legal Services Board must exercise functions of the Regulator: s 5(9), (10) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 3(1), (6), (7)). In discharging its functions under the Compensation Act 2006 s 5(9), (10) the Legal Services Board must take such steps as are necessary to ensure an appropriate financial and organisational separation between the activities of the Board that relate to the carrying out of those functions and the other activities of the Board: s 5(11) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 3(1), (9)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

Until a day to be appointed if the Secretary of State thinks that no existing person, whether an individual or a body corporate or unincorporate, is suitable for designation, he may by order establish a person for the purpose of being designated and such an order may include for the appointment of members, for funding, for dissolution (which may include provision enabling the Secretary of State to make provision for the transfer of property, rights and liabilities): Compensation Act 2006 ss 5(3), 15(6) (prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 3(1), (4), Sch 23). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

The Secretary of State must make regulations about authorisations under the Compensation Act 2006 s 5(1).

4 Compensation Act 2006 s 5(2). As from a day to be appointed s 5(2) is amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 3(1), (3) and applies to where the Legal Services Board may recommend a person for designation instead of where the Secretary of State may designate a person. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

5 See the Compensation Act 2006 s 5(4)(a), (b), (d). The directions, guidance and targets referred to in the text are ones issued and set by the Secretary of State; however, as from a day to be appointed they are issued and set by the Legal Services Board: see s 5(4)(a), (b), (d) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 3(1), (5)(a)). The Regulator must provide the Secretary of State with any report or information requested unless it would be in contravention of any other enactment: see the Compensation Act 2006 s 5(4)(e). However as from a day to be appointed any such report or information is instead to be provided to the Legal Services Board: see s 5(4)(e) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 3(1), (5)(a)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

6 See the Compensation Act 2006 s 5(4)(c) (prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 3(1), (5)(b), Sch 23)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. The Secretary of State must lay before Parliament any code of practice issued by him to the Regulator: Compensation Act 2006 s 5(5).

564. Waiver of requirement for authorisation.

The Regulator may waive the requirement for authorisation in relation to a person if the Secretary of State intends to exempt the person¹ and if the Regulator is satisfied that requiring the person to become authorised would be unduly burdensome to the person, or would not achieve the objects of the Compensation Act 2006 and the waiver would not result in undue risk to persons whose interests the Compensation Act 2006 is intended to protect².

The Regulator may impose a condition on such a waiver³ and, if he does so, must include a statement of the condition in the notice of the waiver⁴. In particular⁵ such a condition may be to the effect that:

- 491 (1) the person who has the benefit of the waiver tells clients or potential clients in writing that the person is providing a regulated claims management service⁶;
- 492 (2) the person tells clients or potential clients in writing that the person is providing that service subject to the waiver, pending an exemption⁷;
- 493 (3) the person meets standards of service recommended by the Secretary of State⁸.

2 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 6(1). The Regulator must give the person a written notice of the waiver: reg 6(2). A notice may be issued by means of fax transmission or electronic communication: reg 5. The waiver has effect for six months from the date of the notice, and cannot be renewed: reg 7(4). However, if an order under the Compensation Act 2006 s 6(2) (see PARA 553) exempting the person comes into effect before the waiver would cease to have effect under the Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 7(4), the waiver ceases to have effect immediately before the order comes into effect: reg 7(5).

3 Ie a waiver under the Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 6.

4 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 7(1).

5 This is without limiting the effect of the Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 7(1).

6 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 7(2)(a). The regulated claims management service is one within the meaning of the Compensation Act 2006 s 4(2)(e) (see PARA 553).

7 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 7(2)(b). The exemption mentioned in the text is an exemption by order under the Compensation Act 2006 s 6 (see PARA 553).

8 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 7(2)(c). If the Regulator imposes on a waiver a condition of the kind referred to in reg 7(2)(c), the Regulator must set out the standard in the notice of the waiver: reg 7(3).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(5) OTHER LEGAL SERVICE PROVIDERS/(i) Claims Management Services/565. Grant, refusal and surrender of authorisations.

565. Grant, refusal and surrender of authorisations.

A person must apply for authorisation in writing in the form approved by the Regulator for the purpose and supply the information and documents required by the form¹ in accordance with any directions on it². If the Regulator requires more information than that given in the application or another document, to consider an application, the Regulator may ask for the information or document by written notice to the applicant³. The Regulator must decide to grant or refuse an authorisation within three months after the application for it is made⁴.

If the Regulator has approved the grant of an authorisation to a person, and the person pays the fee for the first year of the authorisation's currency, the Regulator must grant the authorisation by giving the person a written instrument of authorisation⁵.

The Regulator must not grant an application for authorisation unless he is satisfied that the applicant is competent and suitable to provide the regulated claims management service to which the application relates⁶.

An authorised person may surrender his authorisation by giving notice in writing to the Regulator⁷.

1 If the Regulator approves the use of an interactive system on-line for the purposes of application, the Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 8(2) requires an applicant to complete and submit an application, and provide documents, in accordance with the directions given by the interactive system: reg 8(3).

2 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 8(1), (2). An application is not taken to have been made until the applicant has paid the application fee: reg 9(1). If the Regulator has authorised another person to receive applications on his behalf, the application fee may be paid to that other person: reg 9(2). The Regulator must, by written instrument, determine: (1) fees, or a scale of fees, for the making of applications under Part 3; and (2) annual fees, or a scale of annual fees, for authorisations: reg 15(1). A determination under head (2) may provide for the fee to be calculated by reference to the annual turnover or expected annual turnover of the business of the applicant or authorised person concerned: reg 15(2). A determination under reg 15(1):

- 384 (a) may make provision that applies generally, or only in specified cases or circumstances (reg 15(3)(a));
- 385 (b) may make different provision for different cases or circumstances (reg 15(3)(b));
- 386 (c) may include transitional, incidental or consequential provisions (reg 15(3)(c)); and
- 387 (d) may provide for a fee of zero amount in specified circumstances (reg 15(3)(d)).

Before making such a determination, the Regulator must consult such persons as appear to him to represent the views of persons engaged in the provision of regulated claims management services, and such other organisations, as he considers appropriate: reg 15(4). A determination under reg 15(1) (except a determination by the Secretary of State while exercising functions of the Regulator) has no effect unless a draft of it has been approved in writing by the Secretary of State: reg 15(5). The Regulator may, by written instrument, revoke or amend any determination in force from time to time under reg 15, but such a revocation or amendment (except a revocation or amendment by the Secretary of State while exercising the functions of the Regulator) has no effect unless a draft of it has been approved by the Secretary of State: reg 16(1). A revocation or amendment may include transitional, incidental or consequential provisions: reg 16(2). The Claims Management Regulation Fees Determination 2008 has been made under the Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2008, SI 2008/3322, regs 15, 16. Invoices for fees may be sent electronically and reg 5 (see PARA 564) applies to an invoice so sent: reg 17. If a cheque is accepted in payment of a fee, the fee is taken not to have been paid until the cheque is honoured in full: reg 18. The Regulator may refund all or part of a fee to an applicant or authorised person if he is satisfied that where the fee was calculated by reference to the applicant's or authorised person's expected turnover from claims management activities during a period, the actual turnover for the period was substantially less than the expected turnover or the applicant or authorised person has been otherwise overcharged: reg 19(1). If an authorised person surrenders his authorisation, the Regulator may refund so much of the fee for that year as represents the difference between the amount paid and the amount that the Regulator is satisfied was properly due for the part of the year until the surrender: reg 19(2). The Regulator may cancel an authorised person's authorisation if the Regulator sends an invoice for a fee to the person and the person does not pay the fee within one month after the date of the invoice: reg 20.

3 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 8(4). If the Regulator makes a request under reg 8(4), the period between when the Regulator makes the request and when the applicant provides the information or document requested does not count for the purposes of reg 11: reg 8(5). If the Regulator has authorised another person to carry out tasks of collecting information or otherwise processing applications, that other person may make a request under reg 8(4), and a request so made has the same effect as a request by the Regulator: reg 8(6).

4 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 11.

5 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 13(1). The instrument of authorisation must specify a day as its date of effect: reg 13(2). An authorisation has effect from the date of effect specified in the instrument of the authorisation and continues in effect until revoked or surrendered: reg 13(3). If the Regulator grants an authorisation subject to a condition, the Regulator must set the condition out in the instrument of authorisation: reg 13(4). If the Regulator refuses to grant an authorisation to a person, or grants an authorisation subject to a condition not sought by the person, the Regulator must give written notice to the person, setting out in the notice the decision and the reasons for it, a brief statement of the evidence on which the Regulator relied and a statement of the person's right to appeal to the Tribunal, including the Tribunal's address to which an appeal notice may be sent and the time limit for such an appeal: reg 13(5).

6 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 10(1). For the purposes of making a decision regarding the suitability of an applicant, the criteria are the following:

- 388 (1) that the applicant does not have a history of committing relevant criminal offences (in particular, perjury or an offence involving fraud, theft or false accounting, or in relation to financial services, consumer credit or consumer protection) or breaches of any law or rule of practice regulating the provision of financial, legal or other relevant services (reg 10(2)(a));
- 389 (2) there are no relevant proceedings (whether completed or not) in any court or tribunal, and in particular any proceedings in relation to financial services, consumer credit or consumer protection, against the applicant (reg 10(2)(b));
- 390 (3) if the applicant holds or proposes to hold clients' money, the applicant has appropriate arrangements or proposed arrangements for holding such money (reg 10(2)(c)); and
- 391 (4) that the applicant has no arrangements with another person that might expose it to any conflict of interest (reg 10(2)(d)).

For the purposes of making a decision regarding the suitability of an applicant, the Regulator may have regard to:

- 392 (a) the applicant's financial circumstances (reg 10(3)(a));
- 393 (b) the applicant's management arrangements, including how financial and other control is exercised or is to be exercised; who is responsible for the applicant's financial and other management; measures to maintain its solvency; the provision of verified, certified or audited accounts; any previous relationship with a company that has become insolvent, or against which an insolvency petition has been brought (reg 10(3)(b));
- 394 (c) the applicant's actual or proposed connections or arrangements with other persons (including, in the case of an applicant that is a body corporate, its relationship with any parent or subsidiary company) and the applicant's arrangements to avoid conflicts of interest (reg 10(3)(c));
- 395 (d) the applicant's policies and arrangements or proposed arrangements for training, and monitoring the competence of, its staff, and for recruiting staff (reg 10(3)(d));
- 396 (e) the applicant's practice or proposed practice in relation to providing information to clients about fees (reg 10(3)(e));

- 397 (f) the applicant's arrangements or proposed arrangements for professional indemnity insurance (reg 10(3)(f)).

In the case of an applicant other than an individual, it is a criterion for the grant of an application for authorisation that in the case of an applicant that is a body corporate, each of the applicant's directors; in the case of an applicant that is a partnership or other body of persons, each of its members; and each other person who appears to the Regulator to be able to exert significant influence on the applicant's policy or management, is suitable to be associated with the provision of regulated claims management services of the kind to which the application relates: reg 10(4).

For the purpose of making a decision regarding the suitability of an individual to be associated with the provision of regulated claims management services, being an individual who is a director or partner of an applicant, or is otherwise able to exert significant influence on the applicant's policy or management, the Regulator may have regard to:

- 398 (i) the individual's criminal record (if any), and in particular any conviction for perjury, or an offence involving fraud, theft or false accounting, or in relation to financial services, consumer credit or consumer protection (reg 10(5)(a));
- 399 (ii) whether the individual has ever been disqualified as a company director (reg 10(5)(b));
- 400 (iii) any relevant proceedings (whether completed or not) of a body exercising functions in relation to a trade or profession, and in particular any proceedings that may result in the withdrawal or revocation of the right to practise a profession, engage in a business or provide a service (reg 10(5)(c));
- 401 (iv) any withdrawal or revocation of his right to practise a profession, engage in a business or provide a service (reg 10(5)(d));
- 402 (v) his financial circumstances (reg 10(5)(e));
- 403 (vi) his qualifications and experience (reg 10(5)(f)).

7 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 14(1). Such a notice has effect, if it specifies a day as the day on which it is to have effect, and that day is, or is after, the day on which the Regulator receives it, on the specified day; or, in any other case, on the day on which the Regulator receives it: reg 14(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(5) OTHER LEGAL SERVICE PROVIDERS/(i) Claims Management Services/566. Conditions of authorisations.

566. Conditions of authorisations.

The Regulator may grant an authorisation subject to a condition or conditions¹. The Regulator may revoke the imposition of a condition on an authorisation if he is satisfied that it is no longer necessary for the authorisation to be subject to the condition².

In addition to any condition imposed by the Regulator, the following are conditions of an authorised person's authorisation:

- 494 (1) that the person complies with the rules³;
- 495 (2) that the person complies with any applicable code of practice⁴;
- 496 (3) that if the person accepts referrals of potential clients from another person (not being a person required to be an authorised person), the person takes reasonable steps to ensure that the other person obtains the business in a way consistent with the rules⁵;
- 497 (4) that the person complies with any direction of the Regulator under Part 5 (which deals with indemnity insurance)⁶;
- 498 (5) that the person permits inspection by the Regulator under Part 8 (which is about routine audit)⁷;
- 499 (6) that in each year, if the Regulator so requires by notice in writing, the person certifies in writing to the Regulator that during the past year the person has complied with the conditions mentioned in heads (1), (2) and (3) and any other condition of the authorisation specified in the notice⁸;
- 500 (7) that in each year, within one month after the Regulator issues an invoice to the person for the annual fee, the person pays the Regulator the amount of that fee in accordance with the invoice⁹;
- 501 (8) that the person complies with a direction¹⁰ to make redress for failing to comply with rules of code of practice or a direction¹¹ to provide the Regulator with information or documents regarding a complaint¹²;
- 502 (9) that the person implements, promptly and in full, any direction¹³ in relation to the future handling of complaints¹⁴.

¹ Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 12(1). In particular, and without limiting the effect of reg 12(1), a condition may be:

- 404 (1) if the authorised person was granted authorisation despite not satisfying a requirement for authorisation, that the person satisfies the requirement within a specified period (reg 12(2)(a));
- 405 (2) a condition as to the way in which the person provides the service (reg 12(2)(b));
- 406 (3) that the person provides only a specified service or services (reg 12(2)(c)); or
- 407 (4) that the person provides a service only in specified circumstances (reg 12(2)(d)).

The Regulator may, at a reasonable time and on reasonable notice, inspect the records of an authorised person for the purposes of assessing the authorised person's compliance with the conditions of authorisation: reg 30(1). However this does not require an authorised person to produce, or authorise the Regulator to require an authorised person to produce, any document or thing that is an item subject to legal privilege: reg 30(2). As to the meaning of 'legal privilege' for this purpose see Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 10; and CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 873.

2 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 12(3). If the Regulator revokes the imposition of a condition, the Regulator must give the authorised person a new instrument of authorisation under reg 13 (see PARA 565) that does not show the condition: reg 12(4).

567. Indemnity insurance.

Certain authorised persons who provide regulated claims management services¹ must take out and maintain professional indemnity insurance from an insurance undertaking² authorised to transact professional indemnity insurance in:

- 503 (1) a Zone A country³;
- 504 (2) the Channel Islands, Gibraltar, Bermuda or the Isle of Man⁴.

The contract of professional indemnity insurance must provide cover where an authorised person or an employee⁵ represents a client in the course of providing or purporting to provide regulated claims management services and may be liable for their actions⁶. The minimum level of indemnity must be £250,000 for a single claim and £500,000 for an aggregated claim, and where the contract includes an excess, this must not be greater than £10,000 per claim⁷. It must also contain cover in respect of legal defence costs and provide for continuous cover for all claims first made against the insured during the period of insurance or made against the insured during or after the period of insurance and arising from claims first notified to the insurer during the period of insurance⁸.

1 The authorised persons who provide regulated claims management services within the meaning of the Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 4(2)(e). An authorised person who provides regulated claims management services in relation to claims prescribed by art 4(3)(a) must take out and maintain professional indemnity insurance, in accordance with Pt 5: art 21A(2) (added by SI 2008/1441).

2 For this purpose 'insurance undertaking' means an undertaking, whether or not an insurer, which carries on insurance business which is the business of effecting or carrying out contracts of insurance: Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 21 (substituted by SI 2008/1441).

3 For this purpose 'Zone A country' means any EEA state, a country which is a full member of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development or a country which is contained on a list published by the International Monetary Fund as being a country which has concluded special lending arrangements with the International Monetary Fund associated with the International Monetary Fund's General Arrangements to Borrow, except any country which is contained on a list published by the Regulator as being a country which has rescheduled its external sovereign debt: Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 21 (substituted by SI 2008/1441).

4 Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 21A(3) (added by SI 2008/1441).

5 For these purposes 'employee' means an individual who is employed or appointed by an authorised person in connection with that person's business, whether under a contract of service or for services or otherwise; or whose services, under an arrangement between the authorised person and a third party, are placed at the disposal and under the control of the authorised person: Compensation (Regulated Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 21 (substituted by SI 2008/1441).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(5) OTHER LEGAL SERVICE PROVIDERS/(i) Claims Management Services/568. Rules and code of practice.

568. Rules and code of practice.

The Regulator must prescribe, in writing, rules for the professional conduct of authorised persons¹. The rules may make provision that applies generally, or only in specified cases or circumstances; may make different provision for different cases or circumstances; and may include transitional, incidental or consequential provisions².

In particular, the rules may make provision regarding:

- 505 (1) the giving of notice to clients by an authorised person whose authorisation has been suspended or cancelled, or varied in such a way that the authorised person can no longer provide a regulated claims management service to one or more clients³;
- 506 (2) the accounting practices to be adopted by authorised persons who hold clients' money⁴; and
- 507 (3) the establishment and operation by authorised persons of schemes for the reception, investigation and rectification of complaints about their professional services⁵.

The Regulator may issue, by written instrument, a code of practice for the professional conduct of authorised persons or a specified class or group of authorised persons⁶. A code of practice may make provision that applies generally, or only in specified cases or circumstances; may make different provision for different cases or circumstances; and may include transitional, incidental or consequential provisions⁷.

The Regulator may amend or revoke rules or a code of practice⁸.

The Regulator may direct an authorised person who has failed to comply with the rules or a code of practice to make redress, in a specified way or form, to a person aggrieved by that failure⁹. The forms of redress may include, but are not limited to an apology; the re-doing, without charge to the aggrieved person, of work improperly done; or, in a case in which the failure consists of the charging of an unjustifiable fee¹⁰, the refund of all or part of the fee¹¹.

1 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 22(1). Before prescribing such rules, the Regulator must consult such persons as appear to him to represent the views of persons engaged in the provision of regulated claims management services, and such other organisations, as he considers appropriate: reg 22(2). The Regulator must not prescribe such rules unless the Secretary of State has approved a draft of the rules: reg 22(4). However reg 22(4) has no effect while the Secretary of State is exercising the functions of the Regulator: reg 22(5). The Regulator must publish the approved rules on his website and in printed form: s 22(6). Rules prescribed under reg 22(1) have effect only from the date on which they are published: reg 22(7). The Regulator may make a reasonable charge for supplying a printed copy of rules or a code of practice, or an instrument amending or revoking rules or a code of practice: reg 26. The Conduct of Authorised Persons Rules 2007 came into force as from 14 December 2006 and were amended on 9 May 2006. Pursuant to those rules the Claims Handling Rules 2006 were made on 6 April 2007.

3 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 23(a).

5 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 23(c).

6 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 24(1). Before issuing such a code, the Regulator must consult such persons as appear to him to represent the views of persons engaged in the provision of regulated claims management services, and such other organisations, as he considers appropriate: reg 24(3). The Regulator must not issue a code of practice unless the Secretary of State has approved a draft of the code: reg 24(4). However this has no effect while the Secretary of State is exercising the functions of the Regulator: reg 24(5). The Regulator must publish an approved code of practice on his website and in printed form: reg 24(6). A code of practice issued under reg 24(1) has effect only from the date on which it is published on the Regulator's website: reg 24(7).

7 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 24(2).

8 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 25(1). The procedure for amending or revoking rules or a code of practice is the same as the procedure for prescribing rules or issuing such a code: reg 25(2). Such an amendment or revocation may include transitional, incidental or consequential provisions: reg 25(3). An amendment or revocation of rules or a code of practice has effect only from the date on which the text of the amendment or revocation is published: reg 25(4). If the Regulator amends rules or a code of practice, the Regulator must, as soon as reasonably practicable, publish, in the ways set out in reg 22(6) or reg 24(6), as the case requires, the text of the rules or code as amended: reg 25(5).

9 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 27(1). Before giving such a direction, the Regulator:

408 (1) must notify the authorised person of the proposed direction, and the reasons for giving it (reg 27(4)(a));

409 (2) must give the authorised person a reasonable opportunity to make submissions in relation to the proposed direction (reg 27(4)(b)); and

410 (3) must take any such submission into account in deciding whether to give the direction (reg 27(4)(c)).

10 Such a fee is unjustifiable if it should not have been charged: Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 27(3).

Review by Regulator of complaint handling.

569. Review by Regulator of complaint handling.

If a client of an authorised person is dissatisfied with the handling by the authorised person of a complaint by the client, or an authorised person and a client cannot agree on how to resolve a complaint by the client that the authorised person has failed to comply with the rules or a code of practice, either the client or the authorised person may ask the Regulator to review the authorised person's handling of the complaint¹.

Where the Regulator is satisfied that a complaint against an authorised person is well founded or the authorised person should alter its claims management procedures the Regulator may give the authorised person a direction about the further handling of the complaint². The Regulator may also give the authorised person a direction about the future handling of complaints or about any other aspect of the authorised person's business that relates to the provision of claims management services³.

However, before giving a direction under the above provisions the Regulator must notify the authorised person of any direction that the Regulator proposes to give, and the reasons for giving it, give the authorised person a reasonable opportunity to make submissions in relation to the proposed direction and take any such submission into account in deciding whether to give the direction⁴.

1 Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 28(1). For the purpose of such a review, the Regulator may direct the authorised person in writing to give the Regulator information or documents (being information or documents concerning either the handling of the complaint, or the conduct of the matter out of which the complaint arose) to the Regulator, and the authorised person must give the information or documents to the Regulator without delay: reg 28(2).

570. Regulator investigation of unprofessional conduct.

If a person complains to the Regulator about the professional conduct of an authorised person, the Regulator may investigate the complaint¹. The Regulator may also investigate the professional conduct of an authorised person if the Regulator is satisfied, otherwise than as a result of a complaint, that there are reasonable grounds to suspect that the authorised person has failed to comply with a condition of authorisation and the alleged or suspected breach is serious enough to justify investigation².

In making the decision whether or not to investigate, the Regulator must take into account:

- 508 (1) the source of any allegation made against the authorised person and whether the allegation is credible³;
- 509 (2) if the grounds for the suspicion are not an allegation or allegations against the person, what those grounds are and the credibility of their source⁴;
- 510 (3) whether the person also engages in another business activity and, if so, what that activity is and its relationship to the business of the provision of claims management services⁵;
- 511 (4) whether there have been other credible allegations against, or suspicions about, the person of failure to comply with a condition of authorisation⁶;
- 512 (5) anything in the Regulator's records about the person that is relevant to the person's conduct as an authorised person, including, in particular, the person's application to become an authorised person, any statements by the person to the effect that he has complied with conditions of the authorisation⁷, any audit and inspection reports held by the Regulator and any previous allegations against, or suspicions about, the person that the Regulator reasonably considers to have been well founded, even if no action was taken against the person⁸;
- 513 (6) any report in the media⁹;
- 514 (7) any advertising by the person¹⁰; and
- 515 (8) any other publicly available information about the person¹¹.

For the purpose of making a decision whether or not to investigate¹² the Regulator may require¹³ an authorised person to give the Regulator relevant information or documents and in making the decision whether or not to investigate the Regulator must take into account any information or documents so provided¹⁴. The Regulator may apply to a judicial officer for a search warrant to authorise a search of premises if the Regulator is satisfied, on the basis of information available to the Regulator as a result of the request for such information or documents¹⁵, that an authorised person has failed to comply with a condition of authorisation and information or documents relevant, and of substantial value, to the investigation of the apparent failure are likely to be found at the premises¹⁶.

If such a notice specifies that information or a document is to be given in a particular form, it has not been complied with until the information or document is given in that form: reg 36(4). 571. Application for a search warrant.

On an application by the Regulator a judge of the High Court, Circuit judge or justice of the peace may issue a warrant authorising the Regulator to enter and search premises on which a person conducts or is alleged to conduct regulated claims management business, for the purposes of investigating whether an offence has been committed¹.

The Regulator may also apply to a judicial officer for a search warrant to authorise a search of premises if the Regulator is satisfied, on the basis of information available to the Regulator as a result of a request for information or documents² that an authorised person has failed to comply with a condition of authorisation and information or documents relevant, and of substantial value, to the investigation of the apparent failure are likely to be found at the premises³.

The Regulator may apply to a judicial officer for a search warrant to authorise a search of premises if there is reason to believe that an authorised person has failed to comply with a condition of authorisation and information or documents relevant, and of substantial value, to the investigation of the apparent failure are likely to be found at the premises and either:

- 516 (1) the Regulator has required the authorised person to give the Regulator the information or documents⁴ and the authorised person has not done so within the period permitted by the requirement⁵; or
- 517 (2) there is reason to believe that if the Regulator required the authorised person to give the information or documents⁶, documents relevant to the investigation of the apparent failure would be removed, tampered with or destroyed⁷.

A judicial officer must not issue a search warrant to investigate professional conduct⁸ unless he is satisfied that the warrant is for the purpose of investigating a complaint about the activities of an authorised person or assessing compliance with a condition or conditions of an authorisation⁹.

1 Compensation Act 2006 s 8(5)(a) (renumbered by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 6(1), (2) (a)). The Regulator may take copies of written or electronic records found on such a search and, for that purpose he may take possession of any written or electronic records found on the search: Compensation Act 2006 s 8(5)(b), (6) (s 8(5)(b) added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 6(1), (2)(b)). The Secretary of State must make regulations specifying matters of which a judge or justice of the peace must be satisfied, or to which he must have regard, before issuing a warrant under s 8(5), and regulating the exercise of a power under or by virtue of s 8(4) or (5), whether by restricting the circumstances in which a power may be exercised, by specifying conditions to be complied with in the exercise of a power, or otherwise: s 8(8). As from a day to be appointed the Secretary of State may not make regulations under s 8(8) unless they are made in accordance with a recommendation made by the Legal Services Board or the Secretary of State has consulted the Legal Services Board about the making of the regulations: s 8(9) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 1, 6(1), (3)). However the Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, have already been made.

A person commits an offence if without reasonable excuse he obstructs the Regulator in the exercise of a power under the Compensation Act 2006 s 8(4)-(6), or by virtue of Schedule para 14, and is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale: s 10.

For the purposes of s 8(8), the matters of which a judicial officer must be satisfied when considering an application under s 8(5) are that there is reason to believe that information or documents relevant, and of substantial value, to the investigation of an alleged or suspected contravention of s 4(1) are likely to be found at the premises concerned and the following apply in the particular case:

- 411 (1) there is reason to believe that if the Regulator were to require, under reg 33, to be given the information or documents, the information or documents would be removed, tampered with or destroyed (Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 34(1), (2));
- 412 (2) the person has been required to give information or documents to the Regulator under reg 33, and has not done so within the period permitted by the requirement (reg 34(1), (3));
- 413 (3) there is reason to believe, on the basis of information or documents provided to the Regulator in answer to a requirement under reg 33, that further investigation is justified of the alleged or suspected contravention in relation to which the requirement was made, there are further documents relevant to the investigation and if the Regulator were to require, under reg 33, to be given the further documents, they would be removed, tampered with or destroyed (reg 34(1), (5)).

An application for a search warrant in relation to which head (2) applies must set out the steps taken to require the person to provide information or documents under reg 33, and the person's response, if any (reg 34(4)). 'Standard scale' means the standard scale of maximum fines for summary offences as set out in the Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 37: see the Interpretation Act 1978 s 5, Sch 1 (definition added by the Criminal Justice Act 1988 s 170(1), Sch 15 para 58); and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 142. At the date at which this volume states the law, the standard scale is as follows: level 1, £200; level 2, £500; level 3, £1,000; level 4, £2,500; level 5, £5,000: Criminal Justice Act 1982 s 37(2) (substituted by the Criminal Justice Act 1991 s 17(1)). As to the determination of the amount of the fine actually imposed, as distinct from the level on the standard scale which it may not exceed, see the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 164; and SENTENCING AND DISPOSITION OF OFFENDERS vol 92 (2010) PARA 144.

572. Search warrants generally.

A judicial officer may, on application by the Regulator¹, issue a warrant² authorising an officer of the Regulator to enter and search premises³. An application for a warrant must state that no judicial officer has refused to issue a warrant based on another application that is in substance the same⁴ and a judicial officer must not issue a warrant in response to an application unless he is satisfied that no judicial officer has refused to issue a warrant based on another application that is in substance the same⁵.

Any officer of the Regulator who is authorised to execute search warrants may execute a warrant to enter and search premises⁶. Entry and search under a warrant must be within three months from the date of its issue and must be at a reasonable hour⁷. A warrant authorises a search of premises only to the extent required for the purpose for which the warrant was issued and for entry on only one occasion⁸.

If the occupier of premises which are to be entered and searched is present when an officer of the Regulator seeks to execute a warrant to enter and search them, the officer must identify himself to the occupier and show the occupier documentary evidence that he is an officer of the Regulator, show the warrant to the occupier and give the occupier a copy of it⁹.

The officer of the Regulator who executes a warrant may take a copy of any record for which the warrant authorises a search and may require any information that is stored in electronic form, and is accessible from the premises, to be produced in a form in which it can be copied and in which it is visible and legible, or from which it can be produced in a visible and legible form, if he has reasonable grounds for believing that it is a record for which the warrant authorises a search¹⁰.

1 If the Regulator applies for a warrant (whether the application is made under Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, Pt 9 (ie regs 31-45) or under the Compensation Act 2006 s 8(5)) he must:

414 (1) state in the application:

5. (a) the ground on which he makes the application;

6. (b) whether the application is made under Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, Pt 9 (ie regs 31-45) or under the Compensation Act 2006 s 8(5); and

415 (2) specify in the application:

7. (a) each set of premises which it is desired to enter and search; and

8. (b) so far as is practicable, the material to be sought (Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 39(2)).

An application is to be made ex parte and supported by information in writing: reg 39(3). When applying for a warrant, the Regulator must have regard as far as possible to the relevant provisions of any code issued under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 66 in relation to searches of premises: Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 39(4).

2 A warrant:

- 416 (1) must set out the name of the officer of the Regulator who applied for it and the date on which it was issued (Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 41(1)(a));
- 417 (2) must specify each set of premises to be searched (reg 41(1)(b));
- 418 (3) must specify, so far as is practicable, the material sought (reg 41(1)(c)); and
- 419 (4) must state that it was issued under the Compensation Act 2006 s 8(5) (see PARA 571) or the Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 40, as the case may be (reg 41(1)(d)).

The appropriate number of copies of the warrant must be made which, in the case of a warrant that specifies only one set of premises, is two and, in the case of a warrant that specifies two or more sets of premises, is one more than the number of sets of premises specified: reg 41(2), (3). The copies must be clearly certified as copies: reg 41(4).

3 Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 40(1). Such a warrant may be issued if the judicial officer is satisfied:

- 420 (1) that a ground specified in reg 34 (see PARA 571) or reg 37 (see PARA 571), as the case requires, for application for the issue of a warrant has been made out (reg 40(1)(a));
- 421 (2) that the material to be sought does not consist of or include items subject to legal privilege, excluded material or special procedure material (reg 40(1)(b)); and
- 422 (3) that at least one of the conditions set out below applies in relation to each set of premises (reg 40(1)(c)).

The conditions referred to in head (2) are:

- 423 (a) that it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant entry to the premises (reg 40(2)(a));
- 424 (b) that it is practicable to communicate with a person entitled to grant entry to the premises, but it is not practicable to communicate with any person entitled to grant access to the material (reg 40(2)(b));
- 425 (c) that entry to the premises will not be granted unless a warrant is produced (reg 40(2)(c));
- 426 (d) that the purpose of a search may be frustrated or seriously prejudiced unless an officer of the Regulator arriving at the premises can secure immediate entry to them (reg 40(2)(d)).

A judicial officer may, on application by the Regulator, authorise an officer of the Regulator to take possession of any written or electronic records for which a search has been authorised under reg 40(1) if the officer has reasonable grounds for believing that:

- 427 (i) those records have been obtained in consequence of, or are evidence in relation to a contravention of the Compensation Act 2006 s 4(1) (see PARA 553) or non-compliance with a condition of authorisation (Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 40(4), (5)(a) (added by SI 2008/1441));
- 428 (ii) it is necessary to take copies of those records (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 40(4), (5)(b) (as so added));
- 429 (iii) it is necessary to take possession of those records to take copies of them (reg 40(4), (5)(c) (as so added)).

5 Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 40(3).

6 Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 42(1). When executing a warrant, an officer of the Regulator must have regard as far as possible to the relevant provisions of any code issued under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 s 66 (see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 856) in relation to searches of premises: reg 42(6).

7 Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 42(2), (3).

8 Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 42(4), (5). The officer of the Regulator who executes a warrant must make an endorsement on it stating whether any of the material sought was found, whether anything was copied, whether possession has been taken of any written or electronic records and whether possession was taken of any written or electronic records additional to those sought: reg 42(10) (amended by SI 2008/1441). In the case of a warrant that authorises entry to and search of two or more sets of premises, the officer of the Regulator who executes the warrant must make a separate endorsement in accordance with Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 42(10) for each set of premises entered and searched and must specify in each endorsement the premises to which it relates: reg 42(11).

9 Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 42(7). If the occupier of such premises is not present when an officer of the Regulator seeks to execute a warrant, but a person who appears to the officer to be in charge of the premises is present, reg 42(7) has effect as if each reference to the occupier were a reference to that other person: reg 42(8). If there is no person present at the premises who appears to the officer of the Regulator to be in charge of them, the officer must leave a copy of the warrant in a prominent place on the premises: reg 42(9).

10 Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 43(1), (2). However, nothing in reg 43 authorises an officer of the Regulator to take a copy of anything that the officer has reasonable grounds for believing to be an item subject to legal privilege, excluded material or special procedure material: reg 43(3). Where an officer has taken possession of electronic records pursuant to reg 40(4) that officer may produce records from it in a form that can be copied and is visible and legible, if that officer has reasonable grounds for believing that those records are records for which the warrant authorises a search: reg 43(2A) (added by SI 2008/1441). If an officer of the Regulator copies a record for which a warrant authorises a search and a person shows himself to be the occupier of premises on which the record was found or to have had custody or control of it and the person asks the officer to give him a record of what was copied, the officer must do so within a reasonable time: Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 44. Where an officer of the Regulator takes possession of any written or electronic records pursuant to reg 40(4) that officer must provide a list of those records to a person within the meaning of reg 44(b) within a reasonable time, take copies of those records as soon as possible and return those records to a person within the meaning of reg 44(b) once they have been copied: reg 44A (added by SI 2008/1441). A copy made of a record for which a search was authorised by a warrant may be retained for as long as is necessary in all the circumstances: Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 45(1). Without prejudice to the generality of reg 45(1), a copy made for the purposes of an investigation may be retained for use as evidence if the investigation is in relation to an offence, at a trial for the offence and if the investigation is in relation to an alleged or suspected failure to comply with a condition of authorisation, before the Tribunal in proceedings in relation to the failure: reg 45(2).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(5) OTHER LEGAL SERVICE PROVIDERS/(i) Claims Management Services/573. Cancellation, suspension and variation of authorisations.

573. Cancellation, suspension and variation of authorisations.

If, after investigation of an alleged or suspected failure by an authorised person to comply with a condition of authorisation, the Regulator is satisfied that the person has failed to comply with the condition and cancellation, suspension or variation of the person's authorisation is appropriate¹, the Regulator may cancel the authorisation, or suspend it for a period or vary the authorisation by limiting the classes of claims management services that the person may undertake or provide, or otherwise varying the conditions of the authorisation (including by imposing an additional condition)².

Before cancelling, suspending or varying an authorised person's authorisation, the Regulator must give written notice to the authorised person:

- 518 (1) stating that the Regulator proposes to cancel, suspend or vary the authorisation, as the case may be³;
- 519 (2) in the case of suspension or variation, setting out the terms of the proposed suspension or variation⁴;
- 520 (3) setting out the reasons for the Regulator's decision, and a summary of the evidence on which the Regulator relies⁵;
- 521 (4) inviting the person to make a written submission in relation to the proposed cancellation, suspension or variation⁶; and
- 522 (5) specifying a reasonable period within which the person must do so⁷.

Before cancelling, suspending or varying the authorisation, the Regulator must take into account any submission made by the authorised person within the period allowed (or any further period allowed by the Regulator)⁸.

1 The cancellation of, or the proposed suspension or variation of, the person's authorisation is appropriate for this purpose only if the nature and seriousness of the person's failure to comply with the condition is such that, to protect the public, it is necessary to cancel the authorisation, suspend it for the proposed period or vary it in the proposed way, as the case may be: Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 46(3).

2 Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 46(1), (2).

8 Compensation (Claims Management Service) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 46(5). If the Regulator decides to cancel, suspend or vary an authorised person's authorisation, the Regulator must give written notice to the authorised person of the cancellation, suspension or variation: reg 47(1). The notice must specify a day as its earliest day of effect: reg 47(2). The notice may be served by post, but if so must be served by a method that provides a record of its delivery: reg 47(3). The cancellation, suspension or variation has effect from the later of the day specified in it as its earliest day of effect; and either, if it is sent by electronic communication, the day it is taken to have been received under reg 5(2) (see PARA 564) or, if it is sent or served in any other way, the day it is actually received by the authorised person: reg 47(4).

574. Enforcement.

The Regulator may apply to the court¹ for an injunction restraining a person from providing regulated claims management services if he is not an authorised person, an exempt person², or the subject of a waiver³. The Regulator may investigate whether an offence has been committed⁴, and institute criminal proceedings in respect of an offence⁵.

1 le the High Court or a county court: Compensation Act 2006 s 8(2).

2 As to the meaning of 'authorised person' see PARA 553 note 2.

3 Compensation Act 2006 s 8(1). The waiver referred to in the text is a waiver in accordance with regulations under s 9 (see PARA 563).

4 For the purpose of investigating whether an offence has been committed the Regulator may require the provision of information or documents: Compensation Act 2006 s 8(4). For the purposes of s 8(4)-(6) a reference to a Regulator includes a reference to a person authorised by him in writing: s 8(7). Before requiring a person to provide information or documents for the purpose of investigating whether a person has contravened s 4(1) the Regulator must consider whether investigation is justified: Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 32(1). If an allegation of such a contravention has been made, the Regulator must consider whether the allegation is on its face credible and, taken with any information offered by the complainant in support of it, is sufficiently detailed and specific for an investigation to be practicable: reg 32(2). In all cases the Regulator must take into account:

430 (1) if the person alleged or suspected to have contravened the Compensation Act 2006 s 4(1) has applied for an authorisation under s 5(1)(a), or has sought exemption under s 6, the application or request, its result and anything else in the Regulator's records about it (Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 32(3)(a)); and 431 (2) anything else in the Regulator's records that is relevant (for example, anything that tends to establish a pattern of allegations against, or apparent contraventions by, the person) (reg 32(3)(b)).

For the purposes of head (1) the Regulator may consider material in, or the result of, an application or a request for exemption even if the application was for authorisation to provide, or the exemption was sought in relation to, another kind of regulated claims management service than that in relation to which the contravention is alleged or suspected to have occurred: reg 32(4).

The Regulator may require a person to give the Regulator information or documents for the purpose of investigating an alleged or suspected contravention of the Compensation Act 2006 s 4(1) if the person is the person alleged to have, or suspected of having, contravened s 4(1) or is otherwise likely to be able to provide information relevant to the investigation of the alleged or suspected contravention: Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, reg 33(1). Such a requirement must be by notice in writing: reg 33(2). Such a notice must specify or describe the information or documents that are to be given to the Regulator, the place at which, and the period within which, the information or documents are to be given to the Regulator and may specify the form in which the information or a document is to be given: reg 33(3). If such a notice specifies that information or a document is to be given in a particular form, the notice has not been complied with until the information or document is given in that form: reg 33(4). The period specified must be a period that is, in all the circumstances, reasonable: reg 33(5). The Regulator may allow more time for the giving of the information or documents if the person required to give the information or documents so requests in writing and the Regulator is satisfied that, because of exceptional circumstances, it is reasonable to allow the extra time: reg 33(6). Nothing in the Compensation (Claims Management Services) Regulations 2006, SI 2006/3322, authorises a search of any premises: reg 33(7).

An appeal or reference to the Tribunal must be heard by a member of the panel of chairmen selected in accordance with arrangements made by the President and sitting alone or, in accordance with those arrangements, with one or two members of the lay panel; and a chairman who sits with one other member must have a casting vote¹⁴.

An authorised person may appeal to the Court of Appeal on a point of law arising from a decision of the Tribunal¹⁵.

1 The Claims Management Services Tribunal Rules 2007, SI 2007/90, make provision for the procedure for all appeals to the Claims Management Services Tribunal: r 3.

2 Compensation Act 2006 s 12(4)(a). An appeal to the Tribunal is to be made by way of written notice (the 'appeal notice') containing information relating to the appeal and the appellant and may be withdrawn by the appellant at any time before the hearing or with the Tribunal's permission: see the Claims Management Services Tribunal Rules 2007, SI 2007/90, rr 4, 13, 22. The Regulator must file a written statement (a 'statement of case') in support of his decision and the appellant must file a written reply: see rr 5, 6, 19. Following the filing of the appellant's reply the Regulator may disclose further material: see r 7. The statement of case, the written reply and the further disclosure of material must all be accompanied by a list of relevant documents and, on request, provide a copy of the list to the other party: see rr 5(4)(a), 6(3), 7(1), 9. However there are exceptions to disclosure under those provisions: see r 8. A pre-hearing review may be held when appropriate: see r 11. The Tribunal may at any time give directions which may include directions fixing the time and place of the hearing of the appeal and varying any time limit: see rr 10, 12, 14-16. The Tribunal may, on the application of the appellant, direct that the effect of an effective decision is suspended or further suspended, wholly or partly: see r 17. The Tribunal may terminate the suspension of any decision: see r 18. A preliminary hearing may be held: see r 21. All hearings must be in public; however, on the agreement of the parties, the Tribunal may determine an appeal without an oral hearing: see rr 23, 24. The parties may appear at the hearing and be represented by any person unless the Tribunal is satisfied that there are good and sufficient reasons for refusing to permit them to assist or represent a party: see r 25. As to the procedure at hearings see r 26. Generally the Tribunal must make arrangements for public access to its decision: see r 27. If the tribunal is satisfied that its decision was wrongly made as a result of an error, new evidence has become available or there is good reason the Tribunal may review and set aside its decision: see r 28. An appeal may be made to the Court of Appeal which may remit an appeal to the Tribunal for rehearing and determination: see rr 29-31. A register is to be kept of appeals to, and decisions of the Tribunal: see r 32. Where a party fails to comply with the Claims Management Services Tribunal Rules 2007, SI 2007/90, or a direction given under them, the Tribunal may dismiss the whole or part of the appeal or strike out the whole or part of the statement of claim depending on whether the party failing to comply is the Regulator of the appellant: see r 34. As to general provisions relating to the Tribunal see rr 32-38.

UPDATE

584-586 Acting in the purported exercise of rights of audience etc ... Not entitled to carry on the activity

Repeal of these provisions in force 1 January 2010: SI 2009/3250.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(6) OFFENCES AND RESTRICTION ON PRACTICE/(ii) Person Not Entitled to Carry Out a Legal Activity/586. Not entitled to carry on the activity.

586. Not entitled to carry on the activity.

Until a day to be appointed the following provision has effect¹. If any person does any act in the purported exercise of any right granted to authorised practitioners by virtue of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 when he is not an authorised practitioner he is guilty of an offence².

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect³. It is an offence for a person to carry on an activity (the 'relevant activity') which is a reserved legal activity⁴ unless that person is entitled to carry on the relevant activity⁵. A person who is guilty of such an offence by reason of an act done in the purported exercise of a right of audience, or a right to conduct litigation, in relation to any proceedings or contemplated proceedings is also guilty of contempt of the court concerned and may be punished accordingly⁶. It is a defence for the accused to show that the accused did not know, and could not reasonably have been expected to know, that the offence was being committed⁷.

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 70 is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 93, Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 70(2) (prospectively repealed: see note 1). A person guilty of such an offence is liable, on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum or to both or, on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine or to both: s 70(4) (as so prospectively repealed). As to the commission of the offence by a body corporate see s 70(8); and PARA 584. As to the statutory maximum see PARA 553 note 6. Certain activities may only be undertaken by a firm if the firm has a principal who is a solicitor, or who is a registered European lawyer or recognised body qualified to provide that service: see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 20.02. Rule 20 also applies to an overseas practice: see r 15.20.

3 The Legal Services Act 2007 ss 14, 198 are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

4 As to the meaning of 'reserved legal activity' see PARA 512.

5 Legal Services Act 2007 s 14(1). A person who is guilty of an offence under s 14(1) is liable on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum (or both) and on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine (or both): s 14(3). However in relation to an offence under s 14(1) committed before the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 154(1), the reference to 12 months is to be read as a reference to six months: Legal Services Act 2007 s 14(5). As to offences committed by bodies corporate and unincorporated bodies see s 197; and PARA 583. A local weights and measures authority may institute proceedings for an offence under s 14 if the activity which it is alleged that the accused was not entitled to carry on constitutes reserved instrument activities: s 198(1). A weights and measures officer who has reasonable cause to suspect that a relevant offence may have been committed may, at any reasonable time:

464 (1) enter any premises which are not used solely as a dwelling (s 198(4)(a));

465 (2) require any officer, agent or other competent person on the premises who is, or may be, in possession of information relevant to an investigation of the suspected offence to provide such information (s 198(4)(b));

466 (3) require the production of any document which may be relevant to such an investigation (s 198(4)(c));

467 (4) take copies, or extracts, of any such documents (s 198(4)(d));

- 468 (5) seize and retain any document which the weights and measures officer has reason to believe may be required as evidence in proceedings for a relevant offence (s 198(4)(e)).

'Relevant offence' means an offence in relation to which proceedings may be instituted by virtue of s 198(1) or (2) and 'weights and measures officer' means an officer of a local weights and measures authority who is authorised by the authority to exercise the powers conferred by s 198(4): s 198(3). Any person exercising a power given by s 198(4) must, if asked to do so, produce evidence that that person is a weights and measures officer: s 198(5). A justice of the peace may issue a warrant under this section if satisfied, on information on oath given by a weights and measures officer, that there is reasonable cause to believe that a relevant offence may have been committed and that:

- 469 (a) entry to the premises concerned, or production of any documents which may be relevant to an investigation of the relevant offence, has been or is likely to be refused to a weights and measures officer (s 198(6)(a)); or
- 470 (b) there is reasonable cause to believe that, if production of any such document were to be required by the weights and measures officer without a warrant having been issued under s 198, the document would not be produced but would be removed from the premises or hidden, tampered with or destroyed (s 198(6)(b)).

A warrant issued under s 198 must authorise the weights and measures officer accompanied, where that officer considers it appropriate, by a constable or other person to enter the premises specified in the information, using such force as is reasonably necessary and to exercise any of the powers given to the weights and measures officer by s 198(4): s 198(7). It is an offence for a person ('P'):

- 471 (i) intentionally to obstruct a weights and measures officer in the exercise of any power under s 198 (s 198(8)(a));
- 472 (ii) intentionally to fail to comply with any requirement properly imposed on P by a weights and measures officer in the exercise of any such power (s 198(8)(b));
- 473 (iii) to fail, without reasonable excuse, to give a weights and measures officer any assistance or information which the weights and measures officer may reasonably require of P for the purpose of exercising any such power (s 198(8)(c)); or
- 474 (iv) in giving to a weights and measures officer any information which P has been required to give a weights and measures officer exercising any such power, to make any statement which P knows to be false or misleading in a material particular (s 198(8)(d)).

A person who is guilty of an offence under s 198(8) is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale: s 198(9). Nothing in s 198 is to be taken to require any person to answer any question put to that person by a weights and measures officer, or to give any information to such an officer, if to do so might incriminate that person: s 198(10). As to the standard scale see PARA 571 note 1.

6 Legal Services Act 2007 s 14(4). As to the meaning of 'court' see PARA 302 note 13.

586 Not entitled to carry on the activity

NOTE 2--Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 15.20 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/2. THE PROVISION OF LEGAL SERVICES/(6) OFFENCES AND RESTRICTION ON PRACTICE/(ii) Person Not Entitled to Carry Out a Legal Activity/587. Carrying on reserved legal activity through a person not entitled.

587. Carrying on reserved legal activity through a person not entitled.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions apply¹. It is an offence for a person ('P') to carry on an activity ('the relevant activity') which is a reserved legal activity², despite P being entitled to carry on the relevant activity³ if:

- 567 (1) P carries on the relevant activity by virtue of an employee of P ('E') carrying it on in E's capacity as such an employee⁴; and
- 568 (2) in carrying on the relevant activity, E commits an offence⁵ of not being entitled to carry on that activity⁶.

It is a defence for the accused to show that the accused took all reasonable precautions and exercised all due diligence to avoid committing the offence⁷.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 ss 16, 198 are to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 As to the meaning of 'reserved legal activity' see PARA 512. A person who is guilty of an offence under the Legal Services Act 2007 s 16(1) by reason of an act done in the purported exercise of a right of audience, or a right to conduct litigation, in relation to any proceedings or contemplated proceedings is also guilty of contempt of the court concerned and may be punished accordingly: s 16(6). As to the meaning of 'court' see PARA 302 note 13.

3 Legal Services Act 2007 s 16(1). A person who is guilty of an offence under s 16(1) is liable on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months or a fine not exceeding the statutory maximum (or both) and on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or a fine (or both): s 16(5). As to the statutory maximum see PARA 553 note 6. In relation to an offence under s 16(1) committed before the commencement of the Criminal Justice Act 2003 s 154(1), the reference to 12 months is to be read as a reference to six months: Legal Services Act 2007 s 16(7). As to offences committed by bodies corporate and unincorporated bodies see s 197; and PARA 583. A local weights and measures authority may institute proceedings for an offence under s 16 if the activity which it is alleged that E was not entitled to carry on constitutes reserved instrument activities: s 198(2). A weights and measures officer who has reasonable cause to suspect that a relevant offence may have been committed may, at any reasonable time:

- 475 (1) enter any premises which are not used solely as a dwelling (s 198(4)(a));
- 476 (2) require any officer, agent or other competent person on the premises who is, or may be, in possession of information relevant to an investigation of the suspected offence to provide such information (s 198(4)(b));
- 477 (3) require the production of any document which may be relevant to such an investigation (s 198(4)(c));
- 478 (4) take copies, or extracts, of any such documents (s 198(4)(d));
- 479 (5) seize and retain any document which the weights and measures officer has reason to believe may be required as evidence in proceedings for a relevant offence (s 198(4)(e)).

As to the meanings of 'relevant offence' and 'weights and measures officer' see PARA 586 note 3. Any person exercising a power given by s 198(4) must, if asked to do so, produce evidence that that person is a weights and measures officer: s 198(5). A justice of the peace may issue a warrant under this section if satisfied, on information on oath given by a weights and measures officer, that there is reasonable cause to believe that a relevant offence may have been committed and that:

- 480 (a) entry to the premises concerned, or production of any documents which may be relevant to an investigation of the relevant offence, has been or is likely to be refused to a weights and measures officer (s 198(6)(a)); or
- 481 (b) there is reasonable cause to believe that, if production of any such document were to be required by the weights and measures officer without a warrant having been issued under s 198, the document would not be produced but would be removed from the premises or hidden, tampered with or destroyed (s 198(6)(b)).

A warrant issued under s 198 must authorise the weights and measures officer accompanied, where that officer considers it appropriate, by a constable or other person to enter the premises specified in the information, using such force as is reasonably necessary and to exercise any of the powers given to the weights and measures officer by s 198(4): s 198(7). It is an offence for a person ('P'):

- 482 (i) intentionally to obstruct a weights and measures officer in the exercise of any power under s 198 (s 198(8)(a));
- 483 (ii) intentionally to fail to comply with any requirement properly imposed on P by a weights and measures officer in the exercise of any such power (s 198(8)(b));
- 484 (iii) to fail, without reasonable excuse, to give a weights and measures officer any assistance or information which the weights and measures officer may reasonably require of P for the purpose of exercising any such power (s 198(8)(c)); or
- 485 (iv) in giving to a weights and measures officer any information which P has been required to give a weights and measures officer exercising any such power, to make any statement which P knows to be false or misleading in a material particular (s 198(8)(d)).

A person who is guilty of an offence under s 198(8) is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 3 on the standard scale: s 198(9). Nothing in s 198 is to be taken to require any person to answer any question put to that person by a weights and measures officer, or to give any information to such an officer, if to do so might incriminate that person: s 198(10). As to the standard scale see PARA 571 note 1.

4 Legal Services Act 2007 s 16(2)(a). If P is a body, references in s 16(2) to an employee of P include references to a manager of P: s 16(3). As to the meaning of 'manager' see PARA 369 note 17.

5 It is an offence under the Legal Services Act 2007 s 14 (see PARA 586).

Unqualified person not to act as a solicitor.

B. UNQUALIFIED PERSONS ACTING AS A SOLICITOR ETC

589. Unqualified person not to act as a solicitor.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Subject to certain exceptions² no unqualified person³ may act as a solicitor⁴, or as such issue any writ or process, or commence, prosecute or defend any action, suit or other proceedings, in his own name or in the name of any other person, in any court of civil or criminal jurisdiction⁵; or act as a solicitor in any cause or matter, civil or criminal, to be heard or determined before any justice or justices or any commissioners of Her Majesty's revenue⁶.

Any person who contravenes this provision⁷ is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for not more than two years or to a fine, or to both⁸, and is guilty of contempt of the court in which the action, suit, cause, matter or proceeding in relation to which he so acts is brought or taken⁹ and may be punished accordingly¹⁰.

As from a day to be appointed¹¹ no unqualified person is to act as a solicitor and any person who contravenes this provision is guilty of an offence and liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for not more than two years or to a fine or both¹².

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 20 is substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 25 and the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 27 is repealed by the Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 16 paras 1, 29, Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 Nothing in the Solicitors Act 1974 Pt I (ss 1-30) affects any enactment empowering an unqualified person to conduct, defend or otherwise act in relation to any legal proceedings: s 27 (prospectively repealed: see note 1). See PARA 642 note 12 where examples are given of enactments authorising unqualified persons so to act. Apart from this specific exception, a litigant has a general right to appear in person in any court and conduct his own case, although the right is not unqualified (eg certain proceedings may be brought only by the Attorney General or some other person or body): see PARA 1109 et seq. A prisoner under sentence has no right to be heard in person: Re Wring, Re Cook [1960] 1 All ER 536n, [1960] 1 WLR 138, DC. As to criminal proceedings see CRIMINAL LAW, EVIDENCE AND PROCEDURE vol 11(2) (2006 Reissue) PARA 631 et seq; MAGISTRATES vol 29(2) (Reissue) PARA 752.

3 'Unqualified person' means a person who is not qualified under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 1 (see PARA 589 note 3) to act as a solicitor: s 87(1). References to unqualified persons and to persons include references to bodies corporate: Solicitors Act 1974 s 24(2). However, notwithstanding s 24(2), s 20 does not apply to a recognised body: Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(3). As to the meaning of 'recognised body' see PARA 687 note 3. As to the meaning of 'solicitor' see PARA 600 note 1 and as to solicitors generally see PARA 600 et seq.

4 An unqualified person does not act as a solicitor for the purposes of the Solicitors Act 1974 s 20 merely by doing acts of a kind commonly done by solicitors since, to fall within that phrase, the act in question must be an act which it is lawful only for a qualified person to do and/or any other act in relation to which the unqualified person purports to act as a solicitor: see Piper Double Glazing Ltd v DC Contracts (1992) Ltd [1994] 1 All ER 177, [1994] 1 WLR 777.

5 Solicitors Act 1974 s 20(1)(a) (prospectively repealed: see note 1). Certain activities may only be undertaken by a firm if the firm has a principal who is a solicitor, or who is a registered European lawyer or recognised body qualified to provide that service: see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 20.02. Rule 20 also applies to an overseas practice: see r 15.20.

6 Solicitors Act 1974 s 20(1)(b) (prospectively repealed: see note 1).

7 As from a day to be appointed a person exempted from the provisions of the Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(1) (by virtue of s 23(2) or (3)) (see PARA 592) or the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 55 (see PARA 592) may, in any non-contentious or common form probate business, apply for a grant of probate or for letters of administration or oppose such an application without committing an offence under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 20: s 20(3) (prospectively added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 18 para 11; and prospectively repealed: see note 1). 'Non-contentious or common form probate business' has the same meaning as in the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 128 (see PARA 933 note 2): Solicitors Act 1974 s 20(4) (prospectively added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 18 para 11).

591. Unqualified person not to pretend to be solicitor.

Any unqualified person¹ who wilfully pretends to be, or takes or uses any name, title, addition or description implying that he is, qualified or recognised by law as qualified to act as a solicitor² is guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale³. However, no offence is committed under this provision by the use of the term: (1) 'patent attorney' in reference to a registered patent agent or 'European patent attorney' in reference to a person on the European list⁴; or (2) 'trade mark attorney' in reference to a registered trade mark agent⁵.

Proceedings for the offence may be brought at any time before the expiration of two years from the commission of the offence or six months from its first discovery by the prosecutor, whichever period expires first⁶. If an act is done by a body corporate, or by any director, officer or servant of a body corporate, of such a nature or in such a manner as to be calculated to imply that the body corporate is qualified or recognised by law as qualified to act as a solicitor, the body corporate is guilty of an offence and is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 4 on the standard scale⁷, and the director, officer or servant doing the act is similarly liable⁸.

Neither membership of the Law Society⁹ nor the holding of a current practising certificate disqualifies a magistrate from adjudicating on proceedings in respect of these penalties¹⁰. It is thought that evidence of bias must be proved, and neither fact of itself would be sufficient¹¹.

1 As to the meaning of 'unqualified person' see PARA 589 note 3.

2 As to the meaning of 'solicitor' see PARA 600 note 1 and as to solicitors generally see PARA 600 et seq.

3 Solicitors Act 1974 s 21 (amended by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 1 para 6, Sch 9 para 17). As to the standard scale see PARA 571 note 1. An advertisement which contains a representation by someone that he is a person recognised by law and qualified to act as a solicitor, if wilfully and falsely made, is a pretence of the kind contemplated by the Solicitors Act 1974 s 21: Carter v Butcher [1966] 1 QB 526, [1965] 1 All ER 994, DC. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

6 See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 26 (amended by the Magistrates' Courts Act 1980 s 154, Sch 7 para 132). This also applies until a day to be appointed to proceedings for the offences under the Solicitors Act 1974 ss 22, 23 (see PARAS 592, 595): s 26 (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 28, Sch 23).

Unqualified person not to prepare papers for probate.

592. Unqualified person not to prepare papers for probate.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Any unqualified person² who, directly or indirectly, draws or prepares any papers on which to found or oppose a grant of probate or a grant of letters of administration³ is guilty of an offence⁴ unless he proves that the act was not done for or in expectation of any fee, gain or reward⁵.

This provision does not apply to⁶:

- 571 (1) a barrister or a duly certificated notary public⁷;
- 572 (2) any act done by a person at the direction and under the supervision of another person if that other person was at the time his employer, a partner of his employer or a fellow employee and the act could have been done by that other person for or in expectation of any fee, gain or reward without committing an offence under this provision⁸;
- 573 (3) a recognised body⁹;
- 574 (4) any act done by an officer or employee of a recognised body if:

 - 25. (b) it could have been done by that other person for or in expectation of any fee, gain or reward without committing an offence¹⁰;
- 20 575 (5) any person to whom exemption from this provision is granted by an approved body¹¹.

1 As from a day to be appointed, the Solicitors Act 1974 s 23 (substituted by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 7) and the Solicitors Act 1974 s 55 are repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 26(b), Sch 21 para 88, Sch 23; the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(4) is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 80, 81(1), (7), Sch 23; and the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 55(1) is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 88, Sch 23. At the date at which this volume states the law no such days had been appointed.

2 As to the meaning of 'unqualified person' see PARA 589 note 3.

3 As to grants of probate and grants of letters of administration see EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS vol 17(2) (Reissue) PARA 194 et seq.

4 Such a person is liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding level 1 on the standard scale: Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(1) (substituted; and prospectively repealed (see note 1)). As to when proceedings for this offence may be brought see PARA 591. Where a person does any act which would constitute an offence under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(1) but for an exemption given to him by s 23 or by or under any other enactment, he is not guilty of an offence under s 22 (see PARA 595) by virtue of having done that act: s 23(4) (prospectively added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 54(1) as from a day to be appointed under s 124(3)). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed. As to the standard scale see PARA 571 note 1.

5 Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(1) (substituted; and prospectively repealed (see note 1)).

6 As from a day to be appointed the Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(2), (3) are substituted and s 23(2A), (4) are added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 54(1) so that the exemptions set out in heads (1) and (2) in the text will be replaced with the following exemptions:

- 489 (1) a barrister (Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(2)(a) (as so prospectively substituted and prospectively repealed (see note 1)));
- 490 (2) a duly certificated notary public (Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(2)(b) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed));
- 491 (3) the Public Trustee (s 23(3)(c) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed));
- 492 (4) the Official Solicitor (s 23(3)(d) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed));
- 493 (5) any institution which is authorised under the Banking Act 1987 Pt I (ss 1-49) (repealed) by the Bank of England to carry on a deposit-taking business and satisfies certain conditions (Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(2)(e) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed));
- 494 (6) any building society which is authorised under the Building Societies Act 1986 s 9 (repealed) to raise money from its members by the Building Societies Commission and satisfies certain conditions (Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(2)(f) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed));
- 495 (7) any insurance company which is authorised under the Insurance Companies Act 1982 s 3 or s 4 (repealed) and satisfies certain conditions (Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(2)(g) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed));
- 496 (8) any subsidiary (as defined by the Companies Act 1985 s 736(1) (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 25)) of a body falling within heads (5) to (7) above whose business, or any part of whose business, consists of acting as trustee or executor and which satisfies certain conditions (Solicitors Act 1984 s 23(2)(h) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed));
- 497 (9) a jointly controlled body or subsidiary whose business, or any part of whose business, consists of acting as trustee or executor and which satisfies certain conditions (Solicitors Act 1984 s 23(2)(i) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed));
- 498 (10) any act done by an officer or employee of a body corporate at a time when it is exempt from the prohibition by virtue of any of heads (5) to (8) above or by virtue of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 55 (prospectively repealed) (Solicitors Act 1984 s 23(3)(a) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed));
- 499 (11) any act done by any person at the direction and under the supervision of another person if that other person was at the time his employer, a partner of his employer or a fellow employee and the act could have been done by that other person for or in expectation of any fee, gain or reward without committing an offence under this provision (Solicitors Act 1984 s 23(3)(b) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed)).

At the date at which this volume states the law, however, heads (1) to (11) above are not in force.

The conditions referred to above are that the body is a member of, or otherwise subject to, a scheme which (a) has been established (whether or not exclusively) for the purpose of dealing with complaints about the provision of probate services; and (b) complies with such requirements as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Lord Chancellor with respect to matters relating to such complaints: s 23(2A) (as so prospectively substituted and repealed). At the date at which this volume states the law, no such day had been appointed.

In head (9) 'jointly controlled body' and 'subsidiary' have the meanings given by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 13 (see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 50 (2008) PARA 2134): Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(2B) (added by the Friendly Societies Act 1992 s 120(1), Sch 21 para 5). Although Sch 1 para 5 was brought into force on 1 February 1993 (see the Friendly Societies Act 1992 (Commencement No 3 and Transitional Provisions) Order 1993, SI 1993/16), it is thought that this amendment was intended to be made to the Solicitors Act 1974 s 23 as prospectively amended by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 54(1). At the date at which this volume states the law, that amendment was not in force.

7 Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(2) (substituted; and prospectively repealed (see note 1)). As to the meaning of 'duly certificated notary public' see PARA 1412.

8 Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(3) (substituted; and prospectively repealed (see note 1)).

9 Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(1) does not apply to recognised bodies notwithstanding s 24(2) (see PARA 589 note 3): see the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(3); and PARA 687. As to the meaning of 'recognised body' see

PARA 687 note 3. As from a day to be appointed the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(3) is substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 80, 81(1), (6) so as to no longer apply to the Solicitors Act 1974 s 23(1). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

10 Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(4) (prospectively repealed: see note 1). The offence referred to is an offence under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 23: Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(4) (as so prospectively repealed).

11 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 55; and PARA 503.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. A justice of the peace may issue a warrant if he is satisfied, on information on oath given by an authorised officer², that there is reasonable cause to believe that in relation to the preparation of certain instruments by unqualified persons³ an offence⁴ may have been committed and that entry to the premises concerned, or production of documents⁵ which may be relevant to such an investigation, has been or is likely to be refused to an authorised officer, or there is reasonable cause to believe that, if production of any such document were to be required by the authorised officer without a warrant having been issued, the document would not be produced but would be removed from the premises or hidden, tampered with or destroyed⁶.

A warrant so issued authorises the authorised officer to enter the premises specified in the information, using such force as is reasonably necessary and to exercise any of the powers given in such circumstances to an authorised officer⁷. The authorised officer may, if he considers it appropriate, be accompanied by a constable or any other person⁸.

(1) THE PROFESSION

(i) Introduction

600. Historical introduction.

By the Supreme Court of Judicature Act 1873, all solicitors, attorneys and proctors became solicitors of the Supreme Court and, as such, officers of the court¹. The Act created the term 'solicitor of the Supreme Court'. Before the commencement date of the Act a solicitor was a practitioner in the Court of Chancery, an 'attorney' was a practitioner in the Common Law Courts, and a 'proctor' practised in the Court of Probate, in the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes, in the High Court of Admiralty or in the ecclesiastical courts.

Even before that date, however, the term 'solicitor' had gradually come to supersede the term 'attorney' as it became increasingly the practice for the two professions to be united in one individual, although a practitioner in the common law courts was invariably styled 'attorney'. 'Attorney' signifies anyone who acts in the turn or place of another, and the power to authorise an attorney in the general sense, for example to execute a deed, has existed from a very remote period. Attorneys-at-law whose business it was to represent plaintiffs or defendants in suits or actions are, however, of more recent origin. Until the thirteenth century a suitor was required to appear in person although once he had appeared he could be represented by an attorney appointed ad hoc by letters patent or Act of Parliament, but in 1235 the Statute of Merton allowed all freemen to do suit by attorney², and this principle was gradually extended. Solicitors first appeared in the fifteenth century in the courts of equity, where they seem to have acted as business agents rather than as lawyers, the work undertaken in the common law courts by the attorneys being carried out by court officials. At first solicitors were regarded as inferior to attorneys and in 1654 a rule of court provided that one of the qualifications for admission as an attorney was to have practised for five years as 'a common solicitor'. An Act of 1728, subsequently renewed³, regulated admission to both professions⁴ and formed the basis for future developments.

Until the end of the eighteenth century attorneys and solicitors were included among the members of the Inns of Court. During the seventeenth century there were, on the one hand, repeated attempts by the judges to require all attorneys and solicitors to be members of one of the Inns of Court or of Chancery⁵ and, on the other hand, a gradually hardening policy on the part of the Inns of Court to exclude attorneys and solicitors from membership⁶ and to drive them towards the Inns of Chancery, which by the end of the seventeenth century were almost exclusively in the hands of the attorneys. In 1762 a rule of the Committee of the Four Inns of Court was passed to the effect that no attorney or solicitor was to be called to the Bar until he had discontinued practice as such for two years, and in 1793 the Bar of Lincoln's Inn made a regulation which was adopted by the other Inns of Court finally excluding attorneys and solicitors from membership of the Inn. The Society of Gentlemen Practisers in the Courts of Law and Equity was established in 1739 for the promotion of fair and honourable practice and the detection and discountenance of all unfair practices. The Society unsuccessfully challenged the rulings of the Inns of Court excluding attorneys from membership, but it was able to defeat the claims of the Scriveners' Company to establish a virtual monopoly in conveyancing and it continued in active existence, criticising and sponsoring legislation on professional matters affecting attorneys, until at least 1816, when its records ceased.

601. Admission to the profession.

By the eighteenth century the Inns of Chancery had become little more than dining clubs¹, and they never exercised the same professional discipline and control over attorneys and solicitors as did Benchers of the Inns of Court over barristers. For some time after the right to appear by attorney had been established there existed no regulation as to the admission of attorneys, although a discretionary power seems to have been vested in the chief officers of the court to appoint proper persons as attorneys, and in 1292 the judges were empowered to select a number of attorneys to do service in the courts². As early as the fourteenth century, however, the profession was evidently overcrowded, and in 1322 limitations were placed on the powers of the Barons of the Exchequer to admit attorneys³. Subsequent legislation was aimed at restricting the number of attorneys to be admitted and at imposing some measure of control over the profession⁴. An Act of 1729 provided for service under articles by students and for examinations to be conducted by the judges as to the fitness and capacity of those seeking admission as solicitors or attorneys⁵, but in fact the intermittent and informal examinations which took place before the judges, either of the common law courts or in Chancery, extended to little more than questions as to character and service under articles. The Society of Gentlemen Practisers⁶, although anxious to raise the status of the profession, was unable to take any effective steps in this direction.

In 1831 a charter was granted to The Law Society⁷, six years after its committee of management had been set up. The Society quickly turned its attention to the subject of legal education and in 1833 instituted lectures on the different branches of common law, equity and conveyancing. In 1836, rules of court were made by which persons seeking admission as attorneys were required to pass an examination conducted by the Council of the Law Society, together with certain officers of the court, and in 1837 the Master of the Rolls made a similar order for the examination in equity of solicitors. The Solicitors Act 1843 empowered the judges to make regulations for the conduct of the examinations, and the Master of the Rolls, in 1844, and the judges, in 1846, made regulations accordingly, in effect confirming the previous arrangements. In 1853 the regulations were consolidated.

The Solicitors Act 1877 placed the entire practical control of the preliminary examination (introduced by the Solicitors Act 1860⁸) and of the intermediate and final examinations in the hands of The Law Society, and the Solicitors Act 1974 vested complete control over the qualifications for admission as a solicitor in the Society, subject only to the approval by the Lord Chancellor, the Lord Chief Justice and the Master of the Rolls of the Society's training regulations. By the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990, this control was subject to important additional controls, exercised formerly by the Lord Chancellor's advisory committee, and latterly, and until a day to be appointed, by the Legal Services Consultative Panel⁹. Under the Legal Services Act 2007 an equivalent oversight is exercised by the Legal Services Board¹⁰.

1 The Inns of Chancery were eventually dissolved in the latter part of the nineteenth century, the last to disappear being New Inn and Cliffords Inn, on the dissolution of which certain funds were made available to the Council of Legal Education and the Law Society for the purposes of legal education: Order of Court of Chancery dated 7 February 1905. A. INTRODUCTION

603. Overview.

The representative organisation of solicitors¹ is the Law Society², which is incorporated as a legal entity under royal charter³. The Law Society's regulatory functions have been devolved to the Solicitors Regulation Authority⁴. The Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal was established independent of the Society and the Authority⁵.

Until a day to be appointed client complaints are dealt with by the Legal Complaints Service⁶ with an overall power to investigate complaints existing with the Legal Services Ombudsman⁷. As from a day to be appointed client complaints will be dealt with by the Office for Legal Complaints⁸ and overall regulation will be with the Legal Services Board⁹.

1 For the history of the Law Society and of the earlier organisations of solicitors, established after the decay of the Inns of Chancery, starting with that of the Society of Gentlemen Practisers in the Courts of Law and Equity founded in 1739, see the Handbook of the Law Society (1938) 1 et seq; and David Sugarman A Brief History of the Law Society (1995) (published by the Law Society to mark the 150th anniversary of the granting of the Charter of 1845).

2 The original name of the Society founded in 1826 was 'The Society of Attorneys, Solicitors, Proctors and others, not being Barristers, practising in the Courts of Law and Equity in the United Kingdom': Charter of 1845 cl 1. The Society afterwards came to be known as the Incorporated Law Society (Solicitors Act 1860 s 1 (repealed)), and the name the 'Law Society' was substituted by the Supplemental Charter of 1903.

(A) THE CONSTITUTION OF THE LAW SOCIETY

604. Royal Charters.

The Law Society is incorporated as a legal entity under a Royal Charter of 1845 and Supplemental Charters of 1872, 1903, 1909 and 1954¹. It is a body corporate with a common seal² and perpetual succession³, and is empowered⁴ to acquire, hold, sell⁵, grant, demise, exchange, dispose of or mortgage any estate or interest in land⁶.

The Council of the Law Society may, by resolution passed by not less than two-thirds of the members present and voting at a meeting of the Council and subsequently confirmed by a like number of members at a special general meeting, alter, amend or add to any of the provisions of the Charter of 1845 or any of the supplemental charters subject to approval by Her Majesty, her heirs or successors in Council⁷.

1 A Royal Charter is in effect legislation made by the Sovereign under the Royal Prerogative. It needs no approval by Parliament. The Charter of 1845 repealed and replaced the Society's first Royal Charter of 1831. For the Charter of 1845 and supplemental charters see the Law Society website accessible at the date at which this volume states the law at www.lawsociety.org.uk.

SOLICITORS/(1) THE PROFESSION/(ii) Organisation of Representation and Regulation/B. THE LAW SOCIETY/(A) The Constitution of the Law Society/605. General meetings.

605. General meetings.

A general meeting of the members of the Law Society must be held once a year¹ on a date and at a place fixed by the Council of the Law Society, for the purpose of the taking of the Chair², the approval of the minutes of the previous general meeting, the declaration of persons elected as members of the Council³, the reception of the annual report of the Council, the approval of the audited accounts⁴ and disposing of business introduced by the Council, motions⁵ and any other matter which may, consistently with the charters and byelaws, be introduced at such a meeting⁶.

A special general meeting may be called at any time by the Council⁷ and a special general meeting must also be called by the Council on a written requisition signed by 100 or more members and addressed to the chief executive⁸. If the Council fails to call such meeting within the time allowed then any ten of the requisitioners may fix a day and require the chief executive to call the meeting⁹.

The members in general meeting may make byelaws, rules, orders and ordinances for the regulation and government of the Society¹⁰ including the procedure for the election of members of its Council, the fixing of the fees, subscriptions and other sums to be paid by honorary members and associate members of the Society and the time or periods in respect of which such fees, subscriptions and other sums are to be payable so far as such are not inconsistent with the express provisions of any statute or charter of the Society¹¹, and for carrying out its purposes¹², and, in pursuance of powers conferred by the byelaws¹³ and by the Solicitors Act 1974, regulations have been made by the Council¹⁴.

12 The purposes of the Society are set out by recital only, namely 'promoting professional improvement and facilitating the acquisition of legal knowledge': Charter of 1845.

(B) MEMBERSHIP OF THE LAW SOCIETY

606. Membership generally.

No limit is placed by the charters on the number of members of the Law Society, and the Council of the Law Society may appoint and elect to be a member any person whose name is for the time being on the roll, whether or not he has held a practising certificate¹. Membership is voluntary². Honorary membership is also conferred by the Council from time to time³.

Members of the Society may be divided into different classes⁴ and may be required to pay different amounts to the Society and over different periods according to the class of membership held⁵. The amount of the annual subscription is fixed by the Council⁶, which may from time to time vary the amount payable by members or by the different classes of members⁷.

At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed). Where a person is so appointed and elected, he becomes a member of the Society on payment of any annual subscription payable under s 77 (see the text and notes 4-7) and is subject to any byelaw or regulation for the time being affecting members of the Society: s 76(2)(a), (b). As to the keeping of the roll see PARA 662. Under the Charter of 1845, Solicitors in Ireland, Northern Ireland and Scotland are also eligible for membership: cl 1. Registered European lawyers who are registered with the Law Society in accordance with EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L77, 14.3.98, p 36) to facilitate practice of the profession of lawyer on a permanent basis in a member state other than that in which the qualification was obtained are also eligible for membership: Byelaw 1(1). For the procedure for election and admission of members see Byelaw 1. As to byelaws see PARA 605 note 13. As to practising certificates see PARA 667 et seq.

2 Provision formerly made for the introduction of compulsory membership has been repealed: see the Solicitors Act 1957 s 75 (repealed by the Solicitors (Amendment) Act 1974 s 19(5), Sch 3 Pt I).

607. Honorary and associate membership.

The constitution of the Law Society also provides for the election of additional classes of persons, namely honorary members of the Council, and honorary members, associate members and affiliates of the Society, all of whom are to be regarded as non-corporate members¹.

Honorary members of the Council are such persons as may be so elected by the Council of the Law Society for such period or periods as the Council thinks fit, on account of their distinction and eminence².

Honorary members of the Society are persons elected as such by the Council, for such period as the Council thinks fit, who are lawyers in any jurisdiction who are neither otherwise eligible for election as members of the Society nor members of the English bar ordinarily resident in England and Wales, or persons, whether or not solicitors, who have rendered distinguished service to the Society or to the law, or who are able to assist the Society in promoting its objects, or who are otherwise deserving of recognition by the Society on account of their distinction or eminence³.

An associate member of the Society is a person elected as such by the Council, who is a trainee solicitor⁴. An associate member is not a member⁵.

The Council alone is empowered to decide conclusively whether an applicant has or has not fulfilled the conditions applicable to membership in any particular case⁶.

Except as mentioned previously, the terms of admission, rights, privileges and obligations, including liability to expulsion or suspension, of honorary members of the Council and of honorary members and associate members of the Society are such as the byelaws prescribe⁷. The powers given to a general meeting by the Charter of 1845 of ordaining and making byelaws, rules, orders and ordinances for the regulation and good government of the Society and of the members and affairs of the Society have been extended so as to enable the ordaining and making of such byelaws, rules, orders and ordinances with respect to membership⁸. In exercise of this power byelaws have been made.

A member of the Law Society ceases to be a member:

- 600 (1) on resignation; or
- 601 (2) if his name is removed from or struck off the roll of solicitors¹; or
- 602 (3) if he is expelled for unfitting conduct by resolution of a general meeting of members²; or
- 603 (4) if he is expelled by resolution of the Council in its discretion where:

 - 3. (c) he lacks mental capacity⁵;
 - 4. (d) he has not paid a penalty or costs when so ordered by the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal⁶;
 - 5. (e) he has had an order made against him for the issue of a writ of attachment⁷;
 - 6. (f) he has had his registration as a European lawyer suspended or 501 revoked⁸.

If subscriptions are payable for membership, such member would, if expelled by virtue of the above, be liable for any outstanding subscription⁹.

A member who has been suspended from practising as a solicitor becomes disentitled to any of the rights or privileges of membership¹⁰, and, by resolution of the Council, a member may be suspended from using the hall and library and any of the Society's rooms and from the exercise of all other rights and privileges for such period as the Council thinks fit, for any cause which it may think renders the suspension necessary or expedient but is not of a nature to justify the making of a complaint by or on behalf of the Law Society to the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal¹¹. On giving the requisite notice, any member who has been suspended may appeal to the next available general meeting of members, which may confirm, rescind or vary the period of the suspension in any way that meeting thinks fit¹².

The Law Society is governed by a president, and a vice-president and a Council, elected from members practising in England and Wales¹ and from non-practising members², consisting of between 100 and 105 persons³. Sixty-one of the members are elected by geographical constituency, 39 are elected on a national basis, and up to five may be lay persons selected by the Master of the Rolls⁴.

Members of the Council hold office for a period of four years or, where they have been elected to fill a casual vacancy, until the expiration of the term of office of their predecessor⁵. Members of the Council are eligible for re-election⁶.

The Council may suspend any member for up to 90 days if it sees occasion to do so⁷ and must convene a special meeting of the members of the Society to decide on his removal⁸.

610. Election of Council members.

For the purposes of elections to the Council of the Law Society, England and Wales are divided into 42 constituencies each with an allocated number of Council members¹. Not less than two nor more than ten eligible members of the Law Society may nominate any other eligible member for election to the Council in respect of their constituency².

If the last date for receipt of nominations has passed without any nominations having been received by the chief executive, a nomination committee must be established in the constituency. Its task is to secure the nomination of sufficient candidates to fill any vacancies and to assist members to make a choice between candidates³. The byelaws lay down procedures for preliminary notice of Council elections and for a poll in respect of contested elections⁴.

The seats to be filled on a national basis bear a designation denoting the sector of the profession, type of solicitor or area of legal practice to be represented by the member filling that seat⁵.

Provision is also made for the withdrawal of nominations and the death of a candidate⁶.

Each Council member, when first elected must complete a programme of equality and diversity training approved by the Council⁷.

These provisions and other such matters are regularly reviewed by the Law Society⁸.

611. Meetings of the Council, and the common seal.

The Council of the Law Society may make regulations for its meetings and proceedings, for the appointment of committees, and generally for the management of the Society¹. Minutes of the proceedings of every meeting of the Council must be taken and signed by the chairman of that or the next meeting². A record showing how many times each member of the Council has attended meetings must be made available to any member of the Society on request³. Reasonable travelling and out-of-pocket expenses are paid out of the Society's funds to members of the Council and committee members for attendance at meetings or otherwise being engaged in the Society's business⁴.

The Council has custody of the common seal of the Society which must be used only by the Authority of the Council⁵.

1 See Byelaw 70(1). The regulations must be consistent with statute, the Charter of 1845 (see PARA 604), and Byelaws (as to byelaws see PARA 605 note 13): Byelaw 70(1). They must also provide for the appointment of a committee to keep the size of the Council and related matters under review, and an audit committee: see Byelaw 70(3), (4). 612. The president, vice-president and deputy vice-president.

The deputy vice-president is elected by the solicitor-members of the Council from among themselves¹. The name of the candidate so elected must be published as soon as practicable following the completion of the election procedure². The deputy vice-president holds office for one year and takes office at the conclusion of the annual general meeting immediately following his election³. The deputy vice-president automatically succeeds to the office of vice-president at the conclusion of his term of office, and the vice-president automatically succeeds to the office of president at the conclusion of his term of office⁴. Where a casual vacancy occurs, the then lower office holder will succeed immediately to the higher office. Where this succession is declined, the office must be offered to the next in line, and if all lower office holders decline, or it is the office of deputy vice-president that has become vacant, then the Council must elect one of their members to hold the office until the next annual general meeting⁵.

Automatic succession to an office does not apply where the person holding the office of president has succeeded to that office on filling a casual vacancy later than a date six months after the immediately preceding annual general meeting, and in that event those persons holding the offices of president, vice-president and deputy vice-president at the date of the annual general meeting must continue to hold those offices respectively until the conclusion of the next following annual general meeting⁶.

The Council may permit the president or vice-president to reside in any premises belonging to the Society⁷. During the terms of office of the president, vice-president and deputy vice-president, monetary compensation is payable to their firms or employers⁸.

1 See Byelaw 74(1)(i). As to byelaws see PARA 605 note 13. As to the constitution of the Council see PARAS 609-610.

2 See Byelaw 74(1)(ii). If, within the period of 14 days following such publication, 500 members so demand in writing addressed to the Chief Executive, a ballot must be held for the office of deputy vice-president, in which every member is eligible to vote. Additional candidates may be nominated in the written demand. The procedure and timetable for the ballot are decided by the Council. If no demand such as is mentioned in this sub-paragraph is received within the period of 14 days, the election by the Council is final: Byelaw 74(1)(ii).

3 See Byelaw 74(1)(iii). Alternatively his term of office may commence on the day following completion of any ballot demanded by the members of the Law Society under Byelaw 74(1)(ii) (see note 2): see Byelaw 74(1)(iii).

(D) THE MANAGEMENT OF THE LAW SOCIETY

613. The Council's powers of management.

Subject to the provisions of the charters and of the byelaws for the time being in force, the management of the affairs of the Law Society is vested in the Society's Council¹.

Subject to any provision to the contrary made by or under any other enactment² the Council may arrange for any of its functions³ to be exercised by:

- 604 (1) a committee of the Council⁴;
- 605 (2) a sub-committee of such a committee⁵;
- 606 (3) a body corporate which is established for the purpose of providing services to the Council (or any committee of the Council) and is a wholly-owned subsidiary⁶ of the Society⁷; or
- 607 (4) an individual (whether or not a member of the Society's staff)⁸.

Arrangements made under this section in respect of a function may provide that the function is to be exercised in accordance with the arrangements only (and not by the delegating body)⁹. Any power given by the foregoing provisions¹⁰ may be exercised so as to impose restrictions or conditions on the body or individual by whom the function is to be discharged¹¹.

A committee or sub-committee may include or consist of individuals other than members of the Council, or the Society, or solicitors¹². A sub-committee may also include or consist of individuals other than members of the committee¹³. The Council may make arrangements for the appointment and removal of members of any committee to be made other than by itself¹⁴. A committee or sub-committee may regulate its own procedure, including quorum¹⁵.

4 Solicitors Act 1974 s 79(1)(a) (as substituted: see note 2). Where any function may be discharged by a committee, the committee may arrange for the discharge of the function by (1) a sub-committee of that committee (in which case see also note 5); (2) a body corporate which is established for the purpose of providing services to the Council (or any committee of the Council) and is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Society, or (3) an individual (whether or not a member of the Society's staff): s 79(2) (as so substituted). Section 79(2) has effect subject to any contrary direction given by the Council: s 79(6) (as so substituted).

5 Solicitors Act 1974 s 79(1)(b) (as substituted: see note 2). Where any function may be discharged by a sub-committee, that sub-committee may arrange for the discharge of the function by an individual (whether or not a member of the Society's staff): s 79(3) (as so substituted). Section 79(3) has effect subject to any contrary direction given by the Council (or, where the function has been delegated by a committee, the committee): s 79(6), (7) (as so substituted).

6 Until the Companies Act 2006 s 1159 comes into force for all purposes, the reference to 'wholly owned subsidiary' is to be read as a reference to that term as defined in the Companies Act 1985 s 736 (see COMPANIES vol 14 (2009) PARA 25): Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 1 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/222, art 7(2). As from the day the Companies Act 2006 s 1159 comes into force for all purposes 'wholly-owned subsidiary' has the meaning given by that section: Solicitors Act 1974 s 79(14) (as substituted: see note 2). At the date at which this volume states the law the Companies Act 2006 s 1159 had not been brought into force for all purposes.

8 Solicitors Act 1974 s 79(1)(d) (as substituted: see note 2).

9 Solicitors Act 1974 s 79(4) (as substituted: see note 2). 'Delegating body' means, in the case of arrangements under s 79(1) (see text and notes 2-8), the Council; in the case of arrangements under s 79(2) (see note 3), the committee; and, in the case of arrangements under s 79(3) (see note 5), the sub-committee: s 79(5) (as so substituted).

14 Solicitors Act 1974 s 79(11) (as substituted: see note 2).

15 Solicitors Act 1974 s 79(12) (as substituted: see note 2). The validity of any proceedings of a committee or sub-committee is not affected by any vacancy among its members: s 79(13) (as so substituted).

C. SOLICITORS REGULATION AUTHORITY

619. Introduction.

As from a day to be appointed¹ the Law Society is an approved regulator² and is under a duty to ensure that the exercise of an approved regulator's regulatory functions is not prejudiced by its representative functions³. However, in practice many of the regulatory powers of the Law Society have been devolved to the Solicitors Regulation Authority and consequently the Authority is responsible for several functions previously dealt with by the Law Society⁴.

Solicitors are under a duty to co-operate with the Authority in an open, prompt⁵ and co-operative way⁶ and to report to the Authority cases of serious misconduct by a solicitor, firm or registered European lawyer⁷, a registered foreign lawyer⁸ or if such a person, or firm, is under serious financial difficulties⁹. A solicitor must not try to hinder, prevent or victimise a person who wishes to report his conduct to the Authority¹⁰. Nor may a solicitor enter into agreements attempting to preclude investigations by the Authority¹¹.

2 See the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 1(1); and PARA 358 et seq. 620. Training.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ may make regulations ('training regulations') about education and training for persons seeking to be admitted or to practise as solicitors².

1 The Solicitors Act 1974 s 2 refers to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society elected in accordance with provisions of the Charter and the Solicitors Act 1974 (see s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4)). However in practice the body currently responsible for the training of solicitors is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619).

2 See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 2(1); and PARA 637.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(1) THE PROFESSION/(ii) Organisation of Representation and Regulation/C. SOLICITORS REGULATION AUTHORITY/621. The keeping of the roll and the practising certificate register.

621. The keeping of the roll and the practising certificate register.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ is required to keep a list of all solicitors of the Supreme Court², called the 'roll'³.

In addition to keeping the roll of all solicitors⁴, the Authority must maintain a register relating to practising certificates⁵. For the purpose of facilitating the service of notices and other documents, every solicitor who has in force, or has applied for, a practising certificate must give notice to the Authority of any change in his place or places of business before the expiration of 14 days from the date on which the change takes effect⁶.

⁵ Until a day to be appointed this is a register of solicitors who apply for the issue of a practising certificate and contains the applicant's full name, his place of business and the date of his admission: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 9(1) (prospectively substituted); and PARA 668. However as from a day to be appointed the register is of all solicitors who hold practising certificates and contains the full name of each solicitor who holds a practising certificate, a statement, in relation to him, as to whether there is in force a sole solicitor endorsement and such other information as may be specified in regulations made under s 28(1)(d) (see PARA 671); see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 10A (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 10). As to the Authority's functions in connection with the issue of practising certificates see PARA 667 et seq. Until a day to be appointed the register may be kept by means of a computer and, if so kept, any entry must be made available for inspection in legible form during office hours, without payment, by any person who applies to inspect it: Solicitors Act 1974 s 9(2), (3) (prospectively substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 9). If the register is not kept by means of a computer, any person may inspect it during office hours without payment: s 9(4) (so prospectively substituted). Until a day to be appointed, if in, or in relation to, an application for a practising certificate or a notice under s 84(1) any person makes any false statement material to the application or notice, a complaint in respect of that statement may be made to the Tribunal by or on behalf of the Authority: s 9(5) (so prospectively substituted). At the date at which this volume states the law no such days had been appointed. As to the evidential standing of the register see PARA 672.

⁶ See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 84(1). Any notice or other document required or authorised by or by virtue of the Solicitors Act 1974 to be served on any person may be served on him by delivering it to him, by leaving it at his proper address or by sending it by post: s 84(2). Any such notice or document may be served on a practising solicitor, without prejudice to any other method of service, by sending it in a registered letter addressed to him at any place specified as his place of business, or one of his places of business, in his latest application for a practising certificate or in any subsequent notice under s 84(1): s 84(3). There is a requirement to provide the Authority with the necessary information for the issuing of a practising certificate or the renewal of registration or recognition, as appropriate, and to notify the Authority of any changes to relevant information: see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 20.03(2). Rule 20 also applies to an overseas practice: see r 15.20.

626. Recognition of EC professional qualifications.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ is the competent authority for the solicitors' profession for the purpose of receiving and considering applications by applicants and taking the actions and decisions with regard to the recognition of professional qualifications in the European Community². The Authority must provide the Secretary of State with such information (including statistical information) as he may require concerning applications made by those seeking recognition of professional qualifications and the actions and decisions taken in respect of those applications³. Following a request by the European Commission, the Authority must inform the Secretary of State of the results of any inquiries⁴ with which it is dealing within two months of the date on which it receives such a request⁵.

627. Registration of European lawyers.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ must maintain a register of European lawyers² which must include in respect of each registered European lawyer certain information³. The Authority may reject an application for initial registration if it is not satisfied that the applicant is eligible for registration or not a fit and proper person to practise in the United Kingdom⁴. Registration may be made subject to such conditions as the Authority thinks fit⁵. The Authority has the power to suspend a person's registration⁶ and, under certain circumstances⁷, cancel it⁸. However, subject to certain exceptions⁹ the Authority must not cancel a person's registration or restore a person to the register if disciplinary proceedings are pending against that person before the Supreme Court¹⁰ or the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal¹¹. The Authority must give reasons for any decision to refuse initial registration or renewal of registration, to impose a condition, to suspend a person's registration, to cancel a person's registration or to refuse to lift a condition, restore a person to the register, change a person's name on the register or cancel a person's registration¹².

There is a right of appeal to the Master of the Rolls¹³ by a person aggrieved by the Authority's decision to:

- 625 (1) refuse to register him, or renew his registration;
- 626 (2) imposed a condition on his registration, or refuse to lift a condition;
- 627 (3) suspend his registration;
- 628 (4) cancel or refuse to cancel his registration;
- 629 (5) refuse to restore him to the register; or
- 630 (6) refuse to change his name on the register¹⁴.

1 The European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 took effect on 22 May 2000 and were made by the Council of the Law Society with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 (see PARA 628 et seq) as extended by the European Communities (Lawyer's Practice) Regulations 2000, SI 2000/1119 (see PARA 541 et seq) to implement EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L77, 14.3.98, p 36) to facilitate practice of the profession of lawyer on a permanent basis in a member state other than that in which the qualification was obtained (see PARA 534): European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 regs 1, 2. Although these regulations refer to the Law Society, in practice the body currently responsible for the registration of European lawyers is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619).

2 This applies to the registration of EU lawyers under EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L77, 14.3.98, p 36) to facilitate practice of the profession of lawyer on a permanent basis in a member state other than that in which the qualification was obtained, art 3 (see PARA 534 note 4). The renewal date for each registration is the date prescribed by the Authority and notified to the applicant: European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 7. Any application under the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 must be made in the form and accompanied by such further information as the Authority requires and there is a continuing duty on the applicant to keep the information updated: reg 13. All applications must be accompanied by the appropriate fees and contributions: see reg 14.

3 See the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 3. Any entry on the register must be made available for inspection: see reg 4. An application for registration must usually be signed by the applicant and an initial application must be accompanied by a certificate attesting to his registration with the competent authority in his home member state: see reg 5. A registered European lawyer whose name has changed may apply to the Authority to change his name on the register: reg 11.

4 See the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 15. If the Authority fails to take a decision regarding initial registration or fails to notify the applicant within four months, the applicant may appeal to the Master of the Rolls: reg 18(b). As to the procedure on the appeal see the Master of the Rolls (Applications and Appeals) Regulations 2001; and PARA 918 (applied by the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 18(c)).

5 See the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 6.

6 See the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 16.

7 If the renewal date has passed, the European lawyer has requested its cancellation, the Authority believes the lawyer has no intention of practising permanently in the UK, the registered person has died or become a solicitor or barrister or is no longer eligible for registration: see the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 8.

8 European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 8. If there is an outstanding complaint against a registered European lawyer the Authority may refuse to cancel his registration or restore him to the register: see reg 9.

9 If the registration has been cancelled because the person has died, or become a solicitor or barrister or if the Authority is satisfied that he is no longer eligible for registration.

10 As from a day to be appointed the Supreme Court is renamed the Senior Courts: see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 Pt 1; and COURTS. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

11 European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 10.

12 European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 17. When the Authority writes to any person under the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 it must write to the registered European lawyer's last notified address: reg 12.

13 As to the procedure on the appeal see the Master of the Rolls (Applications and Appeals) Regulations 2001; and PARA 918 (applied by the European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 18(c)).

14 European Lawyers Registration Regulations 2000 reg 18(a).

UPDATE

627 Registration of European lawyers

NOTE 10--Appointed day is 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(1) THE PROFESSION/(ii) Organisation of Representation and Regulation/C. SOLICITORS REGULATION AUTHORITY/628. Registration of foreign lawyers.

628. Registration of foreign lawyers.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ must maintain a register of foreign lawyers² containing certain information³. A foreign lawyer wishing to be so registered must apply to the Authority⁴ in the form, and accompanied by the fee, prescribed by the Authority⁵. Where the application is duly made by a foreign lawyer the Authority may register the applicant if it is satisfied that the legal profession of which the applicant is a member is one which is so regulated as to make it appropriate for members of that profession to be managers of recognised bodies⁶. Every registration has effect from the beginning of the day on which it is entered in the register⁷.

Any certificate purporting to be signed by an officer of the authority and stating that a particular foreign lawyer is or is not registered or was registered during a period specified in the certificate, is, unless the contrary is proved, evidence of that fact and is to be taken to have been so signed⁸.

Under certain circumstances⁹ the Authority may cancel the registration¹⁰. The registration of any foreign lawyer against whom a bankruptcy order is made must be suspended on the making of that order¹¹ but the suspension terminates if the order is annulled and an office copy of the order annulling it is served on the Authority¹². Registration is also suspended where a registered foreign lawyer is struck off or suspended from practice¹³.

Any foreign lawyer has a right of appeal¹⁴ against:

- 631 (1) the refusal of the Authority to register him or renew his registration;
- 632 (2) the refusal of the Authority to terminate the suspension of his registration or an application for revival¹⁵;
- 633 (3) the failure of the Authority to deal with any application by him for registration, renewal of registration or the termination¹⁶ of a suspension within a reasonable time; or
- 634 (4) any condition¹⁷ imposed by the Authority¹⁸.

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89, Sch 14 (as amended and prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 127, 128(a)), Sch 23 refer to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society: see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 1) or the 'Law Society'. Similarly the Foreign Lawyers Registration Regulations 1995 (which apply to all registrations and applications for registration, or renewal of registration, for any period commencing on or after 1 November 1995) were made by the Council of the Law Society with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 (see the Foreign Lawyers Registration Regulations 1995 reg 1) and refer to the 'Law Society'. However in practice the body responsible for the register is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619).

2 See the Foreign Lawyers Registration Regulations 1995 reg 2. Such information may be inspected by any person during office hours: reg 3. Notification of registration must be sent by post to the applicant: see reg 16. 'Foreign lawyer' means a person who is not a solicitor or barrister but who is a member, and entitled to practise as such, of a legal profession regulated within a jurisdiction outside England and Wales: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(9). 'Registered foreign lawyer' for the purposes of s 89 and Sch 14 (see s 89(9)), the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 (see r 24.01), the Solicitor's Accounts Rules 1998 (see r 2(2)(u)) and the Solicitors' Indemnity Insurance Rules 2008 (see r 3.1) means a foreign lawyer who is registered under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89. References in the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, to registered foreign lawyers are references to lawyers whose names are entered in the register of foreign lawyers maintained under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89 and include, where appropriate, those who have ceased to be registered in that register or whose registration has been suspended: Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, r 2(3).

3 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(1). An application for a change of name upon the register must be made to the Authority on such form and accompanied by such additional information and evidence as may be specified by the Authority: see the Foreign Lawyers Registration Regulations 1995 reg 12. As to the capacity in which a registered foreign lawyer may work see PARA 679. The Authority may make regulations with respect to the keeping of the register (including the manner in which entries are to be made, altered or removed) and applications for registration and renewal of registrations: see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 2(4). Until a day to be appointed the register may be kept by means of a computer: Sch 14 para 2(5) (prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 128(g), Sch 23). As from a day to be appointed such regulations under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 2(4) may relate to the form of the register and the making available to the public of the information contained in the register (including the manner in which, and hours during which, the information is to be made so available and whether the information is to be made available free of charge): see Sch 14 para 2(4) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 128(e)(ii), (f)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

4 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(2).

5 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 2(1) (as amended: see note 1); and the Foreign Lawyers Registration Regulations 1995 regs 5, 6. Such a fee must be prescribed with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 2(1)(b) (as so amended). However as from a day to be appointed the words 'Legal Services Board' are substituted for the words 'Master of the Rolls' by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 128(b). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. The Authority may also require additional information to be supplied on any prescribed form: see the Foreign Lawyers Registration Regulations 1995 reg 4. The applicant is under an obligation to ensure all details provided on the form are correct and complete and is usually required to sign the form: see regs 9-11. As to the Legal Services Board see PARA 303 et seq.

6 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 2(2) (as amended (see note 1); and further amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 128(c)(ii)). Until a day to be appointed any registration must be made subject to such conditions as the Authority sees fit to impose: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 2(3) (prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 128(d), Sch 23). As from a day to be appointed the Authority may direct that a foreign lawyer's registration is to have effect subject to such conditions as the Authority thinks fit to impose and such a direction may be given in respect of a foreign lawyer at the time he is first registered or at any time when the registration has effect: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 2A (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 129). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

7 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 3(1). The Authority may make regulations prescribing the date (the 'renewal date') by which each registered foreign lawyer must apply for his registration to be renewed and requiring every entry in the register to specify the renewal date applicable to that registration: Sch 14 para 3(2) (as amended: see note 1). Any such regulations may:

- 2 (1) provide different renewal dates for different categories of registered foreign lawyer or different circumstances;
- 3 (2) provide for the Authority to specify, in the case of individual registered foreign lawyers, different renewal dates to those prescribed by the regulations;
- 4 (3) make such transitional, incidental and supplemental provision in connection with any provision for different renewal dates as the Authority considers expedient: Sch 14 para 3(3) (as so amended).

The renewal date for registration is 31 October: see the Foreign Lawyers Registration Regulations 1995 reg 7. However when registration is cancelled because no application for renewal has been received the application is treated as a renewal of application if an application is received within 12 months of the renewal date but is dated from the date of receipt by the Authority: see reg 8.

8 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 4.

9 If the renewal date has passed, the registered foreign lawyer has requested its cancellation, the registered person has died or become a solicitor or barrister or is registered as a European lawyer: see Foreign Lawyers Registration Regulations 1995 regs 13, 15.

10 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990, Sch 14 para 3(4); and the Foreign Lawyers Registration Regulations 1995 regs 13-15.

11 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 10(1). 'Bankruptcy order' includes any order which is not a bankruptcy order but which has the same or a similar effect under the law in force in any territory outside England and Wales: Sch 14 para 10(3).

12 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 10(2).

13 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 11(1). 'Struck off' and 'suspended from practice' mean:

5 (1) any action taken within the jurisdiction by reference to which the registered foreign lawyer is qualified to be registered; or

6 (2) where the registered foreign lawyer is qualified to be registered by reference to more than one jurisdiction, any action taken within any one of those jurisdictions, which is the equivalent, respectively, of a solicitor being struck off the roll or suspended from practice under the Solicitors Act 1974 (Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 11(2)).

Where a person's registration has been suspended by virtue of Sch 14 para 11, it must be revived:

7 (a) if his right to practise in the jurisdiction in question is restored; and

8 (b) a copy of the instrument restoring his right, certified to be a true copy by an officer of the appropriate court in the jurisdiction in question, or the professional body concerned, is served on the Authority (Sch 14 para 12(1)).

Where a person whose registration is suspended by virtue of Sch 14 para 11 applies to the Authority for the suspension to be terminated, the Authority may terminate it subject to such conditions, if any, as it thinks fit to impose: Sch 14 para 12(2). Where a foreign lawyer's registration is revived (whether as the result of the termination of its suspension, restoration by order of the Tribunal or for any other reason), that revival takes effect on such date, and subject to such conditions, as the Authority may direct: Sch 14 para 13.

14 The foreign lawyer may appeal to the Master of the Rolls who may make such order as he thinks fit: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 14(1), (3). As to appeals to the Master of the Rolls see the Master of the Rolls (Appeals and Applications Regulations) 2001; and PARA 918. However as from a day to be appointed such an appeal is made to the High Court which may make such an order as it thinks fit (including in relation to the payment of costs) and its decision is final: see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 14(1), (3)-(5) (Sch 14 para 14(2), (3) prospectively amended and Sch 14 para 14(4), (5) prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 135(a)(i), (d)). Until a day to be appointed an appeal under head (1), (2) or (4) must be brought within one month beginning with the date on which the Authority notifies the applicant of its decision on his application: see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 14(2) (prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 135(b), Sch 23). As from a day to be appointed the Authority may make rules providing that appeals under Sch 14 para 14 lie to the Tribunal and not to the High Court: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 49A(1), (2)(f) (not yet in force); and PARA 905. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

15 Ie an application under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 12.

16 Ie under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 12(2).

17 Ie any condition imposed by the Authority under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 2(3), 12(2) or 13 or, as from a day to be appointed, under Sch 14 para 2(2A), 12(2) or 13: see Sch 14 para 14(1) (d) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 16 para 135(a)(ii)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

18 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 14(1).

D. SOLICITORS DISCIPLINARY TRIBUNAL

629. Constitution of the Tribunal.

The Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal¹ consists of solicitor members and lay members², all appointed by the Master of the Rolls³. The lay members must be persons who are neither solicitors nor barristers⁴. The Tribunal may make rules⁵ empowering it to elect a solicitor member as its president⁶ and about the procedure and practice to be followed in relation to the making, hearing and determination of applications and complaints, including provision about the composition of the Tribunal⁷. The Tribunal, by a simple majority, must appoint one solicitor member and one lay member to be its vice-presidents⁸.

1 As to the functions of the Tribunal see PARA 906 et seq. The Tribunal may regulate its own procedure subject to the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, r 21(1). The Tribunal may dispense with any requirements of the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, in respect of notices, statements, witnesses, service or time in any case where it appears to the Tribunal to be just so to do: r 21(2).

2 The solicitor members must be practising solicitors of not less than ten years' standing: Solicitors Act 1974 s 46(3)(a). A Tribunal member holds and vacates office in accordance with the terms of his appointment, and on ceasing to hold office is eligible for re-appointment: s 46(4). The Tribunal may pay its members such remuneration, fees or allowances as it may determine with the approval of the Legal Services Board: s 46(5) (substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 47(2)). As to the Legal Services Board see PARA 303. As to transitional provisions applying until the appointment of a chief executive of the Legal Services Board under Sch 1 para 13 (see PARA 307) see the Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 2 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/1436, art 4(a). Subject to the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, r 6(1), (3) (see PARA 911) a division must be constituted for the hearing of any application or matter relating to an application: r 4. Two of the division members must be solicitor members and one must be a lay member and (unless the president determines otherwise) a solicitor member must act as chairman: r 4. The Tribunal (or a panel of Tribunal members consisting of not less than five members of whom not less than two must be lay members) may give notices or make directions concerning the practices or procedures of the Tribunal: see r 21(3). The Tribunal must promulgate notices or directions given or made under r 21(3) under the authority of the president and practice directions in force prior to the date on which the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, come into force remain in full force and effect after that date: see r 21(4).

3 Solicitors Act 1974 s 46(2). The Legal Services Act 2007 ss 32-34, 69, 70, Sch 7 apply in relation to the Tribunal as they apply in relation to an approved regulator but with modifications: see ss 179, 180. Section 180 has effect subject to further modification until Sch 4 para 1 (see PARA 329) is brought into force: see the Legal Services Act 2007 (Commencement No 1 and Transitory Provisions) Order 2008, SI 2008/222, arts 2(f), 6.

4 Solicitors Act 1974 s 46(3)(b).

5 Solicitors Act 1974 s 46(9) (amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 47(5)(a), (b), Sch 23). These rules are made by statutory instrument (Solicitors Act 1974 s 46(12)) and in the exercise of the power so conferred, the Tribunal has made the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, which came into force on 14 January 2008 (r 1) and revoked and replaced the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 1994, SI 1994/288. As to the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, see PARA 906 et seq. The president of the Tribunal holding office immediately before the date on which these rules come into force continues to hold office until the Tribunal's annual general meeting next following 30 April 2009: Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, r 3(1). Subject to r 3(1) the Tribunal, by a simple majority, must appoint one of the solicitor members to be its president to hold office for a period of three years and the person so appointed may be re-appointed for a further period not exceeding three years: r 3(2).

6 Solicitors Act 1974 s 46(9)(a).

7 Solicitors Act 1974 s 46(9)(b) (amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 47(5)(c)). Without prejudice to the generality of s 46(9)(b), the rules may:

- 9 (1) empower the president to appoint a chairman for the hearing and determination of any application or complaint (s 46(10)(a));
- 10 (2) provide that, if the president does not appoint a chairman, a solicitor member is to act as chairman (s 46(10)(b)); and
- 11 (3) provide, in relation to any application or complaint relating to a solicitor or a recognised body, that where, in the opinion of the Tribunal no prima facie case in favour of the applicant or complainant is shown in the application or complaint, the Tribunal may make an order refusing the application or dismissing the complaint without requiring the solicitor or recognised body to whom or which it relates to answer the allegations and without hearing the applicant or complainant (s 46(10)(c); applied by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(6), Sch 2 para 17(1)(c)).

See further PARA 712. As from a day to be appointed if the Tribunal makes an alteration of its rules under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 46(9)(b) the alteration does not have effect unless it is approved for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007: s 178(1). An alteration is approved for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007 if:

- 12 (a) it is approved by the Board under Pt 3;
- 13 (b) it is an exempt alteration; or
- 14 (c) it is an alteration made in compliance with a direction under s 32 (given by virtue of s 179): s 178(2).

For the purposes of head (a), Sch 4 paras 20-27 apply in relation to an application by the Tribunal for approval of an alteration or alterations of the Tribunal rules as they apply in relation to an application by an approved regulator for approval of an alteration or alterations of its regulatory arrangements: see s 178(3).

For the purposes of head (b) an exempt alteration is an alteration which the Board has directed is to be treated as exempt for the purposes of s 178: s 178(4). Such a direction may be specific or general, and must be published by the Board: s 178(5).

For the purposes of s 178 'alteration' of the Tribunal rules include the making of such rules and the modification of such rules: s 178(6).

8 Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, r 3(3). The vice-presidents hold office for such period or periods not exceeding three years as the Tribunal thinks fit and exercise such functions as are exercisable under the Solicitors (Disciplinary Proceedings) Rules 2007, SI 2007/3588, by the president as he may direct: r 3(3).

631. Funding the Tribunal.

The Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal must submit, in respect of each year,¹ a budget for the year² approved by the Legal Services Board³. The budget for a year must be submitted no later than the specified date⁴.

The amount specified in a budget submitted under the above provisions must be paid to the Tribunal in such instalments and at such times as may be agreed or, in the absence of such agreement, before the beginning of the year to which the budget relates⁵.

Other amounts may be paid as appropriate⁶.

1 For the purposes of the Solicitors Act 1974 s 46A 'year' means calendar year: s 46A(8) (added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 48).

2 A budget for a year is a statement of the amount of money which the Tribunal estimates is required to enable it to meet all of its expenditure in that year (having regard to any amounts received but not spent in previous years): s 46A(2) (as added: see note 1).

3 See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 46A(1) (as added: see note 1). As to the requirement for the Legal Services Board to consult before approving a statement for these purposes see s 46A(3) (as so added). As to the Legal Services Board see PARA 303.

E. LEGAL COMPLAINTS SERVICE

632. Introduction.

As from a day to be appointed¹ the Law Society is an approved regulator² and is under a duty to ensure that the exercise of an approved regulator's regulatory functions is not prejudiced by its representative functions³. However, in practice the powers of the Law Society to investigate consumer complaints have been devolved to the Legal Complaints Service and consequently, until a day to be appointed, the Legal Complaints Service is responsible for several functions previously dealt with by the Law Society⁴.

Solicitors are under a duty to co-operate with the Legal Complaints Service in an open, prompt and co-operative way⁵. A solicitor must not try to hinder, prevent or victimise a person who wishes to report his conduct to the Legal Complaints Service⁶. Nor may a solicitor enter into agreements attempting to preclude investigations by the Legal Complaints Service⁷.

1 The Legal Services Act 2007 s 30 is to be brought into force by order made by the Lord Chancellor under s 211(2) as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Lord Chancellor see PARA 301 note 1.

2 See the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 4 para 1(1); and PARA 358 et seq. The Law Society is also a qualifying regulator for the purposes of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999 Pt 5 (see BRITISH NATIONALITY, IMMIGRATION AND ASYLUM) (see the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 18 para 2). As to the meaning of 'approved regulator' see PARA 358.

Where a solicitor has delivered a bill of costs amounting to not more than £50,000 to an entitled person¹ in respect of any business not being contentious business², the client may, without prejudice to his right to assess the costs³, require the solicitor to obtain a certificate from the Legal Complaints Service⁴ stating that in its opinion the sum charged is fair and reasonable or, as the case may be, what is a fair and reasonable sum, and the sum so certified, if less than that charged, is, in the absence of assessment, to be the sum payable⁵. The entitled person, however, is not entitled to require the solicitor to obtain a certificate after one month from the date of being given the required information as to his rights to a certificate and assessment of costs or after the bill has been either assessed or paid⁶. On requiring the solicitor to obtain a remuneration certificate, a client must pay to the solicitor the paid disbursements and value added tax comprised in the bill together with 50 per cent of the costs unless:

- 644 (1) the client has already paid the amount required, by deduction from money held or otherwise⁷; or
- 645 (2) the solicitor or (if the solicitor refuses) the Legal Complaints Service has agreed in writing to waive all or part of this requirement⁸.

(2) TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION

(i) In general

635. Introduction.

Legal education and the conduct of solicitors and prospective solicitors are controlled and administered by the Solicitors Regulation Authority¹. No person is qualified to act as a solicitor unless he has been admitted as a solicitor², his name is on the roll³ and he has in force a practising certificate⁴ issued by the Authority⁵.

A person who has been admitted as a solicitor and whose name is on the roll is to be taken to be acting as a solicitor⁶ if he is employed in connection with the provisions of any legal services by:

- 646 (1) any person who is qualified to act as a solicitor⁷;
- 647 (2) any partnership at least one member of which is so qualified⁸;
- 648 (3) a recognised⁹ body¹⁰; or
- 649 (4) as from a day to be appointed, any other person who for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007 is an authorised person in relation to an activity which is a reserved legal activity¹¹.

A solicitor need not be a British citizen¹².

636. Legal Services Consultative Panel.

Until a day to be appointed the Secretary of State must appoint persons to form a panel to be known as the Legal Services Consultative Panel¹. One of the panel's duties is to assist in the maintenance and development of standards in education and training of persons offering legal services².

1 The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 18A (added by the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 35(2)) is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 84(c), Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

637. Training regulations.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ may make regulations ('training regulations') about education and training for persons seeking to be admitted or to practise as solicitors². The training regulations:

650 (1) may prescribe:

502

7. (a) the education and training to be undergone by persons seeking admission as solicitors³;
8. (b) any education or training to be undergone by persons who have been admitted as solicitors⁴;
9. (c) the examinations or other tests to be undergone by persons seeking admission as solicitors or who have been admitted⁵;
10. (d) the qualifications and reciprocal duties and responsibilities of persons undertaking to give education or training for the purposes of the regulations or undergoing such education or training⁶; and
11. (e) the circumstances in which education or training under the regulations may be started or terminated⁷;

651 (2) may require persons who have been admitted as solicitors to hold practising certificates while they are undergoing education or training under the regulations⁸;

652 (3) may include provision for the charging of fees by the Authority and the application of fees which the Authority receives⁹;

653 (4) may make different provision for different classes of persons and different circumstances¹⁰.

1 Until a day to be appointed this power is to be exercised with the concurrence of the Secretary of State, the Lord Chief Justice and the Master of the Rolls: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 2 (amended by SI 2003/1887; and prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 4(a), Sch 23). Where, under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 4 the Secretary of State approves any regulation such as is mentioned in the Solicitors Act 1974 s 2(1), the requirement of the concurrence of the Lord Chief Justice and the Master of the Roll does not apply and this has effect whether or not the regulation is required to be approved under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 4: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 2(4), (5) (added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 17 para 8; amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 6 paras 1, 2 and SI 2003/1887; and prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 4(c), Sch 23).

The Solicitors Act 1984 s 2 refers to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society elected in accordance with provisions of the Charter and the Solicitors Act 1974 (see s 87(1))). However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the issuing of practising certificates is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619). As to the meaning of the 'Charter' see PARA 835 note 1.

A person who has qualified as a solicitor in Scotland must hold or be eligible to hold an unrestricted practising certificate prior to applying for a certificate of eligibility, and must pass the test in property prior to applying for admission⁴. A person qualified as a solicitor in Northern Ireland is exempt from passing any subject in the test⁵. Unless the Authority otherwise determines, Scottish advocates must take and pass the test in professional conduct and accounts, and in property⁶.

642. Exemptions.

A person holding office as solicitor to the Treasury, any other public department, the Church Commissioners, the Duchy of Cornwall¹ or the City of London² may discharge his official duties without having obtained the qualifications of a solicitor or holding a practising certificate³. A similar exemption is conferred on any clerk or officer appointed to act for any of these officers⁴. This exemption from holding a practising certificate does not, however, apply to solicitors who are Crown Prosecutors⁵. The Solicitor of the City of London is not affected by any practice rules or accounts rules⁶ made by the Solicitors Regulation Authority⁷.

As from a day to be appointed, nothing in the Legal Services Act 2007 prejudices or affects the rights or privileges of the offices listed above⁸, or requires a person who holds one of those offices, or any clerk or officer appointed to act for such a person, to be entitled to carry on an activity which is a reserved legal activity⁹ in any case where, by virtue of the foregoing provisions¹⁰, it would not have been necessary for that person to be admitted and enrolled and to hold a practising certificate¹¹.

By various statutes persons may be authorised to conduct certain legal proceedings without having obtained the qualifications of a solicitor¹². A solicitor employed by the Commissioners of Customs and Excise may act as a solicitor in certain proceedings even though he does not hold a current practising certificate¹³.

643. Misbehaviour of prospective solicitors.

Where a person who seeks to be enrolled with the Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ as a student is considered by the Authority unsuitable to become a solicitor because of his conduct or character, the Authority may not issue a certificate of enrolment². The effect of this is to prevent the person from proceeding to any stage of training beyond the first year of a course leading to an exempting law degree³. The Authority has similar powers in respect of English barristers and foreign lawyers seeking to be admitted as solicitors and in respect of solicitors who have been admitted in Scotland or Northern Ireland⁴.

Where a person who is unadmitted⁵ is considered unsuitable to become a solicitor because of his conduct, the Authority has a number of powers it may exercise⁶. It may cancel enrolment, prohibit him from entering into a training contract, refuse to register his training contract, discharge his training contract, prohibit him from attending a legal practice course or an integrated course or a course leading to an exempting law degree, or from attending a professional skills course, or oppose his admission⁷. The Authority has similar powers in respect of English barristers seeking to be admitted as solicitors and in respect of solicitors who have been admitted in Scotland or Northern Ireland⁸.

The applicant may appeal to the Authority for a review of the decision within one month of receiving notice of it⁹. Within three months of receiving notification of the result of the review, the applicant may appeal to the Master of the Rolls¹⁰; and may make not more than three further applications at intervals of not less than 12 months following refusal to issue a certificate¹¹.

The regulations are published, with consolidated amendments to 23 October 2007 on the Solicitors Regulation Authority's website.

The Authority may require the applicant to attend before a committee or panel appointed by the Authority³. No person may be admitted as a solicitor unless the Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ is satisfied that such a person has completed the vocational stage of training². A person, other than a person following an exempting law degree³, may not commence the vocational stage before satisfactorily completing the academic stage⁴.

The vocational stage of training is completed by satisfactory completion of a legal practice course⁵ or an integrated course⁶, or obtaining an exempting law degree; followed by serving under a training contract⁷ and satisfactory completion of a professional skills course⁸ and such other course as the Authority may from time to time prescribe⁹.

The LPC is a course intended to build on the applicants' academic knowledge of the law, and prepare them for their training and early years in practice³. It is provided by authorised LPC providers⁴ in line with guidelines issued by the Solicitors Regulation Authority⁵. The Authority must monitor the standards achieved by the students enrolled on the LPC, and satisfy itself that they are consistent and adequate⁶.

Subject to the Qualified Lawyers' Transfer Regulations¹, no person can be admitted as a solicitor unless he has satisfactorily completed a professional skills course ('PSC')². The PSC is offered exclusively by course providers approved by the Solicitors Regulation Authority³, and a trainee solicitor may reckon as good service under a training contract such periods of absence as may be necessary for the trainee to attend a PSC⁴.

The course is designed to enhance the prospective solicitor's skills and knowledge of specific areas of law, ethics and practice and to build upon the legal practice course. At the date at which this volume states the three subject areas covered are:

- 661 (1) financial and business skill;
- 662 (2) advocacy and communication skills; and
- 663 (3) client care and professional standards⁵.

1 See the Qualified Lawyers' Transfer Regulations 1990: see PARA 643 note 4.

2 Training Regulations 1990 reg 31(1). Only a person who has satisfactorily completed a legal practice course (see PARA 649) or an integrated course (see PARA 644 note 5) may attend a professional skills course: reg 31(2). As to the Training Regulations 1990 see PARA 638 note 5.

(v) Training Contracts

651. Necessity for a training contract.

No person, except certain overseas solicitors (including in this context certain solicitors admitted in Scotland or Northern Ireland¹), and certain persons who have served as assistant to a justices' clerk², or a Fellow of the Institute of Legal Executives³ may be admitted as a solicitor unless he has served in a training contract⁴. A member or former member of the English Bar who has caused himself to be disbarred, and has satisfied the Solicitors Regulation Authority⁵ that he is a suitable person to be admitted as a solicitor is, however, exempt from service in a training contract⁶.

4 See the Training Regulations 1990 reg 14(1), (3)(ii). 'Training contract' means a written contract between one or more training establishments and a trainee solicitor which complies with the Training Regulations 1990; 'training establishment' means a body, firm, company or individual authorised by the Solicitors Regulation Authority to take a trainee solicitor; and 'trainee solicitor' means any person receiving training under a training contract: reg 2(3).

5 The Training Regulations 1990 refer to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society (see reg 2(3))). However in practice the Solicitors Regulation Authority is currently responsible for setting the standards for admission as a solicitor (see PARA 619).

6 See the Qualified Lawyers' Transfer Regulations 1990 reg 6. A barrister or former barrister is required to pass the test in professional conduct and accounts prior to applying for admission, and must have (1) satisfactorily completed 12 months' pupillage and 12 months' legal practice acceptable to the Authority; (2) completed two years' legal practice acceptable to the Authority; or (3) been employed in a way consistent with service under a training contract for such period not exceeding two years as the authority may determine: reg 6.

652. Length of a training contract.

The term of a training contract is two years¹.

A person may be permitted to serve an extended training contract for a period not exceeding four years and be employed part time, provided that:

- 664 (1) the total period of service is no less than would be served by a person in full-time employment and receiving training under a two year training contract²; and
- 665 (2) the Solicitors Regulation Authority³ is satisfied that adequate training can be given⁴.

A person who follows a course leading to completion of the academic stage of training⁵ or the legal practice course⁶ on a part-time study basis may enter into a training contract in accordance with guidance issued from time to time by the Authority⁷.

1 Training Regulations 1990 reg 21(1). A training principal may in accordance with guidance issued from time to time by the Solicitors Regulation Authority, determine that time worked prior to entering into a training contract is equivalent to a period of service under a training contract: reg 21(4). 653. Solicitors with whom a training contract may be served.

Only a training establishment¹ may take a trainee solicitor². Every training establishment must provide training in accordance with guidance issued from time to time by the Solicitors Regulation Authority³. The Authority may declare any body, firm, company or individual a training establishment subject to such conditions and for such period as it considers appropriate; vary or discharge any condition; refuse to declare any body, firm, company or individual so authorised; or declare that a training establishment ceases to be one⁴. There is a right of review of the Authority's decision by application within one month of the receipt of notification of it⁵. Every training establishment must appoint a training principal whose name must be notified to the Authority and who must undertake to comply with the training code issued from time to time by the Authority⁶.

The Authority has published a voluntary code of good practice in the recruitment of trainee solicitors⁷.

Before a training establishment¹ enters into a training contract² with a person it must set out in a letter of offer to that person such information as to the terms and conditions to be included in the training contract as the Solicitors Regulation Authority³ may from time to time prescribe⁴.

The training contract must be for the required term⁵ and must be in such form and contain such terms and conditions as may be prescribed⁶. The present requirements are that the training contract may not be conditional, except upon examination success, nor must it contain a provision for termination other than by mutual consent except in the event of the trainee failing to obtain a specified result in a designated examination. The training contract must provide for a salary which must not be below the minimum prescribed from time to time by the Authority⁷.

657. Monitoring of a training contract.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ may monitor the training provided by a training establishment² in accordance with guidance issued from time to time³. Monitoring may be undertaken through visits to the premises of training establishments⁴.

If a training establishment, solicitor or trainee solicitor⁵ is in default of any of the training requirements⁶, or the Authority is not satisfied either that a trainee solicitor is receiving or has received adequate training or that the training establishment can give the trainee solicitor adequate training, it may exercise such of the following powers as it considers appropriate⁷:

- 666 (1) declare that a training establishment ceases to be such⁸;
- 667 (2) prohibit a training establishment from taking any or more than a specified number of trainee solicitors for such period as the Authority may determine or until otherwise determined⁹;
- 668 (3) impose any other conditions upon the training establishment which it considers appropriate¹⁰;
- 669 (4) terminate the training contract on such terms as it may determine¹¹;
- 670 (5) direct that all or any part of the period served by the trainee solicitor is not be reckoned as good service under a training contract¹²;
- 671 (6) direct that a trainee solicitor must serve such further period under a training contract or receive such further training for such further period and in such form as it requires¹³;
- 672 (7) direct that a training principal undertake such training as the Authority requires¹⁴;
- 673 (8) take such other action as it may consider necessary or appropriate¹⁵.

Any training establishment or trainee solicitor who is aggrieved by any such decision may apply for its review¹⁶.

658. Adequate training under a training contract.

No person required to serve a training contract¹ can be admitted as a solicitor² until the Solicitors Regulation Authority³ has certified that it is satisfied that that person has received adequate training in accordance with the terms of a training contract⁴. A person seeking to establish that adequate training has been received must apply to the Authority for a certificate to that effect and must submit such documentation as the authority may require⁵. The Authority must issue a completion certificate if satisfied that the person has received adequate training⁶ and may refuse the completion certificate if not so satisfied⁷.

659. Conciliation procedure.

A dispute between a training establishment¹ and a trainee solicitor² with regard to any aspect of the service under the training contract³ may be referred to a conciliator appointed by the Solicitors Regulation Authority⁴. 660. Continuing professional development.

All solicitors¹ must attend such continuing professional development courses as the Solicitors Regulation Authority² may prescribe³. A solicitor must keep a record of such continuing professional development undertaken, and produce the record to the Authority on demand⁴.

If a solicitor does not work for any period in legal practice or employment in England and Wales these responsibilities are suspended for that period⁵.

1 These provisions also apply to all registered European lawyers (as to whom see PARA 541 et seq), pursuant to Directive 98/5/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council to facilitate practice of the profession of lawyer on a permanent basis in a Member State other than that in which the qualification was obtained (OJ L77, 14.3.1998, p 36): see the Training Regulations 1990 regs 33, 34, 36-40, 42, 43.

(vi) Admission and Enrolment

661. Admission as a solicitor.

Subject to certain exceptions¹, no person may be admitted as a solicitor unless he has obtained from the Solicitors Regulation Authority² a certificate that it is satisfied that he has complied with the training regulations³ and is satisfied as to his character and suitability to be a solicitor⁴. Application for admission is made through the Authority by lodging with it a written application in the prescribed form and accompanied by such fee and such documents as the regulations may from time to time prescribe⁵.

An application for admission may be made at any time after the applicant has complied with the Training Regulations 1990 or the Qualified Lawyers Transfer Regulations 1990⁶.

An applicant must be admitted unless the Authority refuses to issue a certificate⁷ that it is satisfied as to the applicant's character and suitability, or it is otherwise not satisfied that the applicant has complied with the Training Regulations 1990 or the Qualified Lawyers Transfer Regulations 1990⁸.

The Authority must lodge with the clerk to the Master of the Rolls not less than two days before each day of admission a list of the persons certified as being entitled to be admitted on that day⁹. On receipt of the list the Master of the Rolls, where no objection is outstanding, by signing the list admits as solicitors the applicants whose names are contained in it and the admission becomes effective on a date determined by the Authority¹⁰. The Authority must prepare an admission certificate in respect of each person admitted, which must be signed by the Master of the Rolls and the secretary of the Authority, or attested in such manner as each of them respectively authorises¹¹.

As from a day to be appointed the Solicitors Act 1974 s 3(2) is amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 5(1) so that the Master of the Rolls is replaced in this regard by the Society. 662. Keeping of the roll.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ is required to keep a list of all solicitors of the Supreme Court², called the 'roll'³. Regulations may be made⁴ about the keeping of the roll⁵ and may:

- 674 (1) provide for the manner in which entries are to be made, altered and removed⁶;
- 675 (2) provide for the Authority, at such intervals as may be specified in the regulations, to inquire of solicitors of any class so specified whether they wish to have their names retained on the roll⁷;
- 676 (3) require solicitors of any such class, at such intervals as may be so specified, to pay to the Authority a fee in respect of the retention of their names on the roll of such amount as may be prescribed by the regulations⁸;
- 677 (4) authorise the Authority to remove from the roll the name of any solicitor who:
504
 - 12. (a) fails to reply to any inquiry made in pursuance of head (2) or to pay any fee payable by virtue of head (3)⁹; or
 - 13. (b) replies to any such inquiry by indicating that he does not wish to have his name retained on the roll¹⁰;
- 505 678 (5) authorise the Authority to remove from the roll the name of any solicitor who has died¹¹.

1 The Solicitors Act 1974 refers to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society (see s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4)). However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the making of such rules is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619).

2 As from a day to be appointed the words 'Senior Courts' are substituted for the words 'Supreme Court' by the Constitutional Reform Act 2007 Sch 11, para 2(1), (2).

3 Solicitors Act 1974 s 6(1).

4 Until a day to be appointed such regulations are made by the Master of the Rolls with the concurrence of the Secretary of State and the Lord Chief Justice: Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(1)(b) (amended by SI 2003/1887). As from a day to be appointed the Solicitors Act 1974 s 28 is further amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 30(1), (2), Sch 23 and regulations may instead be made by the Society (ie the Law Society (see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4)). However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the making of such rules is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619). Until a day to be appointed such regulations may also provide for rights of appeal to the Master of the Rolls in connection with the making and alteration of entries on the roll and the removal of entries from it and the Master of the Rolls may make regulations about the procedure for any appeals to him authorised by Pt 1 or regulations under s 28: Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(4), (5) (amended by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 1 para 8; and prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 30(1), (6), Sch 23). See the Master of the Rolls (Applications and Appeals) Regulations 2001; and PARA 918. As from a day to be appointed regulations under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 28 may make provision for appeals to the High Court against decisions by the Authority under the regulations and in relation to such an appeal the High Court may make such order as it thinks fit as to payment of costs: s 28(3D), (3E) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 30(1), (5)). In relation to such appeals the decision of the High Court is final: Solicitors Act s 28(3F) (so prospectively added). As from a day to be appointed the Authority may make rules providing that appeals under s 28(3D) lie to the Tribunal and not to the High Court: see s 49A(1), (2)(d) (not yet in force); and PARA 905. Regulations under s 28 may:

- 15 (1) provide for a person to exercise a discretion in dealing with any matter (s 28(3G)(a) (so prospectively added));
- 16 (2) include incidental, supplementary and consequential provision (s 28(3G)(b) (so prospectively added));
- 17 (3) make transitory or transitional provision and savings (s 28(3G)(c) (so prospectively added));
- 18 (4) make provision generally or only in relation to specified cases or subject to specified exceptions (s 28(3G)(d) (so prospectively added));
- 19 (5) make different provision for different cases (s 28(3G)(e) (so prospectively added)).

At the date at which this volume states the law no days had been appointed.

5 Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(1)(b). The current regulations are the Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1999 which replaced the Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1989 on 1 February 1999: Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1999 reg 2.

6 Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(3). References in the Solicitors Act 1974 to the removal of a solicitor's name from the roll are references to its removal at his own request or in pursuance of regulations under s 28(3A): s 87(2) (a) (amended by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 1 para 12(b)). They include references to deleting an entry made by means of a computer by whatever means are appropriate: Solicitors Act 1974 s 87(2)(c). Until a day to be appointed the roll may be kept by means of a computer and, if so kept, any entry must be made available for inspection in a legible form during office hours without payment by any person who applies to inspect it: s 6(2), (3). If the roll is not kept by means of a computer, any person may inspect it during office hours without payment: s 6(4). Sections 6(3)-(5), 38(3) are prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 6, 30(1), (3), Sch 23. However as from a day to be appointed the Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(3A)(za) is added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 30(1), (4) and provides that regulations about the keeping of the roll may make provision about the form in which the roll is to be kept and the manner in which entries are to be made, altered and removed: Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(3A)(za) (so prospectively added). Also as from a day to be appointed the regulations may require the information on the roll to be made available to the public and specify the manner in which information is to be made so available and require it to be made so available during office hours and without charge: s 28(3A)(e), (f) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 30(1), (4)(c)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such days had been appointed.

7 Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(3A)(a) (added by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 8, Sch 1 para 8). The Authority is required once a year to ask every solicitor without a practising certificate whether he wishes his name to remain on the register and the name of any solicitor who replies that he does not wish to remain on the register may be removed: see the Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1999 regs 4, 5(a). Similarly the name may also be removed of any solicitor who applies to have his name so removed: see reg 5(d); PARA 665.

8 Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(3A)(b) (as added: see note 7). A fee of £20 is payable by a solicitor wishing to remain on the roll other than a solicitor whose name had been on the roll for 50 years or more or for such shorter time as may be prescribed by the Authority: see Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1999 reg 13(a), (b).

9 Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(3A)(c)(i) (as added: see note 7). The name of any solicitor who fails to reply within eight weeks to an inquiry made in pursuance of head (2) in the text or to pay the prescribed fee for remaining on the roll may be removed: see the Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1999 reg 5(b), (c). However the Authority must first write to the solicitor of its intention to remove his name: reg 10.

10 Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(3A)(c)(ii) (as added: see note 7).

11 Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(3A)(d) (as added: see note 7). The name of any solicitor who has died may be removed from the roll: see the Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1999 reg 5(e).

UPDATE

662 Keeping of the roll

NOTE 2--Day appointed is 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604.

NOTES 4, 6--Day appointed is 1 July 2009: SI 2009/1365.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(2) TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(vi) Admission and Enrolment/663. Removal, restoration or change of name.

663. Removal, restoration or change of name.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ may remove a solicitor's name from the roll on his application² and, on the application of a former solicitor whose name is not on the roll because it has been so removed, may re-enter a solicitor's name on the roll on payment of such fee as the Authority determines³. An appeal lies⁴ in respect of failure to grant such applications⁵.

Where an order has been filed⁶ ordering the striking off or restoration to the roll of the name of a solicitor, or his suspension or exclusion from legal aid work, or the payment of a penalty or of costs⁷, the Authority must enter on the roll a note of the effect of the order against the name of the solicitor or former solicitor against whom the application or complaint was made⁸.

Where an order is made by the High Court or the Court of Appeal that the name of a solicitor be struck off the roll or that a solicitor be suspended from practice, the proper officer of the court must forthwith send a copy of the order to the Authority, and the Authority must enter a note of the order on the roll against the name of the solicitor and, where the order so directs, must strike that name off the roll⁹.

A solicitor whose name has changed may apply to the Authority for the name to be changed on the roll¹⁰.

1 The Solicitors Act 1974 ss 8, 53 and the Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1999 refer to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society (see s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4)). However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the making of such rules is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619).

2 Solicitors Act 1974 s 8(1); and see the Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1999 reg 5(d). The Authority may refuse to remove from or restore to the roll the name of a solicitor or former solicitor against whom there is an outstanding complaint: reg 8. However the name must not be removed or restored where disciplinary proceedings are pending before the Supreme Court or Tribunal: see reg 9. The Authority may prescribe forms for replies or applications: see reg 12. As from a day to be appointed the Supreme Court is renamed the Senior Courts: see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59(1), Sch 11 Pt 1; and COURTS. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

3 Solicitors Act 1974 s 8(2) (amended by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 1 para 3, Sch 8 Pt III; and the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 8(1), (2)). This power includes power to enter the name of a person whose name was removed from the roll before 1 May 1975 (ie the date of the coming into force of the Solicitors (Amendment) Act 1974 s 5 (repealed)): Solicitors Act 1974 s 8(3). Section 8(2) does not apply to a former solicitor with respect to whom a direction has been given under s 47(2)(g) (see PARA 909): s 8(2A) (added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 18 para 8). The Authority must write to the solicitor or former solicitor to confirm the relevant changes to the roll have taken place or to give notice that they have refused to make them: see the Solicitors (Keeping of the Roll) Regulations 1999 reg 11.

4 Until a day to be appointed the appeal lies to the Master of the Rolls: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 8(4) (added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 95). The Master of the Rolls may make regulations about such appeals to him: Solicitors Act 1974 s 8(5) (as so added; prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 8(1), (5), Sch 23)). See the Master of the Rolls (Applications and Appeals) Regulations 2001; and PARA 918. However as from a day to be appointed the appeal lies to the High Court: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 8(4) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 8(1), (3)). In relation to such an appeal the High Court may make such order as it thinks fit to payment of costs: Solicitors Act 1974 s 8(4A) (s 8(4A), (4B) prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 8(1), (5), Sch 23). The decision of the High Court on an appeal under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 8(4) is final: s 8(4B) (as so prospectively added). As from a day to be appointed the Authority may make rules providing that appeals under s 8(4) lie to the Tribunal and not to the High Court: see s 49A(1), (2)(a) (not yet in force); and PARA 905. At the date at which this volume states the law no such days had been appointed.

5 Solicitors Act 1974 s 8(4) (as added and prospectively amended: see note 4). See also the Solicitors (Keeping of the Rolls) Regulations 1999 r 14.

6 As to the filing of orders see PARA 915.

7 Ie an order under the Solicitors Act 1974 ss 47(2)(a)-(i) or under s 47(2B): see PARAS 909-910, 930.

8 Solicitors Act 1974 s 48(2)(a) (amended by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 67(1), Sch 7 para 5; and by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 92(5)). Where the order concerns striking off the roll, suspension from practice or payment of a penalty (ie except where the order only makes provision for matters referred to in the Solicitors Act 1974 s 47(2)(e), (f), (h) or (i) or as from a day to be appointed s 47(2)(ea)) the Authority must cause a notice stating the effect of the order to be published: see s 48(2)(b) (amended by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 92(5) and the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 50(a)(ii), Sch 23; prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 50(a)(i)). As from a day to be appointed in the case of orders of the Tribunal under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 44E (prospectively added: see PARA 896), the reference in s 48(2)(a) to the application or complaint is to be read as a reference to the Tribunal's order: s 48(5) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 50(c)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such days had been appointed.

664. Restrictions on power to strike names off roll.

No solicitor is liable to have his name struck off the roll on account of any failure to comply with the requirements with respect to persons seeking admission as solicitors of any training regulations or on account of any defect in his admission and enrolment, unless the application to strike his name off the roll is made within 12 months of the date of his enrolment or fraud is proved to have been committed in connection with the failure or defect¹.

No solicitor is liable to have his name struck off the roll by reason only that a solicitor who undertook a training responsibility for him under training regulations neglected or omitted to take out a practising certificate or that the name of a solicitor who undertook such a responsibility for a period has been removed from or struck off the roll after the end of that period².

On production of:

- 679 (1) an admission of any person as a solicitor¹; or

- 681 (3) an order³ for the restoration to the roll of the name of a former solicitor in respect of whom a direction has been given⁴, and on payment of such fee as the Solicitors Regulation Authority from time to time determines, the Authority must enter the name of that person on the roll⁵.

1 See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 7(a) (amended by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 20). Until a day to be appointed the admission required is one signed by the Master of the Rolls: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 7(a) (as amended). However s 7(a) is prospectively substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 7(a) as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2) and instead applies to the production of written evidence of admission as a solicitor by the Solicitors Regulation Authority: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 7(a) (so prospectively substituted). The prospectively substituted s 7 refers to the Society (ie the Law Society (see s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4)). However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the making of such rules is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619).

2 Solicitors Act 1974 s 7(b). Although a person whose name has been removed from the roll may apply for his name to be restored to the roll, this does not apply if:

- 20 (1) the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal has made an order prohibiting such restoration except by order of the Tribunal; or

However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the making of such rules is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619). References to striking a solicitor's name off the roll are references to striking it off as a disciplinary sanction, and include references to deleting an entry made by means of a computer by whatever means are appropriate: Solicitors Act 1974 s 87(2)(b), (c) (s 47(2)(b) amended by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 1 para 12(b)).

666 The roll as evidence

TEXT AND NOTE 1--Day appointed is 1 July 2009: SI 2009/1365.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(2) TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(vii) Practising Certificates/667. Necessity for practising certificate.

(vii) Practising Certificates

667. Necessity for practising certificate.

A person practising as a solicitor¹ must have in force a practising certificate issued by the Solicitors Regulation Authority or be exempt² from holding such a certificate³ and a solicitor is not qualified to act as a solicitor unless he has in force such a certificate⁴. This applies to any admitted person⁵. An unqualified person⁶ cannot recover his costs⁷ in respect of anything done by him or by any other person in any action, suit or matter if he does not hold a practising certificate⁸, not even on detailed assessment by a client who has submitted to pay what is found due on assessment⁹. Furthermore, money deposited with a solicitor on account of costs generally cannot validly be appropriated to items which are irrecoverable for want of a practising certificate¹⁰ and any money so appropriated may be recovered by the client, if on the facts the court is satisfied (as it will be by a direction or agreement to retain and pay costs, without special reference to specific items) that an assessment was necessary or contemplated¹¹. If, however, money is paid to a solicitor to meet particular disbursements or to pay costs or fees in respect of which no assessment is contemplated, and is applied accordingly, then the client cannot recover the money even if the solicitor was uncertificated at the relevant date¹². The successful party to any litigation cannot recover any costs or disbursements from the opposite party if the solicitor acting for him was uncertificated¹³, although the steps taken by the uncertificated solicitor on his client's behalf are not invalid¹⁴.

A solicitor to a public department who is by statute authorised to act in that capacity need not take out a practising certificate to enable him so to act¹⁵.

1 A person is practising as a solicitor if they are involved in legal practice and:

- 22 (1) their involvement in the firm or the work depends on them being a solicitor;
- 23 (2) they are held out explicitly or implicitly as a practising solicitor;
- 24 (3) they are employed explicitly or implicitly as a solicitor; or
- 25 (4) they are deemed by the Solicitors Act 1974 s 1A (see PARA 635) to be acting as a solicitor: Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 20.01(2).

For this purpose 'legal practice' includes not only the practice of law but also the provision of business services such as are provided by solicitors: r 20.01(3).

A solicitor who was formerly a registered European lawyer and practising from an office in the UK must have in force a practising certificate: r 20.01(4). As to the meaning of 'registered European lawyer' see PARA 542 note 2.

2 He exempt under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 88 (see PARA 642).

3 See the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 20.01(1). Rule 20 also applies in relation to an overseas practice: r 15.20.

4 See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 1; and PARA 635. Such a certificate is known as a 'practising certificate': ss 1, 87(1). A person practising without such a certificate is an unqualified person within the meaning of s 1 (see PARAS 635-642), and as such liable to a fine: see PARA 589 et seq. Committal proceedings are not vitiated by the fact that the defendant's solicitor did not hold a practising certificate: R v Scott (John) (1978) 122 Sol Jo 523, CA. Solicitors holding a practising certificate are covered by a group licence under the Consumer Credit Act 1974: see CONSUMER CREDIT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 122.

- 5 See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 1A; and PARA 635.
- 6 'Unqualified person' does not here include an European lawyer providing services under the European Communities (Services of Lawyers) Order 1978, SI 1978/1910: see art 18(2), Schedule Pt 3. As to the meaning of 'unqualified person' generally see PARA 642 note 12.
- 7 As to the meaning of 'costs' see PARA 835 note 5.
- 8 See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 25(1); and PARA 590. However this does not prevent the recovery of money paid or to be paid to a solicitor on behalf of this client if such money would have been recoverable if the solicitor had held a practising certificate when acting: see s 25(2); and PARA 590. It is also prospectively provided that s 25 does not apply where a person does an act which would be an offence under s 23 (preparing papers for probate etc: see PARA 592) but for the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 ss 54, 55 (probate services): see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 25(3) (not yet in force); and PARA 590.

Certain persons or indorsements mentioned in this paragraph are specified for the purposes of Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 37, Schs 5, 6 (meaning of 'regulator' for the purposes of imposing civil sanctions): see ADMINISTRATIVE LAW vol 1(1) (2001 Reissue) PARA 196A.

NOTE 3--Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 15.20 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(2) TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(vii) Practising Certificates/668. Application for practising certificate.

668. Application for practising certificate.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. On receipt of an application for a practising certificate, the Solicitors Regulation Authority² must cause the applicant's full name, his place or places of business and the date of admission to be entered in a register kept for that purpose³. If any person makes any false statement material to the application, a complaint may be made to the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal by or on behalf of the Authority⁴.

In certain cases⁵, unless otherwise ordered⁶, not less than six weeks' notice must be given before applying for a certificate⁷. Every application for a practising certificate which is to follow on immediately from the applicant's current practising certificate must reach the Authority on or before the replacement date⁸.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect⁹. A person whose name is on the roll¹⁰ may apply to the Authority to be issued with a practising certificate¹¹. Such an application may include an application for a sole solicitor endorsement¹². The name of the solicitor holding the practising certificate, a statement as to whether there is in force a sole solicitor endorsement and such other information as may be specified in regulations¹³ must be contained in the register kept by the Authority¹⁴.

1 The Solicitors Act 1974 s 9 is substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 9 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(1). As the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 The Solicitors Act 1984 s 9 refers to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society elected in accordance with provisions of the Charter and the Solicitors Act 1974 (see s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4)). However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the issuing of practising certificates is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619). As to the meaning of the 'Charter' see PARA 835 note 1.

3 Solicitors Act 1974 s 9(1). As to the register see PARA 621. The application must be in the prescribed form and must be correctly completed and accompanied by such additional information, documents and references as the Solicitors Regulation Authority may specify: Practising Certificate Regulations 1995 reg 5. It must be personally signed by the applicant unless (1) another solicitor has been given written permission by the Authority, in exceptional circumstances, to sign on the applicant's behalf; or (2) the form used is completed on behalf of a number of applicants in one practice, and the person signing the form is a solicitor authorised by the practice, and has the consent of all the persons named in the form, to sign on their behalf: reg 10. These regulations were made on 24 January 1995 by the Master of the Rolls, with the concurrence of the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Chief Justice, under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 14(2) (see PARA 669) and s 28 (see PARA 662), and apply to all practising certificates and applications for practising certificates for any period commencing on or after 1 November 1995: Practising Certificate Regulations 1995 reg 1.

4 Solicitors Act 1974 s 9(5). As to professional discipline see PARA 906 et seq.

5 In cases to which Solicitors Act 1974 s 12(1) (prospectively repealed) applies: see PARA 898.

6 In cases otherwise ordered by the Master of the Rolls or the Authority.

7 Solicitors Act 1974 s 12(4); Practising Certificate Regulations 1995 reg 8(1). Unless the Authority dispenses with this requirement, the notice must be accompanied by:

26 (1) a certificate of fitness completed by two practising solicitors to whom the applicant is personally known but who are not:

UPDATE

668-675 Application for practising certificate ... Fees

Day appointed in relation to these provisions is 1 July 2009: SI 2009/1365.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(2) TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(vii) Practising Certificates/669. Issue of practising certificate.

669. Issue of practising certificate.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Subject to the payment of the prescribed fees² and provided that no discretion is vested in the Solicitors Regulation Authority³ with respect to the issue of a practising certificate in the particular case⁴, the Authority must within 21 days of receipt of an application for a practising certificate issue such a certificate in the prescribed form⁵ if it is satisfied that:

- 682 (1) the applicant's name is on the roll⁶;
- 683 (2) he is not suspended from practice⁷;
- 684 (3) his application complies with any regulations made in respect of practising certificates and applications for them⁸;
- 685 (4) he is complying with such training regulations as may apply to him⁹;
- 686 (5) he is complying with or is exempt from compliance with any indemnity rules¹⁰; and
- 687 (6) he has paid to the Authority the annual contribution¹¹ to the compensation fund and any special levy¹² which may be payable in addition to the annual contribution¹³.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹⁴. Where an application is made for a practising certificate to be issued¹⁵, the Authority must issue a practising certificate to the applicant if it is satisfied that the applicant is not suspended from practice and is complying with any prescribed requirements imposed on the applicant¹⁶. A practising certificate issued to an applicant of a prescribed description¹⁷ must be issued subject to any conditions prescribed in relation to applicants of that description¹⁸.

In such circumstances as may be prescribed¹⁹, the Authority must, if it considers it is in the public interest to do so refuse to issue a practising certificate under this section or where it decides to issue a practising certificate, issue it subject to one or more conditions²⁰.

The conditions which may be imposed include:

- 688 (a) conditions requiring the person to whom the certificate is issued to take specified²¹ steps that will, in the opinion of the Authority, be conducive to the carrying on by that person of an efficient practice as a solicitor (including, if the certificate has a sole solicitor endorsement, an efficient practice as a sole solicitor)²²;
- 689 (b) conditions which prohibit that person from taking any specified steps, except with the approval of the Authority²³.

1 The Solicitors Act 1974 s 10 is substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 9, 11 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 As to such fees see the Practising Certificate Fee Order and Regulations 2007; and PARA 670.

3 The Solicitors Act 1974 refers to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society elected in accordance with provisions of the Charter and the Solicitors Act 1974 (see s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4)). However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the issuing of practising certificates is the Solicitors

Regulation Authority (see PARA 619). As to the meaning of the 'Charter' see PARA 835 note 1. As to the discretion with regard to issuing practising certificates see s 12; and PARA 898.

4 As to cases in which this discretion vests in the Authority see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 12 (prospectively repealed); and PARA 898.

5 Every practising certificate must specify its commencement date, its replacement date, and any conditions imposed by the Authority: Practising Certificate Regulations 1995 reg 4. The certificate is sent by post to the applicant at his principal practising address or to such other address as may be specified by or on behalf of the applicant in writing to the Authority: reg 12. Until a day to be appointed every practising certificate has effect from the beginning of the day (the 'commencement date') on which it is issued: Solicitors Act 1974 s 14(1) (s 14 substituted by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 86 with respect to certificates issued from 1 November 1991; and prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 18, Sch 23). The Master of the Rolls may, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State and the Lord Chief Justice, make regulations (Solicitors Act 1974 s 14(2) (as so substituted; amended by SI 2003/1887; and prospectively repealed)):

32 (1) prescribing the date (the 'replacement date') by which each solicitor who has a practising certificate which is for the time being in force must apply for a new practising certificate if he wishes to continue to have one (Solicitors Act 1974 s 14(2)(a) (as so substituted and prospectively repealed)); and 33 (2) requiring every practising certificate to specify its replacement date (Solicitors Act 1974 s 14(2)(b) (as so substituted and prospectively repealed)).

Without prejudice to the Solicitors Act 1974 s 28(1) (see PARAS 661-662, 671) such regulations may:

34 (a) provide for different replacement dates for different categories of solicitor or in different circumstances (s 14(4)(a) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed));

35 (b) provide for the Authority to specify different replacement dates to those prescribed by the regulations in respect of individual solicitors (s 14(4)(b) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed)); and

36 (c) make such transitional, incidental and supplemental provision, in connection with any provision for different replacement dates, including different dates specified by the Authority, as the Master of the Rolls considers expedient (s 14(4)(c) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed)).

The Authority must enter the commencement date and replacement date of each practising certificate in the register kept under s 9 (see PARA 668) by the Authority: s 14(3) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed). Where a practising certificate is in force with respect to a solicitor, the Authority may withdraw it if the replacement date for that certificate has passed but he has not applied for a new practising certificate: s 14(5) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed).

A practising certificate expires:

37 (i) immediately when a solicitor's name is removed from or struck off the roll (s 14(6)(a) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed));

38 (ii) immediately where the certificate is withdrawn (s 14(6)(b) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed));

39 (iii) on the commencement of a new practising certificate where one is issued to the solicitor (s 14(6)(c) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed));

40 (iv) where the Authority refuses to issue a solicitor with a new practising certificate, either immediately after the replacement date for the existing certificate has passed, or, if that date has already passed, immediately on the taking of the decision not to issue him with a new certificate (s 14(6)(d) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed)).

Where any practising certificate expires in the circumstances mentioned in head (i), (ii) or (iv) above, the date of its expiry must be entered in the register: s 14(7) (as so substituted; and prospectively repealed).

6 Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(1)(a).

7 Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(1)(b). As to suspension see PARA 909.

8 Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(1)(c). As to the power to make regulations see s 28(1)(c); and PARA 671.

9 Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(1)(d). At any time when regulations under s 28 specify a training condition or training conditions, any practising certificate issued to an applicant by the Authority must be issued subject to that condition or one of those conditions if it appears to the Authority that training regulations will apply to him at the end of 21 days from the Authority's receipt of his application: s 10(2). As to the power to make training regulations see s 2; and PARA 622; and as to the regulations so made see PARA 644 et seq.

10 Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(1)(e). As to indemnity rules see PARA 853. At any time when regulations under s 28 specify an indemnity condition or indemnity conditions, any practising certificate issued to an applicant by the Authority must be issued subject to that condition or to one of those conditions if it appears to the Authority that he will be exempt from indemnity rules at the end of 21 days from the Authority's receipt of his application: s 10(3).

11 On each occasion on which he applies for a practising certificate a solicitor must pay to the Authority an annual contribution to the compensation fund: see the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 2 para 2(1)(a) (Sch 2 is prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act Sch 16 paras 1, 79, Sch 23). However, this contribution and the special levy are not payable in respect of the first three practising certificates after a solicitor's admission, and are payable at half the normal rate in respect of the next three certificates: see the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 2 para 2(2), (3) (as so prospectively repealed). A solicitor may be required to pay an annual contribution of a reduced amount where that payment is made with respect to a practising certificate which has a replacement date which is less than 12 months after the replacement date of the solicitor's previous certificate: see Sch 2 para 2(3A) (added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 125(3), Sch 18 para 18; and so prospectively repealed). Where it appears from his application for a practising certificate that a solicitor has not held or received clients' money at any time during the period specified in the application, he may be required to pay an annual contribution of a specified reduced amount on that application, or to pay no annual contribution thereon: see the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 2 para 2(3B) (as so added and prospectively repealed).

12 Where it appears from his application for a practising certificate that he has held or received clients' money at any time during the period specified in the application, a solicitor must, on making the application, also pay to the Authority before the issue of the certificate, if it so requires, a further contribution (a 'special levy') of an amount determined by them: Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 2 para 2(1)(b) (amended by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 ss 8, 67(2), Sch 1 para 14, Sch 8 Pt III; and prospectively repealed: see note 11). As to payment at a reduced amount see note 11.

13 Neither the annual contribution nor the special levy is payable by any solicitor who is a Crown prosecutor: Sch 2 para 2(2A) (added by the Prosecution of Offences Act 1985 s 4(6); and prospectively repealed (see note 11)).

14 See note 1.

15 I.e an application under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 9 (see PARA 668).

16 Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(1) (as prospectively substituted: see note 1).

18 Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(2) (as prospectively substituted: see note 1).

20 Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(3) (as prospectively substituted: see note 1).

21 'Specified', in relation to a condition imposed on a practising certificate, means specified in the condition: Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(5) (as prospectively substituted: see note 1).

22 Solicitors Act 1974 s 10(4)(a) (as prospectively substituted: see note 1).

669-670 Issue of practising certificate, Fees

Certain functions under provisions mentioned in these paragraphs are 'relevant functions' for the purposes of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 s 4, Sch 3: see LOCAL GOVERNMENT vol 69 (2009) PARA 733.

670. Fees.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. There is payable in advance to the Solicitors Regulation Authority², in respect of each practising certificate, such fee as may be determined by order³. Such an order may specify reduced fees for practising certificates in specified circumstances⁴. Where such an order specifies a reduced fee in the case of a solicitor whose income from his practice as a solicitor is, during such period as may be specified, less than an amount specified, then the question whether, for the purposes of any such order, the income of a solicitor during the specified period falls below the specified amount is to be determined in accordance with regulations⁵. The fees must be applied in such manner as the Authority thinks fit for the purposes of⁶:

- 690 (1) the regulation, accreditation, education and training of solicitors and those wishing to become solicitors, including the maintaining and raising of their professional standards and giving advice on practice management and practical support for solicitors' practices⁷;
- 691 (2) the participation by the Authority in law reform and the legislative process⁸;
- 692 (3) the provision by solicitors and those wishing to become solicitors of free legal services to the public⁹;
- 693 (4) the promotion of the protection by law of human rights and fundamental freedoms¹⁰;
- 694 (5) the promotion by the Authority of the professional interests of solicitors through discussion with, and participation in the activities of, relevant national and international bodies, governments and the legal professions of other jurisdictions¹¹.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹². Before a practising certificate is issued, there must be paid to the Authority in respect of the certificate a fee of such an amount as the Authority may from time to time determine and different fees may be specified for different categories of applicant and in respect of different circumstances¹³. Under the following circumstances the application must be accompanied by an additional fee of such amount as the Authority from time to time determines:

- 695 (a) where the solicitor has failed to deliver an accountant's report required by rules¹⁴ by such time as may be prescribed by those rules¹⁵;
- 696 (b) where a practising certificate has not been issued by the Authority to the solicitor since the Authority became aware of the failure¹⁶.

1 The Solicitors Act 1974 s 11 is substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 11 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

As to the meaning of the 'Charter' see PARA 835 note 1.

3 See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 11(1). The fee is determined by the Master of the Rolls, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State and the Lord Chief Justice: see s 11(1) (amended by SI 2003/1887). See the Practising Certificate Fee Order and Regulations 2007. The Authority must submit annual accounts of fees to the Master of

6 Until a day to be appointed the Secretary of State may by order amend the Solicitors Act 1974 s 11(3) by substituting for the purposes referred to in it (at any time):

41 (1) the purposes of the regulation, education and training of solicitors and those wishing to become solicitors; or

42 (2) both those purposes and such other purposes as the Secretary of State considers appropriate: Access to Justice Act 1999 s 47(1) (amended by SI 2003/1887; and prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 23).

No such order must be made unless the Secretary of State has consulted the Master of the Rolls and the Solicitors Regulation Authority and a draft of the order has been approved by the House of Parliament: see the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 47(2) (amended by SI 2003/1887; and so prospectively repealed).

671. Making of regulations.

Regulations may be made¹ about practising certificates and the keeping of the practice certificate register². As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect³. Regulations may be made about sole solicitor endorsements and applications for them⁴. Regulations about practising certificates or sole solicitor endorsements may (among other things):

- 697 (1) prescribe the form and manner in which applications for, or relating to, practising certificates or sole solicitor endorsements are to be made⁵;
- 698 (2) prescribe information which must be included in or accompany such applications⁶;
- 699 (3) make provision about time limits for dealing with such applications, and confer on a person power to extend or bring forward such a time limit in prescribed circumstances⁷;
- 700 (4) prescribe the requirements which applicants for practising certificates must satisfy before they may be issued with a practising certificate⁸;

- 703 (7) prescribe the circumstances¹³ in which an application may be refused etc in the public interest¹⁴;
- 704 (8) make provision about when conditions imposed on practising certificates take effect (including provision conferring power on the Solicitors Regulation Authority to direct that a condition is not to have effect until the conclusion of any appeal in relation to it)¹⁵;
- 705 (9) make provision for the commencement, duration, replacement, withdrawal and expiry of practising certificates or sole solicitor endorsements¹⁶;
- 706 (10) prescribe the circumstances¹⁷ in which conditions can be imposed during the period of practising certificate¹⁸;

However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the making of such rules is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619). Regulations under s 28 may make provision for appeals to the High Court against decisions made by the Authority under the regulations and the decision of the High Court is final: s 28(3D), (3F) (prospectively added: see note 3). In relation to such an appeal the High Court may make such order as it thinks fit as to payment of costs: s 28(3E) (so prospectively added). Regulations under s 28 may:

The power under the Solicitors Act 2007 s 28(1) includes power to specify (1) one or more conditions ('training conditions') to be imposed on the issue of practising certificates to solicitors to whom training regulations apply; and (2) one or more conditions ('indemnity conditions') to be imposed on the issue of practising certificates to solicitors who are exempt from indemnity rules: s 28(2) (prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 30(1), (3), Sch 23). 671 Making of regulations

TEXT AND NOTE 19--The power to make regulations under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 28, so far as relating to the matters mentioned in head (11), has effect with respect to registered foreign lawyers as it has effect with respect to solicitors, except that the reference to practising certificates is to be read as a reference to registration in the register of foreign lawyers: Registered Foreign Lawyers Order 2009, SI 2009/1589, art 4.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(2) TRAINING AND QUALIFICATION/(vii) Practising Certificates/672. The register as evidence.

672. The register as evidence.

Until a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. Any list purporting to be published by authority of the Solicitors Regulation Authority² is evidence, until the contrary is proved, that every person whose name appears in it as a solicitor holding a certificate for the current year issued before 2 January in that year is a solicitor who holds such a certificate³. The absence from any such list of the name of any person is evidence that that person is not qualified to practise as a solicitor under a certificate for the current year, until the contrary is proved⁴, but an extract from the roll certified as correct by Authority is evidence of the facts appearing in the extract⁵.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect⁶. An extract from the register of holders of practising certificates⁷ which is certified as correct by the Authority is evidence of the matters mentioned in it⁸. A certificate from the Authority stating that a person is or was registered in the register⁹ is evidence of the matters stated¹⁰.

The rules may provide that, for the purposes of the rules and the Solicitors Act 1974 a solicitor is not to be regarded as practising as a sole solicitor in such circumstances as may be prescribed by the rules⁶. The rules must prescribe the circumstances in which a solicitor may be regarded by the Authority as suitable to be authorised to practise as a sole solicitor⁷.

Unless he is suspended from practice as a sole solicitor², a solicitor whose practising certificate for the time being in force (his 'current certificate') does not have a sole solicitor endorsement³, may apply to the Solicitors Regulation Authority⁴ for such an endorsement⁵. A person who makes such an application may appeal to the High Court against a decision to refuse the application⁶.

On an appeal the High Court may affirm the decision of the Authority, direct the Authority to grant a sole solicitor endorsement, direct that the applicant's practising certificate is to have effect subject to such conditions (if any) as the High Court thinks fit, or make such other order as the High Court thinks fit and the decision of the High Court is final¹⁰.

684. Receiving business referrals.

Generally a solicitor receiving referrals of clients¹ must do nothing which would compromise his independence or ability to act in the best interests of the client². Before accepting instructions the solicitor must provide the client with certain information relating to the referral³. The solicitor must be satisfied that clients referred by the introducer have not been acquired as a result of marketing or publicity or other activities which, if done by a person regulated by the Solicitors Regulation Authority, would be in breach of any of the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 rules⁴.

When a solicitor enters into a financial arrangement⁵ with an introducer⁶ the agreement must not include any provision which would compromise, infringe or impair any of the duties set out in the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 or allow the introducer to influence or constrain the professional judgement of the solicitor in relation to the advice given to the client⁷. The agreement must provide that before making a referral the introducer must give the client all relevant information concerning the referral⁸.

If the solicitor has reason to believe that the introducer is breaching any of the terms of the agreement required by the relevant provisions of the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007⁹ he must take all reasonable steps to ensure that the breach is remedied and if the introducer continues to breach it the solicitor must terminate the agreement¹⁰.

A solicitor must not enter into a financial arrangement with an introducer for the referral of clients in respect of criminal proceedings or any matter in which he will act for the client with the benefit of public funding¹¹.

1 This does not apply to referrals between lawyers: see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 9.01(3).

2 Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 9.01(1). Potential introducers must be informed of r 9 and r 7 (see PARA 834): r 9.01(2). Rule 9 does not apply to an overseas practice: see r 15.09(1). However any referrals must still comply with r 1 (see PARA 831): see r 15.09(2).

3 See the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 9.02(g). This duty is in addition to the requirements contained in r 2.02, 2.03 or 2.05 (see PARAS 815, 887).

4 See the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 9.02(c). As to the provisions relating to publicity see r 7; and PARA 834.

5 For these purposes 'financial arrangement' includes any payment to a third party in respect of referrals and any agreement to be paid by a third party introducer to provide services to the third party's customers: Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 9.02(i)(i). 'Payment' includes any other consideration but does not include normal hospitality, proper disbursements or normal business expenses: r 9.02(i)(ii).

6 The introducer must undertake, as part of the agreement, to comply with the provisions of the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 9.02: r 9.02(b).

7 Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 9.02(d). The agreement must be in writing and be available for inspection by the Solicitors Regulation Authority: r 9.02(a).

8 See the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 9.02(e). Such information must include the fact that the introducer has a financial arrangement with the solicitor and the amount of any payment to the introducer which is calculated by reference to that referral or, where the introducer is paying the solicitor to provide services to the introducer's customers, the amount being paid to the solicitor and the amount the client is required to pay the introducer: see r 9.02(e).

685. Making business referrals.

Generally a solicitor making a referral of a client¹ must do nothing which would compromise his independence or ability to act in the best interests of the client². If a solicitor recommends that a client use a particular firm, agency or business, he must do so in good faith, judging what is in the client's best interests³ and must not enter into any agreement or association which would restrict his freedom to recommend any particular firm, agency or business⁴.

Where a solicitor refers a client to a firm, agency or business that can only offer products from one source, he must notify the client in writing of this limitation⁵. If a client is likely to need an endowment policy, or similar life insurance with an investment element, the solicitor must refer the client only to an independent intermediary authorised to give investment advice⁶.

As from a day to be appointed s 9(3) is substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 80, 81(1), (6) and no longer applies to ss 22(1), 23(1). However as from a day to be appointed the word 'corporate' is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 81(10)(e), Sch 23. As to rules prescribing the circumstances under which a body may be recognised see the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(1)(b); the Solicitors' Recognised Bodies Regulations 2007; and PARAS 688, 691. For the purposes of the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 'recognised body' means a body corporate (which can be a company or a limited liability partnership) for the time being recognised under the Administration of Justice Act 1985 and the Solicitors' Recognised Bodies Regulations 2007: Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 24.01. 1 The Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A is added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 80, 82 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A(1) (prospectively added: see note 1).

3 The Solicitors Regulation Authority may by rules under the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9 (see PARA 691) provide that, in relation to specified kinds of bodies, s 9A(2) applies as if the references to 75% were to such greater percentage as may be specified (and different percentages may be specified for different kinds of bodies): s 9A(3) (prospectively added: see note 1). 'Specified' means specified in rules made by the Authority: s 9A(8) (so prospectively added). Section 9A refers to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society), however, in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the making of rules is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619). Until a day to be appointed (ie the coming into force of s 13 (see PARA 509)) rules made under s 9A may only be made with the concurrence of the Lord Chancellor (as well as the Master of the Rolls): see the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 22 para 16.

6 Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A(2)(c) (prospectively added: see note 1).

7 Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A(2)(d) (prospectively added: see note 1). A person has an interest in a body if the person has an interest in the body for the purposes of s 9: s 9A(9) (so prospectively added).

8 See note 3.

9 Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A(2)(e) (prospectively added: see note 1). As to the meaning of 'recognised body' see PARA 687 note 3 (definition applied by s 9A(8) (so prospectively added)).

10 As to the meaning of 'registered European lawyer' see the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9; and PARA 542 note 2 (definition applied by s 9A(8) (prospectively added: see note 1)).

11 Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A(4) (prospectively added: see note 1). For this purpose a qualifying body is a body in respect of which:

- 70 (1) the management and control condition would be satisfied if the references in s 9A(2) to persons who are legally qualified were to persons who are:
 11. (a) an authorised person who is an individual (s 9A(5), (6)(a) (so prospectively added));
11
 12. (b) a registered foreign lawyer (s 9A(5), (6)(b) (so prospectively added));
12
 13. (c) a person entitled to pursue professional activities under a professional title to which EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L77, 14.3.98, p 36) (see PARA 534) applies in a state to which it applies (other than the title of barrister or solicitor in England and Wales) (Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A(5), (6)(c) (so prospectively added));
13
 14. (d) an authorised person which is a body in respect of which the services condition is satisfied and the management and control condition would be satisfied if the references in s 9A(2) to persons who are legally qualified were to persons who are legally qualified by virtue of heads (a)-(c) above (s 9A(5), (6)(d) (so prospectively added));
14
 15. (e) a body which provides professional services such as are provided by individuals who are authorised persons or lawyers of other jurisdictions and in respect of which the management and control condition would be satisfied if the references in s 9A(2) to persons who are legally qualified were to persons who are legally qualified by virtue of heads (a)-(c) above (s 9A(5), (6)(e) (so prospectively added));
15
- 71 (2) the relevant lawyer condition is satisfied in that at least one manager of the body is a solicitor or a registered European lawyer (s 9A(4)(a), (b), (5)(b) (so prospectively added)); and
- 72 (3) the services condition is satisfied (s 9A(5)(c) (so prospectively added)).

The services condition is satisfied in relation to a body if the body provides only services which may be provided by a recognised body (having regard to the rules under s 9(1A), (1C)): s 9A(7) (so prospectively added). As to the meaning of 'registered foreign lawyer' see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89; and PARA 628 (definition applied by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A(6)(b) (so prospectively added)). and other authorised bodies (defined in s 9A(8) (amended by SI 2008/3074)) within definition of a qualifying body subject to specified restrictions.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(3) BUSINESS ARRANGEMENTS/(v) Recognised bodies/A. RECOGNITION ETC/691. Power to make rules relating to legal services bodies.

691. Power to make rules relating to legal services bodies.

As from a day to be appointed¹ the Solicitors Regulation Authority may make rules² making provision as to the management and control of legal services bodies³, prescribing the circumstances in which such bodies may be recognised by the Authority as being suitable bodies to undertake the provision of any solicitor services or other relevant legal services⁴, prescribing the requirements which (subject to any exceptions provided by the rules) must at all times be satisfied by bodies so recognised if they are to remain so recognised⁵ and regulating the conduct of the affairs of such bodies⁶. The Authority may by such rules provide:

- 791 (1) that services specified, or of a description specified, in the rules are not to be treated as solicitor services or other relevant legal services⁷;
- 792 (2) for the manner and form in which applications for recognition⁸ or for the renewal of such recognition, are to be made, and requiring such applications to be accompanied by a fee of such amount as the Authority may from time to time determine⁹;
- 793 (3) for the manner and form in which other applications under the rules are to be made, and requiring such applications to be accompanied by a fee of such amount as the Authority may from time to time determine¹⁰;
- 794 (4) for regulating the names that may be used by recognised bodies¹¹;
- 795 (5) about the time when any recognition, or renewal of recognition, takes effect and the period for which it is¹² to remain in force¹³;
- 796 (6) for the suspension or revocation of any such recognition, on such grounds and in such circumstances as may be prescribed by the rules¹⁴;
- 797 (7) about the effect on the recognition of a partnership or other unincorporated body (the 'existing body') of any change in the membership of the existing body, including provision for the existing body's recognition to be transferred where the existing body ceases to exist and another body succeeds to the whole or substantially the whole of its business¹⁵;
- 798 (8) for the keeping by the Authority of a register containing the names and places of business of all bodies which are for the time being recognised under these provisions¹⁶, and such other information relating to those bodies as may be specified in the rules¹⁷;
- 799 (9) for information (or information of a specified description) on such a register to be made available to the public, including provision about the manner in which, and times at which, information is to be made so available¹⁸;
- 800 (10) for rules made under any provision of the Solicitors Act 1974 to have effect in relation to recognised bodies with such additions, omissions or other modifications as appear to the Authority to be necessary or expedient¹⁹;
- 801 (11) about the education and training requirements to be met by managers and employees of recognised bodies²⁰;
- 802 (12) for rules made under any provision of the Solicitors Act 1974 to have effect in relation to managers and employees of recognised bodies with such additions, omissions or other modifications as appear to the Authority to be necessary or expedient²¹;

- 803 (13) for recognised bodies to appoint a person or persons to monitor compliance, by the recognised body, its managers and its employees, with requirements imposed²² on them²³;
- 804 (14) for the manner of service on recognised bodies of documents authorised or required to be served on such bodies²⁴;
- 805 (15) for appeals to the High Court against decisions made by the Authority under the rules: (a) to suspend or revoke the recognition of any body; (b) not to approve, as suitable to be the manager of recognised body, an individual who is not legally qualified (or to withdraw such approval)²⁵.

If rules provide for the recognition of legal services bodies which have one or more managers who are not legally qualified, the rules must make provision:

- 806 (i) for the recognition of such bodies to be suspended or revoked, on such grounds and in such circumstances as may be prescribed by the rules²⁶;
- 807 (ii) as to the criteria and procedure for the Authority's approving, as suitable to be a manager of a recognised body, an individual who is not legally qualified (and for the Authority's withdrawing such approval)²⁷.

1 The Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9 is amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 19 paras 80, 81, Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to the Solicitors Act 1974 s 9 prior to amendment by the Legal Services Act 2007 see PARA 688.

2 The Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9 (as prospectively amended) refers to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society elected in accordance with provisions of the Charter and the Solicitors Act 1974 (see s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4) (definition applied by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(8))). 'Relevant legal services' means solicitor services and, where authorised persons other than solicitors or registered European lawyers are managers or employees of, or have an interest in, a recognised body, services of the kind provided by individuals practising as such authorised persons (whether or not those services involve the carrying on of reserved legal activities): Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(1B) (as so prospectively added). As to conditions applied on the granting of recognition see PARA 693. As to the meaning of 'authorised person' see PARA 515 note 3. A certificate signed by an officer of the Authority and stating that any body is or is not, or was or was not at any time, a recognised body is evidence of the facts stated in the certificate, unless the contrary is proved; and a certificate purporting to be so signed is taken to have been so signed unless the contrary is proved: s 9(5) (as so prospectively amended). Subject to the provisions of Sch 2, the Lord Chancellor may by order made by statutory instrument subject to annulment in pursuance of a resolution of either House of Parliament provide for any enactment or instrument passed or made before or in the same session as the Legal Services Act 2007 was passed and having effect in relation to solicitors to have effect in relation to recognised bodies with such additions, omissions or other modifications as appear to the Lord Chancellor to be necessary or expedient: see the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9(7) (amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 81(9)). As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The Solicitors Regulation Authority² may give a notice³ if it is satisfied that it is necessary to do so for the purpose of investigating whether a recognised body continues to be suitable to be recognised⁴ or a manager of a recognised body⁵ who is not legally qualified⁶ continues to be suitable to be a manager of a recognised body⁷. 713. Powers of the Solicitors Regulation Authority with respect to recognised bodies.

As from a day to be appointed the following provisions have effect¹. The following apply where the Solicitors Regulation Authority² is satisfied that a recognised body, or a manager³ or employee of a recognised body, has failed to comply with a requirement imposed by or by virtue of the Administration of Justice Act 1985 or any rules⁴ applicable to that person⁵.

The Authority may do one or both of the following:

- 853 (1) give the person a written rebuke⁶;
- 854 (2) direct the person to pay a penalty not exceeding £2,000⁷.

The Authority must make rules⁸ prescribing the circumstances in which the Authority may decide to take action under heads (1) and (2) and about the practice and procedure to be followed by the Authority in relation to such action⁹.

Before making such rules the Authority must consult the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal¹⁰.

1 The Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 14B is added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 103 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

6 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 14B(2)(a) (as prospectively added: see note 1). The Authority may publish details of any action it has taken under Sch 2 para 14B(2)(a) or (b), if it considers it to be in the public interest to do so: Sch 2 para 14B(3) (as so prospectively added). The Authority may not publish under Sch 2 para 14B(3) details of any action under Sch 2 para 14B(2)(a) or (b) during the period within which an appeal against the decision to take the action, in the case of action under Sch 2 para 14B(2)(b), the amount of the penalty or the decision to publish the details, may be made under Sch 2 para 14C or, if such an appeal has been made, until such time as it is determined or withdrawn: Sch 2 para 14B(6) (as so prospectively added).

15 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18(2)(a).

16 Until a day to be appointed the penalty is expressed to be £3,000 (see the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18(2)(b)), and the Solicitors Act 1974 s 47(4), (5) (see PARA 909) applies to this sum: see the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18(4). As from a day to be appointed Sch 2 para 18(2)(b) is amended and Sch 2 para 18(3) is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 106(e), Sch 23. In exercise of the power so conferred, the Lord Chancellor made the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal (Increase in Penalty) Order 1990, SI 1990/1011, superseded, in so far as it affects the Solicitors Act 1974 s 47, by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 92(2). At the date at which this volume states the law, no further order increasing the amount of the penalty has been made. It is, however, apprehended that the effect of these changes is to increase the penalty under the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18(2)(b) to £5,000. Where the Tribunal is satisfied that more than one allegation is proved, it may impose a separate penalty with respect to each allegation: Sch 2 para 18(2A) (added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 125(3), Sch 18 para 57).

1 The Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18A is added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 107 as from day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

However in practice the body responsible for regulating solicitors is the Solicitors Regulation Authority.

13 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18A(2)(b).

14 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18A(2)(c). The matters referred to in the text are:

107 (1) that as from the specified date no solicitor or employee of a solicitor is to employ or remunerate, in connection with the practice carried on by that solicitor, the person with respect to whom the order is made and no recognised body, or manager or employee of such a body, is to employ or remunerate that person, in connection with the business of the recognised body, except in accordance with the permission of the Authority (Sch 2 para 18A(3)(a));

108 (2) that as from the specified date no recognised body or manager or employee of such a body is to, except in accordance with the permission of the Authority, permit the person with respect to whom the order is made to be a manager of the body (Sch 2 para 18A(3)(b));

For this purpose a person has an interest in a body if the person has an interest in the body within the meaning of the Legal Services Act 2007 Pt 5 (see ss 72, 109; and PARA 1477 note 3): Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18A(4).

The provisions of the Solicitors Act 1974 s 44(1)-(1C), (3), (4) apply in relation to an order under head (3) as they apply in relation to s 43(2), except that references to provision within s 43(2)(a), (b) or (c) are to be read as references to provision within the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18A(3)(a), (b) or (c): Sch 2 para 18A(5). 15 For this purpose 'appropriate regulator' in relation to the relevant person means:

110 (1) if the person is an authorised person in relation to a reserved legal activity for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007, any relevant approved regulator (within the meaning of that Act (see PARA 358)) in relation to that person; and 111 (2) if the person carries on activities which are not reserved legal activities, any body which regulates the carrying on of such activities by the person (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 18A(7)).

718. Intervention by the Solicitors Regulation Authority.

The powers exercisable on intervention by the Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ in relation to a solicitor and his practice² are also exercisable in relation to a recognised body³ and its business⁴ where:

- 881 (1) the Authority is satisfied that a recognised body has failed to comply with any rules applicable⁵ to it⁶; or
 - 882 (2) a person has been appointed receiver or manager of property of a recognised body⁷; or
 - 883 (3) the Authority has reason to suspect dishonesty on the part of any officer or employee of a recognised body in connection with that body's business or in connection with any trust of which that body is or formerly was a trustee⁸; or
 - 884 (4) a complaint is made to the Authority that there has been undue delay on the part of a recognised body in connection with any matter in which it was instructed on behalf of a client or with any controlled trust⁹, the Authority by notice in writing invites the body to give an explanation within such period¹⁰ following the giving of the notice as may be specified in it¹¹ and the body fails within that period to give an explanation which the Authority regards as satisfactory¹²; or
 - 885 (5) the recognition¹³ of a body corporate has been revoked by an order of the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal¹⁴ or has expired and no further recognition of that body has been granted¹⁵; or
 - 886 (6) until a day to be appointed¹⁶ a winding-up order has been made with respect to a recognised body, or a resolution for voluntary winding up has been passed with respect to it (other than a resolution passed solely for the purposes of its reconstruction or amalgamation with another corporate body) or a recognised body has entered administration¹⁷; or
 - 887 (7) as from a day to be appointed¹⁸ the Authority is satisfied that it is necessary to exercise certain powers¹⁹ in relation to a recognised body to protect:
- 522
- 41. (a) the interests of clients (or former or potential clients) of the recognised body²⁰;
 - 42. (b) the interests of the beneficiaries of any trust of which the recognised body is or was a trustee²¹; and
 - 43. (c) the interests of the beneficiaries of any trust of which a person who is or was a manager or employee of the recognised body is or was a trustee in that person's capacity as such a manager or employee²².
- 523

Where the powers of intervention are exercisable in relation to a recognised body in accordance with the above heads, they continue to be so exercisable after that body's recognition has been revoked or has otherwise ceased to be in force²³.

¹ The Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32 refers to the 'Council' (ie the Council of the Law Society) and is prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 119(1), (2) to refer to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society elected in accordance with provisions of the Charter and the Solicitors Act 1974

(see s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4)) (definition applied by virtue of the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 1(5)). However in practice the body responsible for the regulation of solicitors is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619).

2 le the powers conferred by the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 Pt II (paras 5-16) (see PARA 891 et seq). In connection with the application of Sch 1 Pt II for the purposes of the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 any reference:

112 (1) to the solicitor or to his practice is to be construed as including a reference to the corporate body in relation to which the powers conferred by the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 Pt II are exercisable by virtue of the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32, 33 or 34(1) (see the text and notes 3-15) or to its business (or former business) as a recognised body (Sch 2 para 35(a));

113 (2) to the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 para 1 (see PARA 890) is to be construed as including a reference to the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32 or 34(1) (Sch 2 para 35(b)); and

114 (3) to the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 para 3 (see PARA 890) is to be construed as including a reference to the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 33 (Sch 2 para 35(c)).

As from a day to be appointed the word 'corporate' in head (1) is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 122(b), Sch 23 and the following also apply in connection with the application of the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 Pt II for the purposes of the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2:

115 (a) the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 para 6(2)(a) (see PARA 892) is to be construed as including a reference to sums of money held by or on behalf of the recognised body in connection with any trust of which a person who is or was a manager of the recognised body is or was a trustee in his capacity as such a manager (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 35(d) (Sch 2 para 35(d)-(g) added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 122));

116 (b) the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 para 9 (see PARA 891) is to be construed:

16. (i) as if Sch 1 para 9(1) included a reference to documents in the possession or under the control of the recognised body in connection with any trust of which a person who is or was a manager or employee of the recognised body is or was a trustee in his capacity as such a manager or employee; and
16

17. (ii) as applying to such a manager or employee and documents and property in his possession or under his control in connection with such a trust as it applies to a solicitor and documents and property in the possession or under the control of the solicitor (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 35(e) (as so prospectively added));
17

117 (c) the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 para 11(1) is to be construed as including a power for the Authority to apply to the High Court for an order for the appointment of a new trustee to a trust in substitution for a person who is a trustee, in his capacity as a manager or employee of the recognised body (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 35(f) (as so prospectively added)); and

118 (d) the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 para 13A (see PARA 894) is to be read as if the references to a former partner were references in the case of a recognised body which is a partnership, to a former partner in the partnership and, in any other case, to a manager or former manager of the recognised body (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 35(g) (as so prospectively added)).

3 As to the meaning of 'recognised body' see PARA 687 note 3. As from a day to be appointed the provisions also apply to a manager of such a body: see the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1)(a) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 119). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

4 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1).

5 le by virtue of the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9 (see PARA 688).

6 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1)(a). However, until a day to be appointed, the powers of intervention are only exercisable by virtue of Sch 2 para 32(1)(a) if the authority has given the recognised body notice in writing that the Authority is satisfied that the body has failed to comply with the rules specified in the notice and also (at the same or any later time) notice that those powers are accordingly exercisable in its case by virtue of Sch 2 para 32(1)(a): Sch 2 para 32(2) (prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 116(7), Sch 23).

7 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1)(b).

8 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1)(d). As from a day to be appointed Sch 2 para 32(1)(d) is amended the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 119(4) so that it also applies to managers and accordingly the word 'manager' is substituted for the word 'officer' and the words 'that body's business, any trust of which that body is or was a trustee, any trust of which the manager or employee is or was a trustee in his capacity as such a manager or employee or the business of another body in which the manager or employee is or was a manager or employee or the practice (or former practice) of the manager or employee' are substituted for the words 'that body's business or in connection with any trust of which that body is or formerly was a trustee'. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

9 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 33(a). As to the meaning of 'client' see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 87(1); and PARA 835 note 6 (definition applied by the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 1(5)). 'Controlled trust', in relation to a recognised body, means a trust of which it is sole trustee or co-trustee only with one or more of its officers or employees: Sch 2 para 1(4). As to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 708 note 9. As from a day to be appointed Sch 2 para 33(a) is substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 120(a) and reads as follows: 'the Authority is satisfied that there has been undue delay on the part of a recognised body in connection with any matter in which it is or was acting on behalf of a client or with any trust of which it is or was a trustee, or on the part of a person who is or was a manager or employee of a recognised body in connection with any trust of which the manager or employee is or was a trustee in his capacity as such a manager or employee'.

10 That period must not be less than eight days: Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 33(b).

11 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 33(b).

12 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1)(c). The Authority must give notice of the failure to the body and (at the same or any later time) notice that the powers conferred by the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 Pt II are accordingly exercisable in its case by virtue of the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 33: Sch 2 para 33(d).

13 Ie under the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9 (see PARA 688).

14 Ie an order under the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2. As from a day to be appointed the revocation must be in accordance with rules under s 9: see the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 34(1)(a) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 121(b)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

15 Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 34(1). In such a case the powers conferred by the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 Pt II are exercisable in relation to the body corporate and its former business as a recognised body as they are exercisable in relation to a solicitor and his practice: Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 34(1). As from a day to be appointed the word 'corporate' is repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 121(a), Sch 23. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

16 As from a day to be appointed the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1)(c) is substituted by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 119(3) and head (6) will instead read 'a relevant insolvency event occurs in relation to a recognised body'. For this purpose a relevant insolvency event occurs in relation to a recognised body if:

- 119 (1) a resolution for a voluntary winding-up of the body is passed without a declaration of solvency under the Insolvency Act 1986 s 89 (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 941) (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1A)(a) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 119(6)));
- 120 (2) the body enters administration within the meaning of the Insolvency Act 1986 Sch B1 para 1(2)(b) (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 212) (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1A)(b) (as so prospectively added));
- 121 (3) an administrative receiver within the meaning of the Insolvency Act 1986 s 251 (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(3) (2004 Reissue) PARA 8) is appointed (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1A)(c) (as so prospectively added));

122 (4) a meeting of creditors is held in relation to the body under the Insolvency Act 1985 s 95 (see COMPANY AND PARTNERSHIP INSOLVENCY vol 7(4) (2004 Reissue) PARA 942) (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1A)(d) (as so prospectively added));

123 (5) an order for the winding up of the body is made (Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 32(1A)(e) (as so prospectively added)).

At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

719. Privilege from disclosure.

Any enactment or instrument making special provision in relation to a solicitor or other legal representative as to the disclosure of information, or as to the production, seizure or removal of documents, with respect to which a claim to professional privilege could be maintained, has effect in relation to a recognised body¹ as it has effect in relation to a solicitor, with any necessary modifications².

Until a day to be appointed³ any communication made to or by a recognised body in the course of its acting as such for a client⁴ is in any legal proceedings privileged from disclosure in like manner as if the body had at all material times been a solicitor acting for the client⁵.

As from a day to be appointed⁶ where a recognised body acts as such for a client, any communication, document, material or information is privileged from disclosure in like manner as if the recognised body had at all material times been a solicitor acting for the client⁷.

1 As to the meaning of 'recognised body' see PARA 687 note 3. As from a day to be appointed the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 36 does not apply to a recognised body which holds a licence under the Legal Services Act 2007 Pt 5 (see PARA 1476 et seq): Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 36(4) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 123(c)). However, during the relevant period, the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 36(4) applies to a body which is recognised under the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9 and has one or more managers who are not legally qualified (within the meaning of s 9A (see PARA 690 note 11)) as if the body were a licensed body: Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 22 para 17(1), (4), (6). This applies whether or not the legal professional privilege provisions have been brought into force for other purposes: Sch 22 para 17(2). The relevant period is the period which begins when the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9A comes into force and ends when Sch 5 para 7 ceases to apply in relation to the body: Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 22 para 17(3). At the date at which this volume states the law no such days had been appointed.

The relevant provisions of the Code apply to a solicitor or registered European lawyer⁴, or a registered foreign lawyer⁵ in a multi-national partnership⁶ or a director of a recognised body which is a company or a member of a recognised body which is a limited liability partnership⁷, regardless of whether the separate business is in England and Wales or outside the jurisdiction⁸.

720-723 Separate businesses

Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 21 amended, and definition of 'multi-national partnership' in r 24.01 repealed, on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(3) BUSINESS ARRANGEMENTS/(vii) Multi-national Partnerships/724. In general.

(vii) Multi-national Partnerships

724. In general.

Solicitors can enter into partnership with registered foreign lawyers¹ to carry on practice in England and Wales². Such partnerships are known as 'multi-national partnerships'³ and are regulated by the Solicitors Regulation Authority⁴.

A foreign lawyer who wishes to be registered must apply to the Authority to go on the register⁵. Registered foreign lawyers are required to make special contribution to the Solicitors' Compensation Fund⁶. They are also subject to the disciplinary procedures of the Authority⁷.

The Lord Chancellor may by order provide that any specified enactment or instrument passed or made before 30 October 2007⁸ having effect in relation to solicitors is to have effect with respect to registered foreign lawyers as it has effect with respect to solicitors⁹ or he may provide that any such enactment or instrument is to have effect subject to such additions, omissions or modifications as he sees fit to specify¹⁰. The Lord Chancellor may also by order provide that any such specified enactment or instrument is to have effect, in its application in relation to recognised bodies whose officers¹¹ include one or more registered foreign lawyers, with such additions, omissions or modifications as he sees fit to specify¹².

1 As to the meaning of 'registered foreign lawyer' see PARA 628 note 2.

2 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89, Sch 14; the Solicitors Code of Conduct 2007 r 12.03.

3 'Multi-national partnership' means a partnership whose members consist of one or more registered foreign lawyers and one or more solicitors: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(9).

4 The powers to make rules under the Solicitors Act 1974 s 31 (professional practice, conduct and discipline) (see PARA 828); s 32 (accounts) (see PARAS 622, 835); s 34 (accountant's reports) (see PARA 847 et seq); s 36 (compensation fund) (see PARA 862 et seq); s 37 (professional indemnity) (see PARA 853); and the Administration of Justice Act 1985 s 9 (recognised bodies) (see PARA 687 et seq) are also exercisable in relation to foreign lawyers: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(3). As from a day to be appointed s 89(3) is amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 125(a) and also applies to the Solicitors Act 1974 s 36A (prospectively added) (see PARAS 862, 864-865). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

Subject to exceptions, any such power under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(3) may be exercised so as to:

124 (1) make different provision with respect to solicitors who enter into multi-national partnerships to the provision made with respect to other solicitors (s 89(4)(a));

125 (2) make different provision with respect to the management and control of recognised bodies by solicitors and registered foreign lawyers to the provision made with respect to the management and control of recognised bodies by solicitors (s 89(4)(b));

126 (3) make different provision with respect to registered foreign lawyers who are members of multi-national partnerships to the provision made with respect to solicitors (s 89(4)(c)); or

127 (4) make different provision with respect to officers of recognised bodies who are registered foreign lawyers to the provision made with respect to officers of recognised bodies who are solicitors (s 89(4)(d)).

As from a day to be appointed s 89(4) is amended and heads (1)-(4) above no longer apply. Instead, subject to exceptions, any such power may be exercised to make different provision with respect to registered foreign lawyers to the provision made with respect to solicitors: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(4) (as prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 124, 125(b)). The Solicitors Act 1974 s 85 applies to a person who is a registered foreign lawyer practising as a member of a multi-national partnership: see the Registered Foreign Lawyers Order 1991, SI 1991/2831. As from a day to be appointed rules and regulations made under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89 or Sch 14 which are not regulatory arrangements are to be treated as such arrangements for the purposes of the Legal Services Act 2007: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(8A) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 125(i)). As to the meaning of 'regulatory arrangements' see the Legal Services Act 2007; and PARA 377. At the date at which this volume states the law no such days had been appointed.

5 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(1), (2); and PARA 628.

6 See the Solicitors' Compensation Fund (Foreign Lawyers' Contributions) Rules 1991.

9 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(5) (amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 124). The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(5) is subject to the provisions of Sch 14 (see PARA 848 et seq): s 89(5). The provisions of s 89(5)-(7) apply in relation to the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 7 as if they were contained in an Act passed before 14 October 1991 (ie the date on which the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 was passed): Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 7 para 15.

10 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(6).

11 As from a day to be appointed the word 'managers' is substituted for the word 'officers' by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 125(h). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

12 See the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(7). Section 89(7) is subject to the provisions of Sch 14: s 89(7).

must be made to the Tribunal⁷.

Any person who alleges that a registered foreign lawyer has failed to comply with any rule of professional conduct⁸ may make a complaint to the Tribunal⁹.

On the hearing of any application or complaint with respect to a foreign lawyer, the Tribunal has power to make such order as it thinks fit, and any such order may in particular include provision for any of the following matters¹⁰:

NOTES 9, 13--Day appointed is 31 March 2009: SI 2009/503.

TEXT AND NOTE 19--Day appointed is 1 July 2009: SI 2009/1625.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(3) BUSINESS ARRANGEMENTS/(vii) Multi-national Partnerships/726. Intervention by the Solicitors Regulation Authority.

726. Intervention by the Solicitors Regulation Authority.

The powers exercisable on intervention by the Solicitors Regulation Authority in relation to a solicitor and his practice¹ are also exercisable in relation to a person who is or has been a registered foreign lawyer² and the practice or the multi-national partnership³ of which he is or was a member where:

- 922 (1) the Authority has reason to suspect dishonesty on the part of the registered foreign lawyer, or on the part of an employee of the multi-national partnership, in connection with the practice of that partnership or any trust of which the registered foreign lawyer is or was a trustee by virtue of his being a member of that partnership⁴;
- 923 (2) in the case of a registered foreign lawyer who has died, the Authority has reason to suspect dishonesty on the part of his personal representative in connection with the practice of the multi-national partnership or any trust of which the registered foreign lawyer was a trustee by virtue of his being a member of that partnership⁵;
- 924 (3) the Authority is satisfied that the registered foreign lawyer has failed to comply with accounts⁶ or indemnity⁷ rules⁸;
- 925 (4) a bankruptcy order⁹ has been made against him or he has made a composition or arrangement with his creditors¹⁰;
- 926 (5) he has been committed to prison in any civil or criminal proceedings¹¹;
- 927 (6) he lacks capacity¹² and powers under the mental health legislation¹³ have been exercised in respect of him¹⁴;
- 928 (7) his name has been struck off the register¹⁵ or his registration has been suspended or cancelled¹⁶;
- 929 (8) he has purported to act as a member of a multi-national partnership at a time when he was not registered¹⁷;
- 930 (9) the Authority is satisfied that he has failed to comply with any condition subject to which he is registered¹⁸;
- 931 (10) a complaint is made to the Authority¹⁹ that there has been undue delay on the part of a registered foreign lawyer in connection with any matter in which he, or the multi-national partnership of which he is or was a member, was instructed on behalf of a client or with any controlled trust²⁰, the Authority by notice in writing invites him to give an explanation within a period specified in the notice²¹ and he fails within that period to give an explanation which the Authority regards as satisfactory²².

Where the powers of intervention are exercisable in relation to a registered foreign lawyer in accordance with heads (1) to (10) above, they continue to be so exercisable at any time when his registration is suspended, after his name has been struck off the register or his registration has been cancelled, or after his death²³.

As from a day to be appointed the Authority's powers of intervention also apply where:

- 932 (a) the Authority has reason to suspect dishonesty on the part of the registered foreign lawyer in connection with the business of any person of whom he is or was

- an employee, or of any body of which he is or was a manager or any business which is or was carried on by him as a sole trader²⁴;
- 933 (b) the Authority is satisfied that he has abandoned his practice²⁵;
- 934 (c) the Authority is satisfied that it is necessary to exercise the intervention powers (or any of them) in relation to the registered foreign lawyer to protect the interests of clients (or former or potential clients) of the registered foreign lawyer or the multi-national partnership or the interests of the beneficiaries of any trust of which the registered foreign lawyer is or was a trustee²⁶.

1 Ie the powers conferred by the Solicitors Act 1974 s 35, Sch 1 Pt II (paras 5-16) (see PARA 890 et seq): see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89(4), (8), Sch 14 para 5(1). Subject to Sch 14 para 5(3), (4) (see heads (1)-(9) in the text), the intervention powers are exercisable as they are exercisable in relation to a solicitor and his practice: see Sch 14 para 5(2). The Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 Pt II has effect in relation to the intervention powers so exercisable subject to any express modifications made under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 89 (see PARA 724) and any modification necessary in the light of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5: Sch 14 para 5(7). For these purposes, the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 Pt II is to be read with Sch 1 para 4(2) (personal representatives: see PARA 890): Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(8). The Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 refers to the 'Council' (ie the Council of the Law Society) and is prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 130 to refer to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society). However in practice the body responsible is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619).

2 As to the meaning of 'registered foreign lawyer' see PARA 628 note 2.

3 As to the meaning of 'multi-national partnership' see PARA 724 note 3.

4 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(3)(a) (prospectively amended: see note 1). The words 'by virtue of his being a member of that partnership' are repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 131(a)(ii), Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

5 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(3)(b) (prospectively amended: see note 1). The words 'by virtue of his being a member of that partnership' are repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 131(a)(ii), Sch 23 as from a day to be appointed under s 211(2). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

8 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(3)(c) (prospectively amended: see note 1). However, until a day to be appointed, the powers of intervention are only exercisable by virtue of Sch 14 para 5(3)(c) if the Authority has given the foreign lawyer notice in writing that it is satisfied that he has failed to comply with the rules specified in the notice and that those powers are accordingly exercisable: Sch 14 para 5(4) (prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 131(g)). The notices need not be given at the same time: Sch 14 para 5(9).

16 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(3)(g).

17 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(3)(h).

18 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(3)(a)-(i) (as prospectively amended: see note 1). The condition mentioned in head (9) in the text may be to the effect that:

128 (1) he may only be a member of a partnership which is approved by the Authority; or

129 (2) he may only be an officer of a recognised body which is so approved; or

130 (3) he may only be such a member or such an officer: Sch 14 para 5(3)(i).

As from a day to be appointed the words 'a manager' are substituted for the words 'an officer' by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 131(e)(ii). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

As to the meaning of 'recognised body' see PARA 687 note 3; and as to the meaning of 'officer' see PARA 708 note 9.

19 As from a day to be appointed the words 'the Authority is satisfied' are substituted for the words 'a complaint is made to the Authority': see the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(5)(a) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 131(h)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

20 'Controlled trust' means, in relation to a registered foreign lawyer who is a member of a multi-national partnership, a trust of which he is a sole trustee or co-trustee only with one or more of the employees or other partners of that partnership and of which he is a trustee by virtue of his being a member of that partnership: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 1. However as from a day to be appointed the word 'trust' is substituted for the words 'controlled trust': see the Sch 14 para 5(5) (prospectively amended by Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 131(i)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

21 The period must not be less than eight days: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(5)(b).

22 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(5)(a)-(c), (9). The Authority must give notice of the failure to the registered foreign lawyer and notice that the intervention powers are accordingly exercisable: Sch 14 para 5(5)(d). The notices need not be given at the same time: Sch 14 para 5(9). The powers conferred by the Solicitors Act 1974 Sch 1 para 5 (see PARA 892) or Sch 1 para 10 (see PARA 893) are not, however, exercisable in such a case: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(5).

23 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(6).

24 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 14 para 5(3)(ba) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 para 131(b)).

728. Right to carry out certain legal activities.

Until a day to be appointed¹ the right to carry out certain legal activities² is governed by provisions of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990³. It is an offence to act in the purported exercise of such a right when not entitled to do so⁵.

As from a day to be appointed⁶, the right to carry out certain legal services is mainly governed by provisions of the Legal Services Act 2007⁷. It is an offence for a person to carry on an activity (the 'relevant activity') which is a reserved legal activity⁸ unless that person is entitled to carry on the relevant activity⁹ and whether a person is entitled to carry on that activity is to be determined solely in accordance with provisions of the Legal Services Act 2007¹⁰.

It is not lawful for any solicitor who is one of the justices of the peace assigned to any local justice area, or for any partner of his¹, to act in connection with any proceedings before any justice of the peace acting in that area as solicitor or agent for a solicitor of any person concerned in those proceedings². This does not apply where a solicitor is a Deputy District Judge (Magistrates' Courts)³. However where a solicitor is acting as a Deputy District Judge (Magistrates' Courts) in any local justice area it is not lawful for him, or for any partner of his, to act in connection with proceedings before any justice of the peace acting in that area as solicitor or agent for the solicitor of any person concerned in those proceedings⁴.

A person holding as a full-time appointment any of certain judicial offices may not practise as a solicitor or be indirectly concerned in any such practice⁵.

Until a day to be appointed a solicitor, while a prisoner in any prison, must not as a solicitor, in his own name or in the name of any other solicitor, issue any writ or process, or commence, prosecute or defend any action or any matter in bankruptcy⁶.

734. Right of audience in higher courts.

No solicitor or registered European lawyer is entitled to exercise any right of audience other than a right of audience of the type which solicitors had immediately before 7 December 1989 unless he holds a higher courts advocacy qualification¹ entitling him to exercise that right of audience².

The Solicitors Regulation Authority may grant one of the following qualifications to a solicitor or registered European lawyer who meets the necessary requirements:

- 953 (1) a Higher Courts (All Proceedings) Qualification which entitles the solicitor or registered European lawyer to exercise rights of audience in all proceedings in the higher courts;
- 954 (2) a Higher Courts (Civil Proceedings) Qualification which entitles the solicitor or registered European lawyer to exercise rights of audience in all civil proceedings in the higher courts including judicial review proceedings in any court arising from any civil cause;
- 955 (3) a Higher Courts (Criminal Proceedings) Qualification which entitles the solicitor or registered European lawyer to exercise rights of audience in all criminal proceedings in the higher courts and judicial review proceedings in any court arising from any criminal cause³.

Solicitors and registered European lawyers applying⁴ for one of the higher courts advocacy qualifications must demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Solicitors Regulation Authority:

- 956 (a) that they are competent to undertake advocacy in the proceedings in relation to which they have applied by satisfying the Authority that they have undertaken the necessary training, assessment and experience⁵; or
- 957 (b) that they have practised as lawyers for at least three years and have at least three years' appropriate experience of litigation in the higher courts of England and Wales⁶ and have undertaken any necessary assessment⁷; or
- 958 (c) that they have practised as lawyers for at least three years and that they have appropriate experience of the higher courts of England and Wales⁸ and are suitably experience and qualified⁹; or
- 959 (d) that they have appropriate qualifications¹⁰ and have undertaken any specified further step or steps¹¹.

Where a person has a right of audience authorised by one body and becomes a member of another body but continues to have a right of audience¹² heads (a) to (d) above do not apply¹³.

Upon application, a higher courts advocacy qualification in those proceedings in which they are seeking to exercise right of audience may be granted to former barristers¹⁴ who, unless the Solicitors Regulation Authority is satisfied that they have recent relevant advocacy experience, have undertaken such steps as the Authority may specify¹⁵.

A solicitor or registered European lawyer applying for a courts advocacy qualification who is aggrieved by the decision may ask for the decision to be reviewed and appeal to the Master of the Rolls¹⁶.

3 Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 3(1). This is subject always to the rules and principles of professional conduct applicable to solicitors and registered European lawyers: reg 3(1). Solicitors and registered European lawyers who have been granted the Higher Courts (All Proceedings) Qualification, the Higher Courts (Civil Proceedings) Qualification and the Higher Courts (Criminal Proceedings) Qualification under the Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 1992 and the Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 1998 are deemed to have been granted the equivalent qualification under the Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 3(1): reg 3(2). Any registered European lawyer who is granted any of the qualifications listed in reg 3(1) keeps that qualification upon being admitted as a solicitor: reg 11.

4 An application under these regulations must be made on the form prescribed by the Solicitors Regulation Authority for the purpose and must be accompanied by the appropriate fee fixed from time to time by the Authority: Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 12(1).

The Higher Courts (All Proceedings) Qualification may be granted to solicitors and to registered European lawyers who have successfully undertaken training and assessment in procedure, evidence and ethics applicable to the higher courts, as specified by the Solicitors Regulation Authority and successfully undertaken training and assessment in advocacy skills applicable to the higher courts, as specified by the Authority and had such experience of litigation and advocacy over a period of 12 months as the Authority specifies and which is evidenced in such a way as prescribed: reg 5(1). In the case of a solicitor, the training, assessment and up to six months of the experience set out in reg 5(1) may be undertaken before admission as a solicitor provided that it is undertaken after successful completion of the Legal Practice Course and the experience requirement is satisfied during a training contract or following admission as a solicitor and at least six months of the experience requirement takes place following admission, and the training, assessment and experience set out in reg 5(1) take place in the five years preceding the application: reg 5(2). Solicitors or registered European lawyers who have gained a higher courts advocacy qualification under regs 5-9 or who are exercising any right of audience in the higher courts by virtue of any exemption they have under reg 10 are subject to the continuing professional development requirements in the Training Regulations 1990 (see PARA 637 et seq): see the Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 13.

6 Or that they have three years' appropriate experience of litigation in a comparable jurisdiction or a jurisdiction listed in EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L77, 14.3.98, p 36), art 1 to facilitate practice of the profession of lawyer on a permanent basis in a member state other than that in which the qualification was obtained.

7 Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 4(1)(b). A higher courts advocacy qualification in those proceedings in which they are seeking to exercise rights of audience may be granted to solicitors and to registered European lawyers who have practised as lawyers for at least three years and have satisfied the Solicitors Regulatory Authority that by reason of their experience (which must be at least three years) of litigation in the higher courts of England and Wales or of a comparable jurisdiction or of a jurisdiction listed in EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L77, 14.3.98, p 36) art 1 they have acquired a sound understanding of the procedure, evidence and ethics applicable in those proceedings for which they seek to exercise rights of audience: Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 6(1)(a), (b). The solicitor or registered European lawyer must have complied with any steps or conditions specified by the Authority, including undertaking any training and must have passed the assessment in advocacy skills (within the timescale specified by the Authority, if any) applicable to those proceedings in which he is seeking rights of audience specified by the Authority: reg 6(1)(c), (d). In assessing an applicant's understanding of the procedure, evidence and ethics for the purposes of reg 6(1) regard must be had to the applicant's recent experience of litigation and advocacy, any relevant training courses undertaken and assessments passed by the applicant and any advocacy observed by the applicant: reg 6(2). Applications under reg 6 must be received by the Authority before 13 December 2008: reg 6(3).

8 Or that they have appropriate experience in a comparable jurisdiction or of a jurisdiction listed in EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L77, 14.3.98, p 36) art 1.

9 Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 4(1)(c). A higher courts advocacy qualification in those proceedings in which they are seeking to exercise rights of audience may be granted to those who have practised as lawyers for at least three years and have satisfied the Solicitors Regulation Authority that they have advocacy or judicial experience in the higher courts of England and Wales or of a comparable jurisdiction or of a jurisdiction listed in EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L77, 14.3.98, p 36) art 1 and are suitably experienced and qualified to exercise rights of audience before the higher courts in the proceedings in which the qualification for which they have applied would entitle them to appear: Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 7(1). Solicitors or registered European lawyers who fail to satisfy the Authority in accordance with reg 7(1) may have their application considered under reg 6: reg 7(2). Applications under reg 7 must be received by the Authority before 31 December 2008: reg 7(3).

10 Before being granted a higher courts advocacy qualification applicants must provide at least one reference as to the nature and extent of their litigation and advocacy experience from those whose standing as a member of the judiciary, the court service or the legal profession would enable them to offer informed opinions and attend for interview if required to do so: Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 4(2).

11 See the Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 4(1)(d). A solicitor or registered European lawyer may apply for a qualification to exercise rights of audience in all proceedings in the higher courts relying on a qualification or qualifications gained in any comparable jurisdiction or a jurisdiction listed in EC Council Directive 98/5 (OJ L77, 14.3.98, p 36) art 1: Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 8(1). Each application will be considered on its merits by the Solicitors Regulation Authority which may require the applicant to undertake such steps as it may specify in order to gain the qualification: reg 8(2).

With respect to his entitlement to exercise a right of audience before a court in proceedings of a particular description, a solicitor or registered European lawyer is exempt from the requirements of Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 2(3) if he is a person to whom, in respect of that court and that description of proceedings, the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 31C applies and by virtue of that section he has a higher courts advocacy qualification in respect of that entitlement: Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 10.

13 See the Higher Courts Qualification Regulations 2000 reg 4(3).

(ii) Duties, Privileges and Immunities

738. Freedom from arrest.

A solicitor, but not a solicitor's clerk¹, while engaged in his professional duties in going to or coming from the place of trial on behalf of a client is privileged from arrest on civil process but not on criminal process or pursuant to a punitive² committal³. This privilege is the privilege of the court, not the privilege of the litigant, and the court, if it thinks proper, may have a litigant appearing before it arrested on a committal order⁴.

739. Protection from defamation actions.

A solicitor acting as an advocate is not liable to an action for libel or slander in respect of words written or spoken by him in the course of a judicial hearing, however improper or even malicious his behaviour may have been, such words being absolutely privileged on grounds of public policy¹. The protection is not only from actions for defamation but from any action brought against a solicitor because of what was said or done at the hearing unless the action against the solicitor is brought in respect of an abuse of the process of the court². The absolute privilege from defamation actions covers everything that is done from the inception of the proceedings onwards and extends to all pleadings and other documents brought into existence for the purpose of proceedings and starting with the writ or other document which institutes the proceedings³.

Communications between solicitor and client with reference to matters upon which the client is seeking professional advice are absolutely privileged provided the conversation is fairly referable to the relationship of solicitor and client⁴. Where a communication is made by a solicitor in the course of his professional duties on his client's behalf, which, if made by the client, would have been protected by qualified privilege, a solicitor is entitled to a like protection⁵.

A letter written by a solicitor acting for a defendant, but without his client's authority and in breach of his duty to his client, to the plaintiff's solicitor admitting the defendant's negligence has been held to have been written on a privileged occasion but in the circumstances to be defamatory: Groom v Crocker [1939] 1 KB 194, [1938] 2 All ER 394, CA.

740. Duty of confidentiality.

A solicitor must keep the affairs of clients and former clients confidential except where disclosure is required or permitted by law or by the client (or former client)¹. Furthermore if a solicitor, or his firm, holds confidential information in relation to a client, or former client, he must not risk breaching confidentiality by acting, or continuing to act, for another client on a matter where that information might reasonably be expected to be material and that client has an interest adverse to the first-mentioned client or former client². However under particular circumstances a solicitor may act, or continue to act, in the circumstances otherwise so prohibited either with the informed consent of both clients³ or without such consent⁴.

A solicitor cannot be compelled to disclose communications, whether oral or written, passing directly or indirectly between him and his client, or between him and a person who is communicating with him professionally with a view to becoming his client, for the purpose of giving or receiving legal professional advice if they are legitimate communications in the sense that they are not made in furtherance of fraud or crime, and the privilege extends to information which a solicitor receives in a professional capacity from a third party and which is then conveyed to the client⁵. It is not necessary that legal proceedings should be contemplated⁶, but it is necessary that the solicitor should be consulted professionally and not merely as a friend having legal knowledge⁷. A communication made by a client to his solicitor for the purpose of being repeated to the other side is not privileged if the solicitor's authority to compromise a case is in question⁸. The effect of the privilege is that neither the client, nor the solicitor without his consent, can be compelled to disclose the communications in the course of legal proceedings⁹. The privilege is the client's, not the solicitor's, and accordingly the client may restrain the solicitor from making disclosure¹⁰ or may waive the privilege¹¹. Until the client has waived the privilege it is the solicitor's duty, if he is requested to make disclosure, to claim the privilege¹².

European Community law recognises the confidentiality of certain communications between lawyer and client; this protection is a corollary of the principles of the EC Treaty concerning freedom of establishment and freedom to provide services, and applies without distinction to any lawyer entitled to practise his profession in one of the member states¹³. The protection of written communications is subject to two conditions:

- 960 (1) that they are made for the purposes and in the interests of the client's rights of defence; and
- 961 (2) that they emanate from independent lawyers, that is to say, lawyers who are not bound to the client by a relationship of employment¹⁴.

This is in contrast to the position in English law where no distinction is made, as regards confidentiality of communications generally, between the independent legal adviser and the salaried legal adviser acting as such¹⁵.

1 Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 4.01. This duty always overrides the duty to disclose: r 4.02(a). The Board of the Solicitors Regulation does not have the power to waive any of r 4: r 4.06. Rule 4 also applies to an overseas practice: r 15.04.

If a solicitor or clerk from whom legal advice is sought is a police informer this severely curtails the right to legal professional privilege: R v Robinson [2002] EWCA Crim 2489, [2003] Crim LR 284. However it is not a breach of legal professional privilege for a person's solicitor to give evidence as to the identity of that person at his trial; nor is a file note covered by privilege as it is not a communication between solicitor and client: R (on the application of Howe) v South Durham Magistrates' Court [2004] EWHC 362 (Admin), [2005] RTR 55, DC.

TEXT AND NOTES 1-4--Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 4 amended on 31 March 2009.

741. Exceptions to the duty of confidentiality.

A solicitor is required to make specific arrangements for the detection of transactions which might involve money laundering¹. This involves implementing management systems that will enable the detection of money laundering and terrorist funding activities by imposing a duty of customer due diligence². There are penalties for the solicitor if the systems are not in place within firms³. In addition a solicitor has a legal obligation to notify the police if he has reason to suspect his client of being involved in money laundering and in those circumstances he has no right to rely on professional privilege as to the communications between himself and his client if they are made with a view to furthering any criminal purpose⁴.

There are other areas where a solicitor's duty of confidentiality may be overridden, for example:

- 962 (1) where a solicitor knows or strongly suspects that a crime is being or is about to be committed by his client; this particularly applies in the case of children and family matters⁵;
- 963 (2) where the court orders disclosure or a warrant permits a police officer or other authority to seize confidential information⁶;
- 964 (3) if the communications are a matter of public record⁷.

(iii) Eligibility for Offices and Appointments

742. In general.

Judicial and certain other appointments are reserved for persons with certain qualifications¹. A person has:

- 965 (1) a 'Supreme Court qualification' if he has a right of audience² in relation to all proceedings in the Supreme Court³;
- 966 (2) a 'High Court qualification' if he has a right of audience in relation to all proceedings in the High Court⁴;
- 967 (3) a 'general qualification' if he has a right of audience in relation to any class of proceedings in any part of the Supreme Court, or all proceedings in county courts or magistrates' courts⁵;
- 968 (4) a 'Crown Court qualification' if he has a right of audience in relation to all proceedings in the Crown Court⁶;
- 969 (5) a 'county court qualification' if he has a right of audience in relation to all proceedings in county courts⁷;
- 970 (6) a 'magistrates' court qualification' if he has a right of audience in relation to all proceedings in magistrates' courts⁸.

Any reference in any enactment, measure or statutory instrument to a person having such a qualification of a particular number of years' length⁹ is to be construed as a reference to a person who has that qualification for the time being¹⁰, and has had it for a period, which need not be continuous, of at least that number of years¹¹.

1 See eg the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 10(3)(b), (c); and COURTS vol 10 (Reissue) PARA 515. As from a day to be appointed, the Supreme Court Act 1981 is renamed the Senior Courts Act 1981: see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1. Consequently the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71(3)(a), (c) is prospectively amended by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 4(1), (3) to refer to a Senior Courts qualification and the Senior Courts instead of the Supreme Court qualification and the Supreme Court. At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. As to appointments confined to solicitors see PARA 743; and as to those which solicitors or other qualified persons may hold see PARA 744. See also the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 s 50; and COURTS.

2 For these purposes, references to a right of audience are references to a right of audience granted by an authorised body: Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71(4). As from a day to be appointed s 71(4) is amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 94(a) so that references to a right of audience are references to a right of audience exercisable by virtue of an authorisation given by a relevant approved regulator. As to the meaning of 'right of audience' generally see PARA 495 note 3. As to the meaning of 'relevant approved regulator' see the Legal Services Act 2007 s 20(3); and PARA 358 (definition applied by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71(6A) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 94(c)).

6 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71(3)(d).

7 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71(3)(e).

8 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71(3)(f).

9 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 10 makes consequential amendments to a large number of such enactments, measures and statutory instruments. For examples see PARA 744.

10 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71(5)(a).

11 Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 s 71(5)(b). Any period during which a person had a right of audience but was as a result of disciplinary proceedings prevented by the authorised body concerned from exercising it does not count towards the period mentioned in s 71(5)(b): s 71(6) (substituted by the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 6 paras 4, 9). The reference to the authorised body concerned is prospectively amended to refer to the relevant approved regulator by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 21 paras 83, 94(c).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(5) LIABILITIES OF SOLICITORS AS OFFICERS OF THE SUPREME COURT/(i) In general/745. Disciplinary jurisdiction.

(5) LIABILITIES OF SOLICITORS AS OFFICERS OF THE SUPREME COURT

(i) In general

745. Disciplinary jurisdiction.

The Supreme Court¹ possesses an inherent disciplinary² jurisdiction over solicitors³, as solicitors are officers of the court⁴. Under this jurisdiction action may be taken against a solicitor both for his own misconduct and for the actions of his trainee solicitor⁵ within the scope of his authority even where the solicitor is not personally implicated⁶. The power of the High Court or Court of Appeal to punish for contempt of court may be exercised by an order of committal⁷.

1 As from a day to be appointed the Supreme Court is renamed the Senior Courts (see the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 s 59(1), Sch 11 Pt 1; and COURTS) and accordingly in the Solicitors Act 1974 s 50 the words 'Senior Courts' are substituted for the words 'Supreme Court' by the Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 Pt 4 para 21(5). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

2 'The attachment (formerly the summary process against a solicitor, now obsolete) was something more than process; it was punitive or disciplinary, for the court was proceeding against its own officer': Re Freston (1883) 11 QBD 545 at 557, CA, per Fry LJ. The discipline to which solicitors are subject is both punitive and compensatory: R & T Thew Ltd v Reeves (No 2) [1982] QB 1283n, [1982] 3 All ER 1086, CA.

3 The High Court, the Crown Court and the Court of Appeal respectively, or any division or judge of those courts, may, subject to the provisions of the Solicitors Act 1974, exercise the same jurisdiction in respect of solicitors as any one of the superior courts of law or equity from which the Supreme Court was constituted might have exercised immediately before the passing of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act 1873 (repealed) in respect of any solicitor, attorney or proctor admitted to practise there: Solicitors Act 1974 s 50(2) (prospectively amended: see note 1). An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from any order made against a solicitor by the High Court or the Crown Court in exercise of this jurisdiction: s 50(3) (added by the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 147, Sch 7). All duly admitted solicitors are officers of the Supreme Court: Solicitors Act 1974 s 50(1) (amended by the Supreme Court Act 1981 s 152(4), Sch 7 and prospectively amended (see note 1)). For a consideration of the court's inherent jurisdiction see Brendon v Spiro [1938] 1 KB 176 at 185-192, [1937] 2 All ER 496 at 498-503, CA, per Scott LJ.

4 Thus, a solicitor may be summarily ordered to perform undertakings, with a view to securing honesty in the conduct of officers of the court (Re Hilliard, ex p Smith (1845) 2 Dow & L 919; United Mining and Finance Corp'n Ltd v Becher [1910] 2 KB 296 at 304, DC (on appeal [1911] 1 KB 840, CA): see PARA 749 et seq), or to pay costs (Brendon v Spiro [1938] 1 KB 176, [1937] 2 All ER 496: see PARAS 753, 879 et seq), or to make good loss caused by his neglect or breach of duty (Marsh v Joseph [1897] 1 Ch 213 at 245, CA, per Lord Russell of Killowen LC): see PARA 754), or to pay over money to his client (Re Grey [1892] 2 QB 440 at 447, CA, per Bowen LJ; Re A Solicitor, ex p Hales [1907] 2 KB 539 at 544, DC, per Darling J: see PARA 755 et seq), or may be suspended or have his name struck off the roll for misconduct (Re Gregg, Re Prance (1869) LR 9 Eq 137 at 141 per Lord Romilly MR: see PARA 907 et seq). Although the power to strike off the roll is preserved by the Solicitors Act 1974 ss 47(1), 50(2) (see note 3; and PARA 907), this punitive jurisdiction of the court is now rarely if ever exercised; it is for the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal (see PARA 906) to strike a solicitor off the roll, suspend him or fine him, and in all but the most exceptional cases it would be inappropriate for any judge to exercise this jurisdiction of his own motion: R & T Thew Ltd v Reeves (No 2) [1982] 3 All ER 1086 at 1088, [1982] 3 WLR 869n at 871, CA, per Lord Denning MR. The compensatory jurisdiction is, however, retained by the courts themselves: R & T Thew Ltd v Reeves (No 2) per Lord Denning MR. See also Udall v Capri Lighting Ltd [1988] QB 907, [1987] 3 All ER 262, CA (undertaking to other side's solicitor to procure security from own clients for money due).

5 The cases refer to a 'solicitors' clerk' or 'articled clerk' but the term 'articled clerk' has now been replaced by the term 'trainee solicitor'.

6 Myers v Elman [1940] AC 282, [1939] 4 All ER 484, HL. See also R & T Thew Ltd v Reeves (No 2) [1982] QB 1283n, [1982] 3 All ER 1086, CA.

746. General conduct.

A solicitor must never deceive, or knowingly or recklessly mislead, the court¹ and must draw to the court's attention relevant cases and statutory provisions, the contents of any document that has been filed in the proceedings where failure to draw it to the court's attention might result in the court being misled and any procedural irregularity². A solicitor must not construct facts supporting his client's case or draft any documents relating to any proceedings containing any contention which the solicitor does not consider to be properly arguable or any allegation of fraud unless instructed to do so and the solicitor has material which he reasonably believes establishes a case of fraud³. A solicitor must comply with any court order requiring him or his firm to take or refrain from taking a particular course of action and must not become in contempt of court⁴.

A solicitor must not refuse to act as an advocate for any person on any of the following grounds:

- 991 (1) that the nature of the case is objectionable to the solicitor or any section of the public;
- 992 (2) that the conduct, opinions or beliefs of the prospective client are unacceptable to the solicitor or any section of the public; or
- 993 (3) that the source of any financial support which may properly be given to the prospective client for the proceedings is unacceptable to the solicitor⁵.

A solicitor is not required to act as an advocate under a conditional fee agreement or if he reasonably considers that he is not being offered a proper fee having regard to the circumstances of the case, the nature of the solicitor's practice or his experience and standing⁶.

If a solicitor is appearing as an advocate he must not:

- 994 (a) say anything which is merely scandalous or intended only to insult a witness or any other person;
- 995 (b) avoid naming in open court any third party whose character would thereby be called into question, unless it is necessary for the proper conduct of the case;
- 996 (c) call into question the character of a witness the solicitor has cross-examined unless the witness has had the opportunity to answer the allegations during cross-examination; and
- 997 (d) suggest that any person is guilty of a crime, fraud or misconduct unless such allegations go to a matter which is material to his client's case and appear to the solicitor to be supported by reasonable grounds⁷.

A solicitor must not appear as an advocate at a trial or act in the litigation if it is clear he or anyone within his firm will be called as a witness⁸.

A solicitor must not make, or offer to make, payments to a witness dependent upon the nature of the evidence given or upon the outcome of the case⁹.

747. Criminal contempt.

A solicitor is guilty of a contempt of a criminal nature¹ where he is guilty of conduct, whether in or out of court², amounting to a contemptuous interference with the administration of justice³; for instance, where he insolently defies the judge in open court⁴ or uses improper language to the judge⁵ or to the solicitor of the opposite party⁶; where he writes to the press with reference to the merits of a pending case in which he is professionally interested⁷; where he prepares a special case for the opinion of the court based upon a fictitious statement of facts⁸; where he seeks to recover gaming debts by disguising the nature of the claim⁹; or where he destroys documents on which a charge of misconduct against him has been founded pending presentation of the report on the charge¹⁰. However, the writing of a letter as solicitor for a landlord to a tenant threatening to determine the tenancy if the tenant did not abandon an action against a third person has been held not to be a contempt of court¹¹. Until a day to be appointed a solicitor who acts in legal proceedings on behalf of a client in his own name or in the name of another solicitor whilst he himself is in prison, and a solicitor who permits a solicitor in prison to use his name for the purpose, are guilty of contempt¹².

NOTE 1--Supreme Court Act 1981 now cited as Senior Courts Act 1981: Constitutional Reform Act 2005 Sch 11 para 1 (in force 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(5) LIABILITIES OF SOLICITORS AS OFFICERS OF THE SUPREME COURT/(i) In general/748. Civil contempt.

748. Civil contempt.

A solicitor is liable to punishment for civil contempt¹, for instance where he fails to perform an undertaking given by him in his capacity as an officer of the court². In many cases the act done by the solicitor which calls for the court's intervention is not in itself a contempt; the court in the first instance makes an order against the solicitor, and it is his disobedience to the order which constitutes the actual contempt³. In particular, where the court has ordered a solicitor to pay costs for misconduct as such, or to pay a sum of money in his capacity as an officer of the court, the solicitor, on making default, is liable to committal and imprisonment for a period not exceeding one year⁴, although the court has a discretion to refuse the committal⁵. In these cases the contempt consists in the breach of duty by the solicitor as an officer of the court, as distinct from his legal liability to pay, and a common law judgment for the recovery of the amount due is no bar to a subsequent proceeding for payment under the disciplinary jurisdiction⁶. The court, however, will not intervene summarily where the solicitor acted in his private capacity⁷, for example as a trustee⁸ or arbitrator⁹, or even where he merely acted in the ordinary course of business as a solicitor¹⁰; the act must have been done by him as an officer of the court¹¹.

SOLICITORS/(5) LIABILITIES OF SOLICITORS AS OFFICERS OF THE SUPREME COURT/(ii) Liability on Undertakings given as a Solicitor/749. Enforcement of undertakings.

(ii) Liability on Undertakings given as a Solicitor

749. Enforcement of undertakings.

A solicitor must fulfil an undertaking¹ which is given in circumstances where he has given the undertaking in the course of practice, or outside the course of practice but as a solicitor, or where he is a principal in a firm, and any person within the firm gives the undertaking in the course of practice, or the solicitor is a registered European lawyer² based at an office in England and Wales and the undertaking is given by him within the UK³.

Where a solicitor who is acting professionally for a client gives his personal undertaking in that character to the client⁴ or to a third person⁵, or gives an undertaking to the court in the course of proceedings⁶, that undertaking may be enforced summarily⁷ upon application to the court⁸. Before this remedy can be pursued it must be shown that the undertaking was given by the solicitor personally⁹, and not merely as agent on behalf of his client¹⁰. The undertaking must also be given by the solicitor, not as an individual¹¹, but in his professional capacity as a solicitor¹².

The jurisdiction is based upon the court's right to require its officers to observe a high standard of conduct; it is immaterial that no misconduct on the part of the solicitor is suggested¹³. The solicitor cannot, therefore, defend himself on the ground that his undertaking is not enforceable as a contract against him¹⁴, or on the ground that the application has been delayed¹⁵. An undertaking given under a mistaken belief of having authority to fulfil it will not be set aside¹⁶; nor can the solicitor withdraw from his undertaking save by consent¹⁷; but an undertaking given by mistake in too wide terms will not be enforced in so far as it was mistakenly given¹⁸.

The undertaking must be clear in its terms¹⁹. The whole of the agreement to which it relates must be before the court²⁰, and the undertaking must be one which is not impossible ab initio for the solicitor to perform²¹. Nevertheless, an undertaking will be enforced against the solicitor even though, after it is given, the client dies²² or instructs the solicitor not to perform it²³, or changes his solicitor²⁴. If performance of the undertaking has been waived the undertaking will not be enforced afterwards²⁵. Similarly, if the undertaking is conditional, the condition must be fulfilled before the undertaking will be enforced²⁶.

A principal in a firm must not exclude or attempt to exclude by contract all liability to his clients²⁷.

1 As to the meaning of 'undertaking' within the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 see PARA 871 note 5.

2 As to the meaning of 'registered European lawyer' see PARA 542 note 2.

3 Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 10.05(1). The undertaking must be fulfilled within a reasonable time: see r 10.05(2). If the undertaking is dependent upon the happening of a future event and that event will not occur the solicitor must notify the recipient immediately: see r 10.05(3). An undertaking to pay another's costs will be discharged if the matter does not proceed unless expressly agreed otherwise: see r 10.05(4).

4 It may not be often that requisite circumstances arise since the undertaking would usually be given as an individual, but in principle the statement is correct: see Re A Solicitor, ex p Hales [1907] 2 KB 539 at 544-545 (not affected on this point by United Mining and Finance Corpn Ltd v Becher [1910] 2 KB 296, DC).

5 Eg Re Gee (1845) 2 Dow & L 997; Re A Solicitor [1966] 3 All ER 52, [1966] 1 WLR 1604 (undertaking to a bank).

6 In these circumstances it is regarded on the same footing as an injunction to the like effect and may be enforced by committal (D v A & Co [1900] 1 Ch 484), but usually an undertaking given by counsel in court is that of his clients and is not the undertaking of his solicitors (see eg Re Williams (1850) 12 Beav 510).

7 In a county court, by an application for committal (see CPR Sch 2 CCR Ord 29 r 2; the County Courts Act 1984 s 142); in the Supreme Court, by motion (Re FC [1888] WN 77 (Chancery Division)) or summons (United Mining and Finance Corpn Ltd v Becher [1910] 2 KB 296, DC); or by motion to the Court of Appeal if given to that court (Jonesco v Evening Standard Co Ltd [1932] 2 KB 340 at 342, CA). See, however, Pott v Stuteley [1935] WN 140, where it was held that the court of first instance could entertain a motion for committal for disobeying an injunction made by the Court of Appeal. The remedy in the High Court is by committal: see CONTEMPT OF COURT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 483. The practice has always been for the court first to make a mandatory order on the solicitor to perform his undertaking: Re A Solicitor [1966] 3 All ER 52, [1966] 1 WLR 1604. Where the undertaking is not given in the course of legal proceedings, the application to enforce it is by originating summons to a single judge: Re A Solicitor (1969) 113 Sol Jo 549, DC.

8 See CONTEMPT OF COURT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 482. As to an oral guarantee by a solicitor see FINANCIAL SERVICES AND INSTITUTIONS vol 49 (2008) PARA 1053. The court cannot compel a solicitor to give a personal undertaking: Chilton v Blair & Co Ltd (1914) 8 BWCC 1; but see Sturla v Freccia (1880) 28 WR 360 at 362, CA, and cf A-G v Emerson (1889) 24 QBD 56, CA. As to whether there is jurisdiction to relieve a solicitor of an undertaking given to another solicitor see Hughes v Hughes [1958] P 224 at 229, [1958] 3 All ER 179 at 181, CA; and PARA 1003. The summary procedure is inappropriate where the issues are difficult and require detailed investigation: Silver and Drake v Baines [1971] 1 QB 396, [1971] 1 All ER 473, CA. The jurisdiction may still be exercised, however, where a clear case is established against the solicitor: John Fox (a firm) v Bannister, King & Rigbeys (a firm) [1988] QB 925n, [1987] 1 All ER 737, CA; Hastingwood Property Ltd v Saunders Bearman Anselm (a firm) [1991] Ch 114, [1990] 3 All ER 107. See also Bentley v Gaisford [1997] QB 627, [1997] 1 All ER 842, CA (restraint not available as a remedy and inappropriate to order compensation because conduct resulting in breach of undertaking was not inexcusable and as such likely to merit reproof).

750. Undertakings in litigation.

Undertakings¹ may be given by a solicitor in connection with legal proceedings which he is conducting on behalf of a client². If when the undertaking was given the solicitor was duly authorised by his client, the subsequent attempted withdrawal of authority by the client does not excuse the solicitor³. If, on the other hand, the solicitor had no authority from his client to give the undertaking, and the client refuses to authorise him to acknowledge service he is liable to an action for damages for breach of warranty of authority⁴. Again, the solicitor may, in the course of the proceedings, give his personal undertaking not to interfere with a witness⁵, or may undertake to stamp a document⁶. Where an action is compromised or settled he may bind himself personally to carry out the terms of the compromise⁷. Thus, he may undertake that his client will consent to a reference⁸, or that the debt⁹, including the costs¹⁰, will be paid. After judgment he may undertake not to issue execution in consideration of payment of the judgment debt being accelerated¹¹.

Where an order is made for a stay of execution pending appeal, and the applicant pays the taxed costs of the successful party to his solicitor on the solicitor's personal undertaking to repay them should the appeal be successful, the undertaking given by the solicitor may be enforced in a summary manner¹², as in the absence of this undertaking the court might have stayed execution or directed the money to be paid into court to abide the event of the appeal¹³. However, where the solicitor, although asked to give an undertaking to repay costs in the event of the decision being reversed, refuses, and the costs in the court below are duly paid, the court has no power, if the decision is reversed on appeal, to order the solicitor to repay the costs to the successful appellant. The remedy in these circumstances is against the respondent client and not against the solicitor¹⁴.

1 As to the meaning of 'undertaking' within the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 see PARA 871 note 5.

2 If the undertaking is in connection with a court order, it is immaterial that the undertaking is not embodied in the order: Williams v Williams and Partridge (1910) 54 Sol Jo 506, CA.

After authorising his solicitor to acknowledge service, the client cannot withdraw his authority after the undertaking has been given: cf Re Kerly, Son and Verden at 472 per Farwell J. However, a solicitor who accepts service without undertaking to acknowledge service is not liable to committal: cf The Anna and Bertha (1891) 64 LT 332.

751. Undertakings in other matters.

An undertaking¹ given by a solicitor need not be confined to matters arising in the course of legal proceedings². Thus, a solicitor may give his personal undertaking to pay rent³, or a proportion of counsel's fees⁴, or any other debt⁵ due from his client, and, when acting on behalf of a mortgagor, may bind himself personally to the mortgagee's solicitor to pay his costs⁶.

752. Right to indemnity.

A solicitor may recover any loss which he suffers in performing an undertaking given on his client's authority in an action against his client¹.

(iii) Liability to Pay Costs

753. In general.

A solicitor may be ordered to pay costs as an officer of the court or under particular rules of court¹. A solicitor's liability for costs is discussed elsewhere in this title².

² See PARA 879 et seq.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(5) LIABILITIES OF SOLICITORS AS OFFICERS OF THE SUPREME COURT/(iv) Liability to Answer for Loss/754. Extent of liability to answer for loss.

(iv) Liability to Answer for Loss

754. Extent of liability to answer for loss.

The solicitor's liability as an officer of the court in respect of a failure to fulfil his duties in relation to a matter which is before the court¹ is not confined to costs thrown away, but extends to such loss as is the natural and probable consequence of his conduct². Thus, where a fund in court is paid out to the wrong person, the solicitor who acted on behalf of the recipient is liable to replace the fund if he knew or ought to have known the true state of facts³; although if he merely ratifies the use of his name by the solicitor who acted in the transaction, he is only liable for such part of the fund as he actually received for costs⁴. Similarly, a solicitor who assumes the position of receiver without authority is liable for all money, such as rents, lost to the estate through his neglect⁵; and a solicitor who, as representing the party having the conduct of a sale under an order of the court, is responsible for procuring the investment of the purchase money when paid into court, is liable to make good to the person entitled the loss of interest occasioned by his failure to procure the investment, although he is entitled to set off in respect of any gain resulting from a fall in the price of securities⁶.

1 le the Supreme Court, not a county court: see Gain v Provincial Advertising Co (1904) 117 LT Jo 222; Davies v Coles (1912) 132 LT Jo 577 (cases relating to the liability to pay costs). See also R v Smith (Martin) [1975] QB 531 at 540, [1974] 1 All ER 651 at 654, CA, per Lord Denning MR.

2 Dixon v Wilkinson (1859) 4 De G & J 508 at 522-523 per Turner LJ; Marsh v Joseph [1897] 1 Ch 213, CA. A solicitor employed by a committee will not under this jurisdiction be made to pay or account to the court for money received for the committee (Re Butler (1866) 1 Ch App 607 at 611), nor will a solicitor who takes money out of court in good faith, but misled by an ambiguous plea, be ordered to refund it after having paid it away to his client (Davies v Richardson (1888) 21 QBD 202, CA). As to the liability of a solicitor in tort for loss, including financial loss, suffered by a third person as a result of the solicitor's negligent acts or omissions see PARA 820 et seq. He may also be liable in contract. A solicitor may take out an insurance policy against loss arising from claims which may be made against him by reason of any neglect, omission or error committed by him or any person employed by him in or about the conduct of any business conducted by him in his professional capacity, but such a policy will not cover a loss sustained by the solicitor as a result of a clerk's acts by which the clerk fraudulently obtained money from the solicitor's clients: Davies v Hosken [1937] 3 All ER 192. As to solicitors' indemnity insurance see PARA 853. As to professional negligence insurance generally see INSURANCE vol 25 (2003 Reissue) PARAS 692-697.

The liability extends to all cases of misfeasance (Re Dangar's Trusts at 196 per Stirling J), and, it seems, of nonfeasance (Dixon v Wilkinson at 522-523 per Turner LJ; Batten v Wedgwood Coal and Iron Co (1886) 31 ChD 346, distinguished in Re Dangar's Trusts); but, in the absence of fraud, the exercise of the summary jurisdiction is discretionary and should only be exercised where the court sees that no injustice will be done to the solicitor by it (Dixon v Wilkinson). The jurisdiction will not perhaps be exercised where the solicitor has been guilty only of negligence, and the remedy for that by action is available: see Frankland v Lucas (1831) 4 Sim 586. The costs of enforcing the liability must be paid by the solicitor: Slater v Slater.

(v) Liability to Pay over Clients' Money

755. Order to pay money to client.

A solicitor who, as solicitor for a client¹, has received and has in his hands money of the client, may² be ordered, on application by or on behalf of that client³ or his personal representatives⁴, under the court's inherent jurisdiction over its officers⁵, to account for money received or paid⁶ and to pay over to the client⁷, or into court⁸, the balance due to the client after deducting any money owing to the solicitor by the client for costs⁹ or other matters.

If the solicitor is a partner in a firm, an order may be made against all partners if the money has been paid to the firm and not been applied as the client directed¹⁰, but an order may be refused as against the firm where the business was transacted by one partner and the money was not paid to the firm and the other partners did not know of its having been received¹¹, or where the other partners were not guilty of any misconduct¹². A solicitor has been ordered summarily to repay money paid with the client's authority to the solicitor's clerk who was then managing the business¹³.

In exercising this summary jurisdiction interest on the money will not usually be awarded against the solicitor¹⁴, although in other proceedings the client may be entitled to it¹⁵.

1 Ex p Cripwell (1837) 5 Dowl 689; Re Cross (1843) 2 LTOS 227; Re Hinton, Tylee v Webb (1851) 14 Beav 14. The jurisdiction extends to a solicitor agent against whom the client of the principal solicitor applies (Hanley v Cassam (1847) 10 LTOS 189; Walker v Pearce, Re An Attorney (1862) 7 LT 285; Ex p Edwards (1881) 8 QBD 262, CA), and also on the application of the solicitor employed by the lay client (Re Farman, ex p Truman (1897) 14 TLR 20, DC). Where money was transferred into the joint names of a solicitor and his client for the purposes of securing certain payments, an order to release the money to the client was refused under the summary jurisdiction: Re Robinson (1859) 5 Jur NS 1021.

2 The jurisdiction is exercised with caution, as the summary procedure deprives the solicitor of a full trial and investigation: see Re Hurst and Middleton Ltd, Middleton v The Company [1912] 2 Ch 520 at 525-526, CA, per Kennedy LJ, and cf Haigh v Jones (1843) 1 Dow & L 81.

3 Re Thornton (1833) 2 Dowl 156; Re Fenton (1835) 3 Ad & El 404; Dixon v Wilkinson (1859) 4 De G & J 508. See also Carl Zeiss Stiftung v Herbert Smith & Co (No 2) [1969] 2 Ch 276, [1969] 2 All ER 367, CA. This proposition is subject to two qualifications: (1) where the money is trust money or something equivalent (Re A Solicitor, ex p Hales [1907] 2 KB 539, DC), the solicitor may be ordered to replace it at the instance of a beneficiary if there has been dishonourable conduct or neglect of duty on his part (Re Clerihew's Estate, Clerihew v Clerihew, Re Howard (1871) 24 LT 860; Re Carroll, Brice v Carroll [1902] 2 Ch 175); (2) the jurisdiction may be exercised over a person who is not a solicitor but who has pretended to be one. In connection with the payment of trust money see La Roche v Armstrong [1922] 1 KB 485, where the money was applied by the solicitor in resisting the claim to establish the trust.

4 Re Aitkin (1820) 4 B & Ald 47.

5 This jurisdiction is also exercisable in the case of a recognised body which is acting or has acted for such a client: see the Administration of Justice Act 1985 Sch 2 para 28. As to the meaning of 'recognised body' see PARA 687 note 3.

The basis of this jurisdiction is the prevention of breach of duty: see Re Grey [1892] 2 QB 440 at 444, 447, CA; Re A Solicitor, ex p Hales [1907] 2 KB 539 at 544, DC. The liability here discussed is that of a solicitor under the court's inherent jurisdiction over its officers. This jurisdiction must be distinguished from that of the court to order payment of money found due on assessment under the Solicitors Act 1974 (see PARA 968 et seq), or to order an account of money received and the payment of any balance found due on proceedings against a solicitor as agent (see AGENCY vol 1 (2008) PARA 87). As to a solicitor's obligation to keep accounts in relation to clients' money see PARA 835 et seq.

756. Defences.

The court will not summarily order a solicitor to pay money when the client's right depends on an agreement which the solicitor disputes¹; or when the client has accepted a promissory note for the amount²; or while the client prosecutes an action against the solicitor for the amount³; or when the client seeks to enforce a claim which has been barred in an action at law⁴, or by the solicitor's adjudication and discharge in bankruptcy⁵; or where the applicant has greatly delayed⁶; or if to fulfil the order would make the solicitor liable to committal for breach of another order⁷. Bankruptcy, however, is no sufficient defence where fraud is shown⁸ or where the solicitor has not obtained his discharge⁹; nor is the fact that the right to recover the money by action is statute-barred¹⁰; nor that judgment has been recovered for the money¹¹; nor that the money is claimed by third persons¹², unless they and the client have concurred in some arrangement with the solicitor¹³; nor that a lien is claimed which the solicitor does not establish¹⁴.

757. Source of money immaterial.

It is immaterial whether the money for which the solicitor must account was received from a third person to be paid to the client or whether it was received from the client to be applied for a purpose which has not been carried out. Thus, the money may have been received by the solicitor from the sheriff as the proceeds of an execution levied on behalf of the client¹, or from a banker as the proceeds of a cheque payable to the client and indorsed to the solicitor for collection², or from a mortgagee as the sum advanced³, or from a mortgagor in repayment of a mortgage held by the client⁴. The money may have been received by the solicitor from the client for application, for instance, to pay into court⁵, or to pay off a mortgage⁶, or it may represent the balance of a sum paid to the solicitor for the expenses of litigation after deducting the whole of the costs incurred⁷.

SOLICITORS/(5) LIABILITIES OF SOLICITORS AS OFFICERS OF THE SUPREME COURT/(vi) Liability to Deliver up Clients' Papers/758. Jurisdiction to order delivery up of papers.

(vi) Liability to Deliver up Clients' Papers

758. Jurisdiction to order delivery up of papers.

Under the inherent jurisdiction of the court over its officers¹ a solicitor² may³ be ordered upon summary application by the client, his personal representatives⁴ or his trustee in bankruptcy⁵, by summons⁶ to deliver up to his client in proper condition⁷ all documents⁸ in the solicitor's custody or power belonging solely⁹ to the applicant¹⁰. Similarly, the court may order a solicitor to produce all documents in his custody, possession or power, relating to an action, and to allow the client to inspect and make notes of them, and to supply the client with such copies as he desires, even though the litigation was conducted under the direction of an insurance company not appearing upon the record¹¹. It is provided by statute that the jurisdiction of the High Court to make orders for the delivery up of, or otherwise in relation to, any documents in the possession, custody or power of a solicitor¹² extends to cases in which no business has been done by him in the High Court¹³. A county court has the same jurisdiction as the High Court where the documents relate wholly or partly to contentious business¹⁴ done by the solicitor in that court¹⁵.

1 The liability here discussed is that of a solicitor under the court's inherent jurisdiction over its officers. This jurisdiction is the same as that discussed, in relation to different relief, in PARA 745 et seq, to which reference may be made, and should be distinguished from the court's jurisdiction upon an assessment of costs under the Solicitors Act 1974: see PARA 968 et seq. The court has jurisdiction summarily to enforce an undertaking to deliver deeds, even if given by a trainee solicitor (see Re Copp (1883) 32 WR 25), but the exercise of the jurisdiction is discretionary (Re A Solicitor (1888) 33 Sol Jo 76; see also United Mining and Finance Corp'n Ltd v Becher [1910] 2 KB 296 at 306, DC). An action in conversion lies for deeds wrongly detained by a solicitor: see Anderson v Passman (1835) 7 C & P 193 (detinue); and the Torts (Interference with Goods) Act 1977 s 2 (see TORT vol 97 (2010) PARA 543).

2 This includes the executor of a deceased solicitor: cf note 12; but see Ex p Nicholls (1842) 2 Dowl NS 423, which is presumably now of no effect.

6 The application will be made by originating or ordinary summons.

7 See North Western Rly Co v Sharp (1854) 10 Ex Ch 451.

8 This includes originals, drafts and copies (Ex p Horsfall (1827) 7 B & C 528) and letters written to the solicitor by third persons (Re Thomson (1855) 20 Beav 545), but not original letters to him written by the client nor, unless paid for by the client, copies of letters written by the solicitor to third persons (Re Thomson), or copies of letters written to his client (Re Wheatcroft (1877) 6 ChD 97). The expense of preparing a schedule of documents should be borne by the person for whose benefit it is prepared: Re Catlin (1854) 18 Beav 508 at 514; Re RP Morgan & Co [1915] 1 Ch 182. 759. Professional relationship.

The relationship of solicitor and client must have existed between the applicant, or the person whom the applicant represents, and the solicitor¹. Thus, delivery of papers will not be ordered where the applicant is a trustee and the employment was by a beneficiary²; or where it has already been established that the relationship did not exist³; or where the document is held as trustee, not as solicitor⁴, or has been delivered to the solicitor by someone not his client to obtain his client's execution of it⁵; or of a bond given up to the solicitor of a prosecutor by a person producing it in a cause⁶; or of a will given to a solicitor for destruction upon the application of a legatee⁷; or where the applicant is interested jointly with the client under the document but is not the solicitor's client⁸. The document must have come to the solicitor's hands as solicitor⁹; thus, delivery was not ordered of a policy which the solicitor had effected on the life of a client as security for a debt¹⁰, or of a document which he held as trustee¹¹ or as steward of a manor¹².

12 See Re Jennings [1903] 1 Ch 906. In Hughes v Mayre (1789) 3 Term Rep 275, delivery was ordered, but that case lays down no general rule, and principle requires that the general rule be that delivery should not be ordered (see PARA 755 note 2), at any rate in the absence of clearly improper conduct.

760. Defences.

It is a defence that the solicitor has a lien¹ on the documents², but, where the documents are in the hands of the solicitor's agents (being solicitors), the client, if he has paid the solicitor without notice that the agents have any lien, is entitled to an order for delivery of the documents by the solicitor³, and, it seems, also against the agents⁴. It is a defence that the documents are not in the possession of the solicitor or his agents⁵, but it is not sufficient that the solicitor should have delivered them to an attorney of the client after demand by the client for delivery to him or another agent of his⁶. It has been held to be a sufficient defence that the solicitor had entered into a covenant, given for the client's benefit, to produce the deeds to a third person and to keep the deeds undefaced and that this covenant remained in force⁷. Delivery will not be ordered where to comply with the order would expose the solicitor to proceedings for committal in another court⁸.

2 Re Millard (1831) 1 Dowl 140; Ex p Cobeldick (1883) 12 QBD 149, CA. See generally PARA 247. However, the court may order the documents to be handed over upon the amount of the solicitor's lien being paid into court or otherwise secured (Re Galland (1885) 31 ChD 296, CA), and where the costs of a sale, being secured by the lien, were disallowed, the solicitor who had acted for the vendor in the sale was ordered to deliver up the conveyance executed by the vendor (Potts v Dutton (1845) 8 Beav 493).

(vii) Liability to Committal

761. Punitive jurisdiction.

An order made against a solicitor in his capacity as an officer of the court is a punitive order, and may¹ be enforced by committal², but it is not an order made in a criminal or quasi-criminal cause or matter³. Thus a solicitor who has been ordered to deliver documents⁴ or to pay costs for misconduct⁵ or to perform an undertaking given by him in his capacity as a solicitor⁶ may be committed for failure to comply with the order⁷. A solicitor who has been ordered, in his character as an officer of the court making the order, to pay a sum of money⁸ may be committed for failure to comply with the order⁹.

Accordingly, leave to apply for committal has been given where the solicitor failed to pay over commission received upon effecting insurance policies (for which commission he was held accountable)¹⁰, where he failed to pay over a balance of the client's money in his hands¹¹, and where he failed to comply with an order to pay the costs of an action brought without authority¹². An order for payment of a balance due from a solicitor on assessment by his client, including the taxation of costs (now assessment)¹³, is an order against the solicitor in his character of an officer of the court and accordingly may be enforced by committal¹⁴ even though the solicitor is bankrupt¹⁵, and even though he has ceased to be a solicitor¹⁶. Similarly, where the order for taxation (now assessment) is obtained by a solicitor against his agent, the payment of the costs of taxation (now assessment) may be enforced by committal¹⁷, but the payment of money in the hands of the agent on account of the principal, although enforceable by committal, is so enforceable on different grounds¹⁸.

A partner in a firm of solicitors which is in course of dissolution is not liable to be committed for failure to pay over a sum of money which he has received on account of the firm¹⁹, nor is a solicitor liable to be committed for failure to pay costs which he is directed to pay as a litigant, and not as an officer of the court²⁰.

(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT

(i) Retainer

A. DEFINITION AND FORM OF RETAINER

763. Meaning of 'retainer'.

The act of authorising or employing a solicitor to act on behalf of a client constitutes the solicitor's retainer by that client. Thus the giving of a retainer is equivalent to the making of a contract for the solicitor's employment, and the rights and liabilities of the parties under that contract will depend partly on any terms which they have expressly agreed, partly on the terms which the law will infer or imply in the particular circumstances with regard to matters on which nothing has been expressly agreed, and partly on such statutory provisions as are applicable to the particular contract. As a general rule, a person has the right to retain the solicitor of his choice, provided the solicitor is willing to act and is not precluded by the law or by professional rules from so doing¹. By the giving and acceptance of the retainer the solicitor acquires his authority to act for and bind the client, and the client becomes bound both personally as between himself and his solicitor² and as between himself and third persons with whom the solicitor deals within the limits of his authority on behalf of his client³.

A solicitor is generally free to decide whether or not to take on a particular client unless it would involve him in a breach of the law or a breach of the rules of professional conduct or he does not have sufficient resources or competency to deal with the matter⁴. Where instructions have been given by a third party, or by someone on behalf of himself and others, a solicitor must not proceed until first checking that all clients agree with the instructions given⁵.

Also where a solicitor knows or has reasonable grounds to believe that the instructions are affected by duress or undue influence he must not act until satisfied that the instructions represent the client's wishes⁶.

Solicitors may publicise their practices and may accept introductions of clients and referrals of business, but all these matters are subject to the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007⁷.

1 In Oswald Hickson Collier & Co v Carter-Ruck [1984] AC 720n, [1984] 2 All ER 15, CA, it was held in the particular circumstances to be contrary to public policy to prevent a solicitor from acting for a client who wanted him to act, in reliance on a restraint of trade clause in the partnership deed. See also Edwards v Worboys [1984] AC 724n, CA. Commercial institutions wishing to impose absolute liability on solicitors must do so in clear terms, so that the extent of the obligation can be appreciated: Midland Bank v Cox McQueen (a firm) [1999] 1 FLR 1002, CA. See also UCB Corporate Services Ltd v Clyde & Co (a firm) [2000] 2 All ER (Comm) 257, CA.

2 The client's liability for costs does not extend to the costs of work done without authority before the retainer, unless there is a special agreement to that effect: see eg Re Watson, ex p Phillips (1886) 18 QBD 116; affd (1887) 19 QBD 234, CA (work done before appointment of administrator for person intermeddling with the estate). Where, however, a solicitor acts for a client with the client's authority, the presumption is that the client is liable for the solicitor's costs: see Bolden v Nicholay (1857) 3 Jur NS 884; Adams v London Improved Motor Coach Builders Ltd [1921] 1 KB 495, CA.

764. Relationship established by retainer.

The relationship between solicitor and client is a fiduciary one¹, but it does not follow that a solicitor is in all respects a trustee in relation to his client. There is no such thing as a general retainer imposing a duty on the solicitor to consider all aspects of the client's interests generally². Ordinarily the relationship between solicitor and client is that of agent and principal and therefore time will run against the client in respect of money left in his solicitor's hands³. However, special circumstances, as where money is paid by the client to his solicitor for a particular purpose, may constitute the solicitor a trustee of that money in relation to the client⁴, so that time will not run against the client to preclude his recovery of money not applied for the particular purpose⁵.

5 See the Limitation Act 1980 s 21(1); and cf LIMITATION PERIODS vol 68 (2008) PARA 1140 et seq. 765. Form of retainer.

A retainer need not be in writing¹, unless, under the general law of contract, the terms of the retainer or the disability of a party to it make writing requisite, for example where the retainer really amounts to a contract of guarantee². However the following matters must be provided in writing:

- 998 (1) the name and status of the person dealing with the matter³;
- 999 (2) the name of the person responsible for overall supervision⁴;
- 1000 (3) any information about the cost⁵;
- 1001 (4) if the retainer is to provide for payment by a salary or agreed sum, writing will be necessary in respect of the provisions for remuneration⁶;
- 1002 (5) details that in the event of a problem the client is entitled to complain and to whom the client should complain⁷.

It has been said that it is the duty of a solicitor to obtain a written authority from his client before commencing a suit⁸, and certainly it is desirable for the sake of both solicitor and client that the retainer should be reduced into writing, so that its terms may be perfectly clear and beyond dispute⁹, particularly where the original retainer has been revoked by writing, and subsequently a new retainer has been given¹⁰. Indeed, if there is no evidence of retainer except a statement by the solicitor which the client contradicts the court will treat the solicitor as having acted without authority from the client¹¹. This applies not only to litigious but also to non-contentious business¹².

NOTE 1--Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 2.05 amended on 31 March 2009, 31 March 2010.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(i) Retainer/A. DEFINITION AND FORM OF RETAINER/766. Oral appointment.

766. Oral appointment.

There are few circumstances in which agents must be appointed by deed¹, and however desirable it may be that the appointment of solicitors should be in writing², so that the fact of agency and extent of the authority should be clearly ascertainable, the law does not require formal evidence³.

1 As to when a deed is necessary see AGENCY vol 1 (2008) PARA 15.

2 See PARA 765.

3 Owen v Ord (1828) 3 C & P 349; Lord v Kellett (1833) 2 My & K 1; Wiggins v Peppin (1839) 2 Beav 403; Rowe v Ward (1844) 4 LTOS 191. The onus lies upon a solicitor of proving his appointment (Maries v Maries (1853) 23 LJ Ch 154; John Griffiths Cycle Corpn Ltd v Humber & Co Ltd [1899] 2 QB 414, CA), and he may be liable for costs if he fails to prove his appointment (Norton v Cooper, Re Manby and Hawksford, ex p Bittleston (1856) 26 LJ Ch 313).

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(i) Retainer/A. DEFINITION AND FORM OF RETAINER/767. Implied retainer.

767. Implied retainer.

Even if there has been no written retainer, the court may imply the existence of a retainer from the acts of the parties in the particular case¹. Thus, where a person has received a fund out of court which was produced by an action², or where a person about to become a trustee has consented to solicitors acting in a mortgage transaction for the trust³, or where a defendant called at a solicitor's office and left the writ and other papers and subsequently expressed an intention to go to the bottom of the matter⁴, a retainer was constituted. The mere fact that a litigant whose name a solicitor has joined as a claimant without obtaining authority to do so does not take steps to have his name removed from the record on becoming aware that he has been joined as claimant is not by itself necessarily sufficient to justify an inference that the solicitor is retained by the litigant⁵, although little may be needed in addition to justify that inference⁶. However, such acquiescence will suffice to render the litigant liable to the other side for costs which he may be ordered to pay to them in the litigation⁷. Where, however, property has been recovered or preserved in legal proceedings, including arbitrations, through the instrumentality of a solicitor, he may be entitled to a lien or to obtain a charging order on that property in respect of his costs of its recovery or preservation, even though he was not authorised to act on behalf of some of the persons to whom the property belongs⁸.

7 Hall v Laver (1842) 1 Hare 571 at 576. So, too, the litigant may be held to have enabled the solicitor to bind the litigant as against third persons in matters within the apparent authority of the solicitor.

8 See Hall v Laver (1842) 1 Hare 571 at 576, as explained in Re Becket, Purnell v Paine [1918] 2 Ch 72 at 76, CA. As to liens and charging orders see PARA 996 et seq; and cf PARA 1018 note 7.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(i) Retainer/B. RETAINER BY PARTICULAR PERSONS/768. Retainer by agents etc.

B. RETAINER BY PARTICULAR PERSONS

768. Retainer by agents etc.

As a general rule a person, even if he is receiving legal aid¹, has the right to choose whom he will employ as his solicitor². Conversely, a person has no authority, unless specially authorised, to retain a solicitor to act on another person's behalf³. This authority may, however, be expressly conferred⁴, or may be implied from the relations between the parties⁵. Thus a partner, even although dormant and retiring from the firm before completion of the work charged for, may be liable to a solicitor for costs incurred in suing a debtor to the firm on the instructions of the only active partner⁶, and the managing partner of a business firm may employ a solicitor to defend an action against the firm for goods supplied in the ordinary course of business⁷.

A person by contract or conduct may confer power on another to appoint a solicitor to act at the appointer's expense for the litigant⁸. Where the client has conferred on a third person authority to control the conduct of the matter, the solicitor may act on the instructions of that person in regard to matters which are clearly within the authority so conferred; and, even though he may be paid by the third person, the solicitor is otherwise liable to the client to the same extent and in the same respects as he would be if he were being paid by the client⁹. The adoption of work done on behalf of a client without authority may amount to a ratification and retainer¹⁰.

2 Watts v Official Solicitor [1936] 1 All ER 249, CA. Alien enemies who are directors of a company incorporated in England may not retain a solicitor on the company's behalf: Daimler Co Ltd v Continental Tyre and Rubber Co (Great Britain) Ltd [1916] 2 AC 307, HL. On the death of a litigant and the appointment of a person to represent his estate, the person appointed is entitled to employ his own solicitor, although, it seems, the deceased would not have been so entitled: see Watts v Official Solicitor [1936] 1 All ER 249, CA. An authority to act generally, conferred orally or in writing on an agent, includes authority to instruct a solicitor: Re Frampton, ex p Frampton (1859) 1 De GF & J 263, CA.

5 For instances justifying this proposition see the text and notes 6-7. However, it is material to notice that a solicitor who is retained is not thereby authorised to retain another solicitor in his place on the client's behalf (Re Becket, Purnell v Paine [1918] 2 Ch 72, CA), although in accordance with usage a solicitor may be impliedly authorised to employ a London or local agent (see PARA 1022).

7 Tomlinson v Broadsmith [1896] 1 QB 386, CA. See also Court v Berlin [1897] 2 QB 396, CA.

8 For example, a trade union may appoint a solicitor on behalf of a member to conduct proceedings on the member's behalf with the member's consent, and, even though the union agrees to be responsible for costs, the member remains responsible also in the absence of an express agreement excluding this responsibility, so that costs are recoverable by him in the proceedings: see Adams v London Improved Motor Coach Builders Ltd [1921] 1 KB 495, CA. So also an insurance company may employ a solicitor to act for an insured person, either because the company is the real litigant and is going to bear the cost, or under an express term in the policy: Walsh v Julius (1927) Times, 13 July; Luck v Meyler (1928) 72 Sol Jo 337; Groom v Crocker [1939] 1 KB 194, [1938] 2 All ER 394, CA. 10 See Terrell v Hutton (1854) 4 HL Cas 1091 at 1099 per Lord Cranworth. However, there can be no ratification unless the principal is in existence when the work is done: see AGENCY vol 1 (2008) PARA 61.

769. Joint and several retainers.

Retainers by two or more persons may be either joint or several, depending upon the intention of the parties and the nature of the business¹. In the former case each party is liable for the whole of the costs incurred for the benefit of himself or any of the other parties to it², while in the latter case each party is only liable for his proportion of the costs incurred on behalf of all³. Where, however, a retainer joint in form is in fact joint and several, and the work done enures for the benefit of all, for instance in a partition suit, each party to it will be liable for the whole costs incurred⁴.

1 See eg Hall v Meyrick [1957] 2 QB 455, [1957] 2 All ER 722, CA, where a man and woman who had lived together for 15 years instructed a solicitor to prepare wills conferring mutual benefits, and there were held to be several retainers. Duties are owed and must be discharged to each and every client; a solicitor is only entitled to communicate with and take instructions from a single member of joint clients if he has the authority of the other clients to do so: Farrer v Copley Singleton (1997) 76 P & CR 169, CA.

770. Retainer by minor.

A retainer given by a minor has no legal effect¹ unless the services to be rendered under it are necessities². Thus, the preparation or settlement of the terms of a proper marriage settlement may properly be undertaken on a retainer by a minor³.

771. Retainer by mentally disordered person.

A person suffering from mental disorder which prevents him from understanding what he is doing cannot enter into a contract or appoint an agent¹, and therefore cannot give a retainer to a solicitor. However, if he purports to do so he may incur quasi-contractual obligations to the solicitor², and in any case, if it thinks fit, the Court of Protection may validate the contract of retainer³.

The authority of a solicitor under a retainer given by a client before becoming mentally disordered ceases as soon as the client becomes mentally disordered⁴, and it is immaterial whether or not the solicitor was aware of the incapacity⁵.

1 See MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARAS 601, 606.

2 In so far as the retainer may be shown to be a contract for necessities, he may be liable to pay the solicitor: see MENTAL HEALTH vol 30(2) (Reissue) PARA 604.

772. Retainer by corporation.

A corporation is entitled to retain a solicitor¹. The retainer need not be under the corporate seal². Formerly the retainer had, strictly speaking³, to be by writing under the common seal⁴, although a confirmation of the retainer by a subsequent resolution under seal sufficed⁵. In such cases the corporation was liable to the solicitor for the costs and expenses incurred under the retainer⁶. A retainer in fact, although not under seal, enabled the solicitor to bind the corporation as regards third persons in matters within his ostensible authority⁷. It might also give the solicitor a lien over the papers of the corporation in his possession⁸, and render the corporation liable to him for his costs for work done⁹.

If the corporation is not bound by the retainer, individual members of the corporation who actively join in the appointment may be personally liable¹⁰.

The rights of a solicitor employed in the promotion of a company as regards the recovery of his costs and expenses from the promoters of the company, or the company itself when formed, are discussed elsewhere in this work¹¹.

773. Retainer by clubs and other unincorporated bodies.

Unincorporated bodies such as clubs and learned societies cannot, although purporting to act in a corporate capacity, enter into a contract of retainer upon which they may be sued as an entity by the solicitor; the members of the committee or other persons who retain the solicitor are alone responsible for his charges, and he must look directly to them¹.

774. Retainer by trustees and executors.

Trustees and executors can jointly retain and appoint a solicitor to act for them in matters with which they are concerned in their fiduciary capacity. They are personally liable upon the retainer¹, unless they expressly contract that the solicitor is to look only to the estate for his costs², but are entitled to an indemnity from the estate in respect of costs properly incurred³. The retainer should be given by all the trustees or executors, since a retainer by one does not bind the rest in the absence of express authority⁴. A direction in a will to employ a particular solicitor does not bind the executors or trustees to employ him any longer than they wish⁵.

In addition, the solicitor has no better right to payment from the estate than the client, and therefore, if the client owes money to the estate and accordingly cannot receive money from it until the debt is paid, the solicitor's right to look to the estate is also subject to this limitation unless he can obtain a charging order: see Re Cockrell's Estate [1911] 2 Ch 318 at 323 per Neville J. Where several executors or trustees employ the solicitor and one is a debtor to the estate, only the proportion of costs attributable to the other executor is allowed out of the estate as exempt from the principle last-mentioned: Smith v Dale (1881) 18 ChD 516 (executors); McEwan v Crombie (1883) 25 ChD 175. 775. Retainer by trustee in bankruptcy.

A trustee in bankruptcy may employ a solicitor for the purposes of, or in connection with, any of his statutory powers¹; but if the trustee is not the official receiver² he must, when he employs a solicitor, give notice to the creditors' committee³ of the exercise of this power⁴. It is the trustee who is the solicitor's client and who is liable to the solicitor. By virtue of this liability the solicitor's costs properly incurred may be payable out of the estate because the trustee will be entitled to be indemnified out of it, but the solicitor's right is no greater than his client's, and therefore if the trustee has been guilty of such misconduct as to deprive him of his indemnity the solicitor cannot recover costs out of the estate⁵. Costs payable out of the bankrupt's estate must be assessed unless otherwise agreed between the responsible insolvency practitioner and the person entitled to payment, and must in any case be assessed if the creditor's committee so resolves⁶.

A solicitor whose partner or legal executive is on the creditors' committee should not accept a retainer⁷.

776. Retainer by liquidator.

A liquidator may appoint a solicitor to assist in the performance of the liquidator's duties in any winding up¹. In a creditors' voluntary winding up, however, he may not do so during the period before the holding of the creditors' meeting² except with the sanction of the court³, and where the company is being wound up by the court and the liquidator is not the official receiver, then if he appoints a solicitor to assist him in carrying out his functions he must give notice to the liquidation committee of that exercise of his powers⁴.

The liquidator is not personally responsible to the solicitor for his costs⁵, but the best course is to stipulate at the time of appointing the solicitor that he is to look only to the assets for his costs⁶. If the liquidator is a solicitor and employs his own firm, or any partner in it, to act on behalf of the company, profit costs must not be paid unless this is authorised by the liquidation committee, the creditors or the court⁷.

The solicitor's retainer is not revoked by the removal of the liquidator who retained him⁸.

777. Retainer by administrative receiver.

An administrative receiver appointed by debenture holders or the trustees under a debenture has power¹ to appoint a solicitor to assist him in the performance of his functions². An administrative receiver is deemed to be the company's agent unless and until the company goes into liquidation³. An administrative receiver is personally liable on any contract entered into by him and is entitled to an indemnity out of the assets of the company⁴.

C. NATURE AND DURATION OF RETAINER

778. Period of retainer.

The general rule is that when retained by a client a solicitor undertakes to finish the business for which he is retained¹. Thus, a retainer is, speaking generally, an entire contract, that is to say, a contract to do certain business², to finish that business, and to be remunerated at the completion of the business. The consequence is that remuneration cannot be recovered on a quantum meruit where the solicitor withdraws without legal justification³, nor, of course, can costs be recovered in these circumstances⁴. This general rule applies to retainers to conduct or defend ordinary actions⁵ or arbitrations⁶, but it is not an absolute one and yields to special circumstances. Thus, a retainer may expressly⁷ or by necessary implication⁸ fix the period for which it is to endure, or, in the absence of express agreement, the nature of the business may justify an inference that the parties did not intend the retainer to be a contract to finish the business⁹. Nevertheless, even though a retainer is an entire contract, a term will be implied, in the absence of express agreement¹⁰, enabling the solicitor to withdraw from the retainer for good cause and upon reasonable notice¹¹. Good cause includes a failure to provide funds for disbursements¹², the discovery that an action, properly commenced, cannot be successfully maintained¹³, or the solicitor's being asked to do something dishonourable or being hindered and prevented by the client in and from conducting the action¹⁴.

If a solicitor who has been retained by a client to conduct contentious business¹⁵ requests the client to make a payment of a reasonable sum of money on account of the costs incurred or to be incurred in the conduct of that business, and the client refuses or fails within a reasonable time to make that payment, the refusal or failure is deemed to be a good cause whereby the solicitor may, upon giving reasonable notice to the client, withdraw from the retainer¹⁶.

It seems that a term will also be implied enabling the client to withdraw the retainer at any time¹⁷. A withdrawal should be plainly expressed, for 'something definite, clear and precise' is required to withdraw a retainer¹⁸.

1 Re Romer and Haslam [1893] 2 QB 286 at 298, CA, per Bowen LJ (litigation); Warmingtons v McMurray [1936] 2 All ER 745 at 748-749 per Goddard J (affd [1937] 1 All ER 562 at 565, CA, per Farwell LJ) (arbitration proceedings and other matters). Unless the case is covered by authority, the question whether a retainer is or is not an entire contract must be determined by applying the rules applicable to contracts generally. These rules are stated in Serjeant Williams' notes to Saunders Reports under the decision in Pordage v Cole (1669) 1 Wms Saund 319: see CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 922. Thus, in the case of litigation the retainer may be said to be entire; therefore completion of the business is a condition upon the fulfilment of which the payment of costs depends, either because costs are not taxed until after judgment, so that the time of payment according to ordinary practice is after completion of the work, or because the client gets no benefit until judgment, so that the obtaining of judgment goes to the whole consideration.

2 It has been said that there is no such thing as 'the office of solicitor, that is to say, that a man has got a solicitor, not as a person whom he is employing to do some particular business for him, either conveyancing, scrivenering, or conducting an action, but as an official solicitor' (Saffron Walden Second Benefit Building Society v Rayner (1880) 14 ChD 406 at 409, CA, per James LJ); but nowadays solicitors are frequently in permanent employment in the legal departments of large business concerns.

6 Re Romer and Haslam [1893] 2 QB 286, CA; Warmingtons v McMurray [1936] 2 All ER 745 at 748. However, there may be breaks in protracted arbitration proceedings which justify the termination of the contract or, from the practical aspect, a demand for the payment of costs before the whole proceedings are completed.

7 See PARA 780. Uncompleted work may be remunerated under special statutory provision if contentious and subject to a written agreement as to remuneration: see PARA 781.

8 See Hollings v Booth (1860) 2 F & F 220, where a condition was implied that the retainer was to continue until there was a fund in court available for costs; and Emmens v Elderton (1853) 4 HL Cas 624, where in the circumstances a term that the retainer should endure for one year was inferred.

9 Warmingtons v McMurray [1936] 2 All ER 745 (affd [1937] 1 All ER 562, CA) (retainer to get a client out of difficulties). In the case of proceedings which are protracted and in the course of which breaks occur the retainer may be construed as justifying termination, or, if that is not desired, payment of costs upon the occurrence of a break: Re Hall and Barker (1878) 9 ChD 538; Re Romer and Haslam [1893] 2 QB 286, CA. Cf Re Nelson, Son and Hastings (1885) 30 ChD 1, CA (agency business). Consequently, where the retainer is general (and for this reason is not an entire contract) the solicitor may terminate it upon reasonable notice (see Warmingtons v McMurray at 565 per Farwell LJ; cf Buckle v Roach (1819) 1 Chit 193), but where the proceedings reach a natural break no notice is necessary in order to enable the solicitor to recover costs to that date (see Re Hall and Barker; Re Romer and Haslam [1893] 2 QB 286, CA).

10 See eg Webster v Le Hunt (1861) 9 WR 804 (agreement not to require funds); Bluck v Lovering & Co (1886) 35 WR 232, DC (special stipulation to provide funds).

The termination of a retainer by death or insanity of the solicitor (see PARA 780) likewise rests on a condition implied from the fact that the retainer is a contract for personal services: cf CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 903.

If a contract is entire, then, unless a term is implied enabling a party to terminate it, termination of it by a party before the time for performance is completed or has arrived gives the other party a right of action: see eg George Trollope & Sons v Martyn Bros [1934] 2 KB 436 at 456 et seq, CA. This principle applies to a contract of retainer as to other contracts, but there is not, it is believed, any reported instance of a claim for damages having been advanced upon the withdrawal by the client of an indefinite retainer. Emmens v Elderton (1853) 4 HL Cas 624 is to be distinguished as the retainer was to endure for one year in the circumstances. 779. Retainer at a salary.

A retainer of a solicitor to act for a term certain at a salary or for a fixed sum is perfectly good, but the provisions fixing the remuneration must be in writing¹. A retainer at a fixed salary only gives the solicitor the right to sue for and recover the salary; he cannot insist upon being furnished with work to do², unless the contract, upon its true construction or expressly, so provides. Thus the solicitor cannot usually recover damages for failure to supply work, and in no case can he insist on actually representing the client against his will³.

In cases in which litigation is being conducted in the name of a nominal claimant but the substantial interest is vested in another person who indemnifies the nominal claimant against costs it is just that the person bearing the burden of the litigation should not have his reasonable conduct of the litigation rendered futile or impossible, and accordingly the nominal claimant will not be allowed to revoke the solicitor's retainer: see Montforts v Marsden [1895] 1 Ch 11.

780. Termination of retainer.

A retainer is terminated without breach of the contract of retainer on the conclusion of the business for which the retainer was given¹ or, if it was for a fixed period, on the expiration of that period, or by the death² or the mental incapacity³ of the client or of the solicitor⁴, or on the happening of an event rendering its continuance unlawful⁵, or on the bankruptcy of the client⁶ or, it seems, of the solicitor, since his bankruptcy operates immediately to suspend his practising certificate⁷. In a company winding up, a solicitor's retainer is not revoked by the removal of the liquidator who retained him⁸.

A retainer which has not been given for a fixed or minimum period may be terminated by the client at any time without constituting a breach of contract⁹ or, as in the case of any other contract, a disclaimer of liability may be accepted as repudiation¹⁰.

A solicitor must not cease acting for a client except for good reason and on reasonable notice¹¹.

A retainer which has not been given for a fixed or minimum period may be terminated by the solicitor without breach only when the termination is permissible according to the principles previously stated¹². The contract of retainer is broken and the retainer is ended if the solicitor does acts which prevent him continuing the work¹³. Thus, an assignment of his business¹⁴ or imprisonment¹⁵ or disqualification¹⁶ or, if a firm is retained, the dissolution of the firm¹⁷ puts an end to the retainer, but the solicitor's pecuniary embarrassment¹⁸ is not necessarily enough¹⁹.

1 See PARA 778. In the case of protracted business having natural breaks the retainer is terminated, so as to allow the solicitor to claim costs, on the occurrence of a break: see PARA 778 note 9. While the solicitor's authority endures, his duty towards his client endures also in relation to the proceedings (see Lady De la Pole v Dick (1885) 29 ChD 351 at 356-357, CA, per Cotton LJ), and therefore until the client substitutes another solicitor on the record, or constitutes himself as a litigant in person, the solicitor should be entitled to do and to charge for doing work necessary to fulfil his duty. As to the position of a solicitor who discharges himself see Gamlen Chemical Co (UK) Ltd v Rochem Ltd [1980] 1 All ER 1049, [1980] 1 WLR 614, CA.

2 Pool v Pool (1889) 61 LT 401. Cf Chalié v Gwynne (1846) 9 Beav 319. Accordingly the solicitor can sue the personal representatives of the client for costs in respect of work done: Whitehead v Lord (1852) 7 Exch 691. The personal representatives may incur personal liability by continuing the retainer: Re Bentinck, Bentinck v Bentinck (1893) 37 Sol Jo 233.

4 This is because the contract is one for personal services: see CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 903. It is uncertain whether the solicitor's personal representatives can sue for costs for work done before the death: Underwood, Son and Piper v Lewis [1894] 2 QB 306 at 313, CA, per Lord Esher MR; cf Re Smith (1861) 9 WR 396; Poussard v Spiers and Pond (1876) 1 QBD 410 at 414. 6 Re Moss (1866) LR 2 Eq 345; cf Becke v Penn (1835) 7 C & P 397, where an assignee was not liable for the costs of work before the assignment. In Re Moss at 348, Lord Romilly held that if the client becomes bankrupt, and the assignees do not employ the firm of solicitors, that is a discharge by the solicitor's client. If the retainer is continued by the trustee with the sanction of the creditors' committee and the solicitor's concurrence, no question arises, but it is submitted that Re Moss is an authority for the proposition that a client's bankruptcy is a discharge of the solicitor and that that proposition is correct, because (1) the bankruptcy should terminate the authority of the solicitor which he may have warranted to third persons (cf BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 418); (2) the solicitor is probably acting on the faith of his client's credit and bankruptcy makes it impossible for the client to fulfil his obligations in respect of future services and disbursements; and (3) the relationship of solicitor and client is confidential and fiduciary, and the solicitor never agreed to act for the trustee in bankruptcy.

7 See the Solicitors Act 1974 s 15(1); and PARA 901. As to the discretion with regard to practising certificates see s 12 (prospectively repealed); and PARA 898. The position of a solicitor on his bankruptcy is determined by the ordinary law of bankruptcy; but as to a solicitor's lien see PARA 996 et seq. 9 See PARA 778 note 18. The question whether a breach of contract has or has not been committed goes only to the payment of costs or perhaps of damages; the solicitor cannot insist on representing the client: Re Galland (1885) 31 ChD 296 at 300, CA, per Chitty J.

11 Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 2.01(2). If a client wished to pursue a case that the solicitor honestly believed he was going to lose, provided that the solicitor had given clear advice to the client and absent any impropriety or misleading of the court, the client was entitled to instruct him to do so and the solicitor was not entitled to terminate the retainer: Richard Buxton (Solicitors) v Mills-Owens [2008] EWHC 1831 (QB), [2008] All ER (D) 356 (Jul).

12 See PARA 778.

13 This is in accordance with general principle: see CONTRACT vol 9(1) (Reissue) PARA 786. Acts of misconduct may justify termination, although the solicitor has not been disqualified: see Re Smith (1841) 4 Beav 309.

16 See note 13. If the solicitor's disqualification is not attributable to a default on his part, it seems that he is entitled to costs for work done: see Re Smith (1861) 9 WR 396 per Kindersley V-C.

18 See Re Smith (1861) 9 WR 396.

19 An accident keeping a solicitor away from practice for an indefinite period has been held to be good cause for the client to terminate the retainer, and, where in these circumstances the client instructed a new solicitor at the suggestion of his first solicitor, the court implied a term that the first solicitor should receive costs for the period up to the termination of the retainer: Forney v Bushe (1954) 104 L Jo 604.

781. Position upon termination of retainer.

When a retainer, although an entire contract, is terminated without breach or is repudiated by the client, the solicitor is entitled to recover costs for work done under the retainer¹. However, if the retainer is an entire contract and is terminated upon the unjustified withdrawal or other breach by the solicitor, then the client is not liable to make any payment in respect of work done by the solicitor under the retainer².

In relation to the solicitor's retaining lien the question whether he has discharged himself or has been discharged by his client is important. If the solicitor discharged himself, he may be compelled to deliver up 'subject to his lien'³ papers requisite for use in a pending action, even though he has a retaining lien over them for costs not yet paid by the client⁴, whereas if he has been discharged by his client, the solicitor may exercise his retaining lien as against the client⁵.

When the termination of the retainer is due to the client's acts, as when he gives notice of change of solicitor in an action⁶, clearly the client has discharged the solicitor. The client's bankruptcy also constitutes a discharge by the client⁷. Similarly, if the solicitor terminates the contract of retainer upon proper notice and, if necessary, for good cause, he has discharged himself⁸, and clearly where the termination is due to the solicitor's breach of contract, the client has been discharged by the solicitor⁹.

Where the solicitor and client have agreed the remuneration for work in respect of contentious business under the retainer¹⁰, the court has jurisdiction, on a change of solicitor by the client or on the solicitor's death or incapacity before the work has been completed and notwithstanding that it considers the agreement to be fair and reasonable, to order that the remuneration due for business done be ascertained on assessment in which regard will be had to the terms of the agreement, and payment of the amount found to be due may be enforced as if the agreement had been fully performed¹¹.

A solicitor may still have a duty to observe fiduciary obligations in his personal dealings with a former client¹².

1 Vansandau v Browne (1832) 9 Bing 402; Whitehead v Lord (1852) 7 Exch 691 (client's death). Thus, where the client withdrew a retainer to do non-contentious probate work, the solicitor was held entitled to his costs up to that time, but was not entitled to charges for taking out the grant which was in fact done by another solicitor: Re Lane Joynt [1920] IR 228. It seems that the solicitor is not entitled to sue for the costs of litigious work until the termination of the litigation, when the contract of retainer was entire (Grant v Holland (1878) 3 CPD 180), but it is submitted that the principle on which this case was decided is not now good law (cf Newbiggin-by-the-Sea Gas Co v Armstrong (1879) 13 ChD 310, CA).

782. Change of solicitor.

In all proceedings in county courts, the High Court and the Civil Division of the Court of Appeal the following provisions generally apply¹ where:

- 1003 (1) a party for whom a solicitor is acting wants to change his solicitor;
- 1004 (2) a party, after having conducted the claim in person, appoints a solicitor to act on his behalf (except where the solicitor is appointed only to act as an advocate for a hearing); or
- 1005 (3) a party, after having conducted the claim by a solicitor, intends to act in person².

The party or his solicitor (where one is acting) must file and serve notice of the change on the other party and where heads (2) and (3) above apply, on the former solicitor³.

Where a party has changed his solicitor or intends to act in person, the former solicitor will be considered to be the party's solicitor unless and until notice is served⁴ or the court makes an order that the solicitor has ceased to act⁵ and the order is served as required⁶.

In relation to criminal proceedings, the following apply where:

- 1006 (a) a party for whom a solicitor is acting in restraint proceedings or receivership proceedings wants to change his solicitor;
- 1007 (b) a party, after having represented himself in such proceedings, appoints a solicitor to act on his behalf (except where the solicitor is appointed only to act as an advocate for a hearing); or
- 1008 (c) a party, after having been represented by a solicitor in such proceedings, intends to act in person⁷.

Where this rule applies, the party or his solicitor (where one is acting) must lodge notice of the change at the Crown Court and serve notice of the change on every other party and, where head (a) or (c) apply, on the former solicitor⁸.

Where a party has changed his solicitor or intends to act in person, the former solicitor will be considered to be the party's solicitor unless and until notice is served⁹ or the Crown Court makes an order that the solicitor has ceased to act¹⁰ and the order is served as required¹¹.

132 (2) if that person wishes to continue where he appoints a solicitor to act on his behalf, CPR 42.2(2) will apply as if he had previously conducted the claim in person and where he wants to act in person, he must give an address for service (CPR 42.2(6)(b)).

'Certificate' in CPR 42.2(6) means in the case of a LSC funded client, a certificate issued under the Funding Code (approved under the Access to Justice Act 1999 s 9) or in the case of an assisted person, a certificate within the meaning of the Civil Legal Aid (General) Regulations 1989, SI 1989/339: CPR 42.2(6).

783. Effect on contentious business agreement of change of solicitor.

Where the client changes his solicitor in the course of contentious business after having agreed his remuneration¹, the court has jurisdiction to order assessment, notwithstanding that it considers the agreement to be fair and reasonable, and payment of the amount found due may be enforced as if the work had been fully performed². On this assessment regard must be had to the circumstances under which the change of solicitor took place and to the terms of the agreement, and the solicitor will not be allowed the full amount of the remuneration agreed to be paid to him³ unless there has been no default, negligence, improper delay or other conduct on his part⁴ affording reasonable ground for the change of solicitor⁵. The opinion of the costs officer as to the existence of such default, negligence, improper delay or other conduct appears to be conclusive if there was any material whatever on which that opinion could reasonably be based⁶.

Where a partner in a firm of solicitors which has acted for one party in litigation moves to a new firm and one of the opposing parties then wishes to employ his services as solicitor, the burden is on that former partner to prove that there is no real risk that he has any relevant confidential information which would make it improper for his services to be so employed⁷.

³ These are the words used in the Solicitors Act 1974 s 63. It is submitted that they mean the full amount of remuneration computed in accordance with the agreement for the work done. If they are interpreted literally, their effect is to give the solicitor the whole sum that he would have received if he had completed the work, i.e. payment of what he has earned and also damages for being removed from employment when in fact no breach of the contract of retainer may have been committed by the client.

D. DOCUMENTS

785. Ownership and use of documents.

Documents coming into existence in the course of business transacted under a retainer, and either prepared for the benefit of the client¹ or received by the solicitor as agent for the client², belong to the client. However, documents prepared by the solicitor for his own protection or benefit³, and letters written by the client to the solicitor, belong to the solicitor⁴. If copies of documents or the originals were in a solicitor's possession but have come into the possession of an unauthorised person, he will be restrained from using them in breach of the confidence under which they were in the solicitor's custody⁵. An agreement in partnership articles between solicitors regulating the right to clients' papers on dissolution or other events will bind the partners but not their clients⁶.

On delivering up documents to a client a solicitor can only charge for preparing a list of the documents if the list, or the affidavit in which or as an exhibit to which the list appears, is required for the client's benefit⁷.

1 Eg vouchers (Re Ellis and Ellis [1908] WN 215); deeds whether originals or drafts or copies (Ex p Horsfall (1827) 7 B & C 528); and any drafts and copies prepared in non-contentious business. This principle is part of the law of agency: Re Thomson (1855) 20 Beav 545; cf Howard v Gunn (1863) 32 Beav 462 at 465; Gibbon v Pease [1905] 1 KB 810, CA. Cf PARA 758 note 8.

Where documents are obtained from solicitors by stealth or a trick within the precincts of the court, this is probably a contempt of court which the court should not countenance by admitting the documents in evidence: see ITC Film Distributors Ltd v Video Exchange Ltd [1982] Ch 431, [1982] 2 All ER 241.

A. IN GENERAL

786. Limits of solicitor's authority.

The question whether or not a solicitor has authority from his client has two practical aspects. First, if unauthorised, he will be unable to charge his client costs for work done. Second, his unauthorised acts will not bind his client to third persons unless those acts are within his ostensible authority¹. The solicitor's authority to act for his client arises from his retainer, and thus is confined to transacting the business to which the retainer extends² or impliedly extends³, and is subject to any express terms of the retainer limiting the authority. Similarly, the solicitor may be authorised expressly by the client to do acts or incur expenses which would not otherwise be authorised under the retainer⁴.

In the absence of special instructions, a general retainer, whether relating to contentious or non-contentious business, does not authorise the solicitor to make long journeys or go abroad at his client's expense, but, if whilst in a locality where work can usefully be done for his client he does work which, on his return, is adopted and utilised by the client, the solicitor is entitled to charge a fair remuneration in respect of the time actually so occupied⁵. In the absence of express authority a solicitor has no authority to receive notices on behalf of his client⁶.

A solicitor has no authority to pledge his client's credit to counsel for fees, whether in respect of contentious or non-contentious business⁷.

1 In Waugh v HB Clifford & Sons Ltd [1982] Ch 374, 1 All ER 1095, CA, it was held that a solicitor retained in an action which had been commenced had (1) implied authority as between himself and his client to compromise the suit without reference to the client, provided the compromise did not involve matter collateral to the action; and (2) ostensible authority, as between himself and the opposing litigant, to compromise the suit without actual proof of authority, subject to the same limitation.

2 This is so since the relationship of solicitor to client is in general one of agent to principal (cf PARA 768), and the agent's authority must be limited by his agreement, express or implied, with his principal. An illustration of the principle is afforded by James v Ricknell (1887) 20 QBD 164, DC, where interpleader proceedings upon execution were held to be in substance a second action and therefore not to be authorised by the retainer for the action in which judgment was recovered; cf PARA 797.

3 See Wright v Pepin [1954] 2 All ER 52, [1954] 1 WLR 635, where it was held that, although not expressly authorised to acknowledge a mortgage debt, a solicitor had authority to put his client's affairs in order and in so doing he had properly acknowledged a debt. A solicitor duly instructed to brief counsel is, however, entitled to recover from his client fees paid to counsel, even though payment is made after action at a time when the client has forbidden the payment to be made: Medlicott v Emery (1933) 149 LT 303.

B. NON-CONTENTIOUS BUSINESS

787. Payments authorised by production of deed.

Where a solicitor produces a deed having in the body of the deed or indorsed on it a receipt for consideration money or other consideration, and the deed has been executed, or the indorsed receipt signed, by the person entitled to give a receipt for that consideration, the deed itself authorises payment being made to the solicitor without his producing any separate authority from the person who executed or signed the deed or receipt¹.

The solicitor must actually produce the deed² and be acting for the party to whom the money is expressed to be paid³. The production of the deed in the requisite form is equivalent to the production by the solicitor of a special authority to receive the consideration, which was formerly necessary⁴. Consequently, a solicitor is not entitled to receive consideration if the ultimate payee could not have authorised him by a special authority, or where the instrument containing the receipt is not executed by the ultimate payee but his signature to it is forged⁵.

1 See the Law of Property Act 1925 s 69(1); and SALE OF LAND vol 42 (Reissue) PARA 315. Apart from the statutory provision, the possession of title deeds and the production of a deed is not sufficient authority for paying money to a solicitor (Jared v Walke (1902) 18 TLR 569 at 570), but possession of a deed containing a receipt may constitute an estoppel preventing the party giving the receipt denying that the solicitor was his solicitor to produce the deed and receive the money (see King v Smith [1900] 2 Ch 425; and DEEDS AND OTHER INSTRUMENTS vol 13 (2007 Reissue) PARA 224; and cf Jared v Clements (1903) 1 Ch 428, CA (forged receipt, which presumably was under hand only)).

2 Day v Woolwich Equitable Building Society (1888) 40 ChD 491 at 493.

3 See SALE OF LAND vol 42 (Reissue) PARA 315. It is submitted that the fact that the solicitor is not retained does not deprive the payer of protection unless there are special circumstances indicating that the solicitor has not in fact authority. What are special circumstances must vary with the particular case, but in Hope v Liddell (1855) 21 Beav 183 at 202, and Viney v Chaplin (1858) 2 De G & J 468 at 478-479, it is indicated that circumstances may justify the purchaser in insisting on paying the vendor direct or seeing to the application of the money, and it is to like circumstances that reference is made here. Cf Re Bellamy and Metropolitan Board of Works (1883) 24 ChD 387 at 397, CA, per Bagallay LJ.

As to the mode of paying the consideration see PARA 792; and SALE OF LAND vol 42 (Reissue) PARA 315.

5 See Jared v Walke (1902) 18 TLR 569; the fact that the reconveyance contained a receipt does not appear from the report, but it should have done so if it was in the common form.

788. Dealing with money payable into or under order of the court.

A solicitor having the conduct of a sale by the court has authority to receive the purchase money for the purpose of payment into court¹. However, where under a court order a receiver appointed by the court is directed to pay particular creditors, the solicitor for the creditors and the claimant cannot give the receiver a good discharge for the money².

789. General authority of solicitor on purchase of land.

A solicitor retained to act for a client who proposes to purchase land has no authority to bind his client in contract to buy land unless such authority has been expressly conferred upon the solicitor or is necessarily implicit in the terms of the retainer. In each case, therefore, where the extent of a solicitor's authority is in issue, the question is one of fact, namely what was the solicitor employed to do¹. The decided cases can be grouped under two heads: (1) those in which the solicitor is employed to prepare a formal document, that is, the contract, embodying terms agreed by the vendor and purchaser either directly with each other or through agents other than the solicitor²; and (2) those in which the solicitor is employed to carry through the transaction, that is to say, both to embody in a formal document the terms that are agreed and to conclude and arrange those terms on behalf of the client³. In the first class of case the solicitor has no authority to bind his client by contract, while in the second class of case he has such authority. Analogously, a solicitor's approval of a draft may either be an approval of its form or an approval of the terms embodied in it, or an approval both of its form and of the terms which are embodied in it⁴. Which is the correct reading of the word 'approved' in a particular case depends on the circumstances which may be proved by oral evidence.

Owing to the statutory requirement that a contract for the sale of land is in writing and is signed by the parties⁵, a further question arises, namely whether a solicitor is authorised to sign such a contract on his client's behalf, so as to render a contract orally concluded enforceable against his client⁶. A solicitor must be so authorised where he is employed to carry through a transaction of purchase; but in addition, if he is authorised to sign and deliver a particular document and that document, either alone or jointly with others, constitutes a contract which satisfies the statutory requirements, the solicitor's authority is effective for the purpose of creating a sufficient contract to render his client bound, even if neither the client nor the solicitor intended to do anything to make the contract enforceable against the client⁷. However, a solicitor who is instructed to deny the existence of a contract with which his client is charged has no authority to create a contract rendering it enforceable against his client⁸.

Although a solicitor has no implied authority to bind his client in contract to buy or sell land, the solicitor does have implied and ostensible authority to effect the exchange of contracts in such manner as he thinks fit, for example by each solicitor posting his client's part of the contract to the other solicitor, or by exchanging by telephone, whereupon each solicitor holds his client's part of the contract on behalf of the other, thus effecting constructive delivery of it⁹.

There is a conclusive presumption that a lawyer has authority from his client to deliver a deed when in the course of a conveyancing transaction¹⁰.

790. Holding of deposit on sale.

A solicitor acting for a vendor in a sale of property either by private treaty or by auction who receives a deposit in the ordinary way and without any statement in the contract that it is paid to him as stakeholder holds it in law merely as agent for the vendor and not as stakeholder¹. He must, therefore, pay it over to his client on demand². In the absence of facts giving rise to a contrary inference, where he is acting for both parties he is probably a stakeholder³. Solicitors who hold funds which are paid to them as stakeholders hold those funds as trustees for the client, whose property the funds remain at all times. Such funds are not held in a contractual or quasi-contractual capacity⁴.

791. Holding of mortgage money.

A mortgagee's solicitor is not authorised to receive the principal money secured by the mortgage, unless he is retained for a purpose necessarily involving such receipt¹. Thus, an authority to receive interest does not import a further authority to receive principal², nor is such an authority to be inferred from the retention of deeds or necessarily to be inferred from the fact that the solicitor has for some time past substantially managed the client's investments³. Where a mortgagee is selling in exercise of his power of sale, his solicitor, on producing a deed having the requisite receipt, will be authorised to receive the purchase money⁴. Where a mortgagor is selling with the concurrence of the mortgagee, it is expedient that the purchaser should not pay more than the sum due under the mortgage to the mortgagee's solicitor, even though he produces a conveyance containing a receipt and the mortgagor has no other solicitor acting for him, without ascertaining that the solicitor is in fact retained by the mortgagor as well as by the mortgagee⁵. A mortgagee who has received more than is due to him under his security upon a sale of the mortgaged property should satisfy himself that the balance is paid over to the subsequent mortgagee or mortgagor entitled to it, and will be negligent if he leaves the money in his solicitor's hands without inquiring whether the solicitor is in fact authorised to receive it for the subsequent mortgagee or the mortgagor⁶.

A solicitor who is acting for a mortgagee receives the mortgage money on bare trust from his mortgagee client as one incident of a wider commercial transaction involving agency; the depositing of money with the solicitor is but one aspect of the arrangements between the parties which for the most part are contractual and the circumstances under which the solicitor can part with money in client accounts are regulated by instructions given by the client and are not part of the trusts on which the property is held. Until the underlying conveyancing transaction is completed, the solicitor can be required to restore to the client account money wrongly paid away to a stranger; but that obligation ceases when the conveyancing transaction is completed and the client then has no right to have the solicitor's client account reconstituted as a trust fund⁷.

1 Thus, upon a reconveyance or discharge, the solicitor, by producing the deed containing a proper receipt, will be empowered to receive the mortgage money: see PARA 787, and cf the Law of Property Act 1925 ss 107(1), 113; and MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARAS 373, 468. 792. Accepting payments otherwise than in cash.

Unless specifically authorised to do so, a solicitor is not justified in accepting a payment by cheque or other negotiable instrument, since to be within the solicitor's general or statutory authority, payment must be made in cash¹. Where the solicitor accepts payments by cheque, he is protected if the cheque is duly met², but if it is dishonoured he is liable to make good the loss personally³. Nor is he authorised to accept payment by means of a settlement in account; such a settlement in account will not bind his client⁴. Thus, where, in winding up an estate, a solicitor has authority from the executors to receive from stockbrokers the purchase money of stock forming part of the estate, and instead of actually receiving the money he is given credit by the brokers in account with other transactions in exchange for the transfer duly executed by the executors, brokers (who knew the solicitor to be acting as such) are not discharged from their liability to pay the executors, notwithstanding any usage of the International Stock Exchange that a broker is bound only to recognise the person actually employing him⁵.

793. Investing clients' money and advising as to trust funds.

Normally, it is no part of a solicitor's business to receive clients' money for the purpose of laying it out in unspecified investments or otherwise¹ or to hold clients' money for a long period². However, it is a question of fact in each case, and where a firm negotiated loans and took shares for transmission to lenders as security for loans, a misappropriation by a partner of shares deposited for such a purpose was held to be an act for which the firm was liable³. On the other hand it is within the scope of a solicitor's business to advise trustees whether a particular mortgage or investment is one in which trust money can be invested without breach of trust, and the firm will be liable for the act or omission of a partner in allowing trustees to invest in a security which he should have known was unauthorised⁴.

794. Accepting notice.

A solicitor who generally acts for trustees has no authority, merely because he usually so acts, to receive notice of incumbrance on a share in an estate so as to render the trustees liable for negligence on the ground that they have dealt with the share subsequently without regard to the incumbrance, provided they have not personally had notice of it; on the other hand, the solicitor is not guilty of a breach of warranty of authority merely because he accepted the notice in good faith in the belief that he had such authority, for that is a misapprehension of law, not a misrepresentation of fact¹. Executors are not affected with notice of a claim against the estate which is known to their solicitor but not communicated by him to them or claimed in response to advertisements².

Any notice required or authorised to be given to a person under the insolvency legislation³ may be given instead to his solicitor but only if he has indicated that his solicitor is authorised to accept service on his behalf⁴.

Cf Singer v Trustee of the Property of Munro (a bankrupt) [1981] 3 All ER 215, [1981] 1 WLR 1358, where it was said to be a common fallacy that solicitors have implied authority on behalf of their clients to receive notices.

C. CONTENTIOUS BUSINESS

795. Requirement as to special authority.

A special authority is essential to entitle a solicitor either to commence an action in his client's name¹ or to appear for and represent him as defendant in an action², or to take part, on his behalf, in any proceedings³. It is, however, open at any time to a purported claimant to ratify the act of the solicitor who started the action, to adopt the proceedings and to instruct him to continue them⁴.

The authority is not retrospective so as to apply to acts done by the solicitor before the action was brought. If, therefore, a solicitor who afterwards appears for a client in a suit has, before action is brought, written a letter making an admission, the admission cannot be taken advantage of in the subsequent action without further proof that the client authorised the communication⁵.

Legal representatives who submit an application for permission to appeal on behalf of a client who has absconded may be regarded as having the actual or implied authority to do so⁶.

796. Effect of acting without authority.

The fact that a solicitor was not authorised to institute proceedings is not a defence to those proceedings¹ and, although in special circumstances the correct course may be for the court to strike out proceedings instituted without authority², the proper method of raising the question of want of authority is usually by an application to stay the proceedings³. Accordingly, if a solicitor takes, defends or continues proceedings without the authority of the litigant whom he purports to represent, those proceedings will be summarily stayed if the proceedings are instituted without authority, or the defence will be struck out if they are defended without authority⁴, on the application of a party by motion⁵ or summons⁶. Moreover, if proceedings were originally begun or defended with authority, but that authority is revoked and the claim or defence is continued by the solicitor while unauthorised, the position is similar with regard to the proceedings taken during the unauthorised period⁷. If the solicitor has been purporting to act for a claimant the order will direct him to pay the claimant's costs on the standard basis⁸ and also all costs which the claimant may have been ordered to pay to the defendant and the defendant's additional costs on the standard basis⁹. If the solicitor has been purporting to act for a defendant a similar converse order will be made as to costs¹⁰. The court has, however, a discretion, in some cases at any rate, to regularise the proceedings and permit them to continue¹¹. Thus, a litigant may by conduct waive his right to have proceedings stayed¹², and a purported claimant may adopt by ratification proceedings instituted without his authority¹³. Accordingly an application to visit the solicitor with costs, if it is to be made, should be made promptly¹⁴, although it may be made after notice of discontinuance has been given¹⁵. If costs are paid by the opposite party to the solicitor on the assumption that he had authority which in fact he did not have, they may be recovered back as money had and received¹⁶.

The solicitor may, further, in serious cases, be committed¹⁷ for taking proceedings in the name of a person without authority, and in gross cases, where there is fraud, his name may be struck off the roll¹⁸.

797. Acts authorised by retainer in litigation.

A solicitor whose name is on the record¹ is authorised:

- 1009 (1) to accept service of all documents which are not required to be served personally²;
- 1010 (2) to make formal written admissions in the course of proceedings for the purposes of those proceedings³;
- 1011 (3) to bind his client⁴ by a compromise of existing⁵ proceedings⁶ on terms which do not involve extraneous matters⁷, unless the client has limited his authority and has communicated that limitation to the other side⁸, and subject to the discretionary power of the court, if its intervention by making an order is required, to inquire into the circumstances and grant or withhold its intervention as it thinks fit⁹;
- 1012 (4) to refer the action to arbitration¹⁰;
- 1013 (5) to receive payment or tender¹¹ of debt¹², damages¹³ or costs¹⁴, except when the litigant or client is under disability¹⁵, or to a particular person¹⁶; and
- 1014 (6) generally to act as the client's authorised agent in all matters which may reasonably be expected to arise for decision in the proceedings¹⁷.

Accordingly, unless expressly authorised, the solicitor cannot bind his client by a compromise which extends to matters outside the action¹⁸, nor bind him to pay unusual expenses¹⁹, and is not authorised to commence substantially new and distinct proceedings such as interpleader proceedings after judgment²⁰, or to receive payment of the debt, damages or costs if his client is under disability or there is an order of the court for payment to particular persons or in a particular manner²¹. Fraud will invalidate acts done by the solicitor on the client's behalf which but for that fraud would bind the client²², and a retainer cannot confer on a solicitor authority to sign documents which by statute, rule or practice are required to be signed by the client personally²³.

1 Thus, the London agent is the proper person to be served: Petty v Daniel (1886) 34 ChD 172. A litigant's solicitor or agent should take steps promptly to ensure that his name appears on the record: see Hunt v Fineburg (1889) 22 QBD 259, CA.

2 See CPR 6.4(2); and CIVIL PROCEDURE.

3 See Blackburn Building Society v Cunliffe, Brooks & Co (1882) 22 ChD 61 at 72, CA. As to admissions in relation to children or protected persons see CPR 14.1(4); and CIVIL PROCEDURE. Admissions contrary to the facts cannot be made unless expressly so instructed: Groom v Crocker [1939] 1 KB 194, [1938] 2 All ER 394, CA.

4 Thus, although the client may be bound as against his opponent in litigation by reason of the ostensible authority conferred on the solicitor, the client will have his remedy against the solicitor: Fray v Voules (1859) 1 E & E 839. See also Waugh v HB Clifford & Sons Ltd [1982] Ch 374, [1982] 1 All ER 1095, CA, cited in PARA 786 note 1.

5 See Macaulay v Polley [1897] 2 QB 122, CA. Whether a solicitor has authority to compromise after judgment is not settled: see Lovegrove v White (1871) LR 6 CP 440; Re Debtor (No 1 of 1914), ex p Debtor v Petitioning Creditor [1914] 2 KB 758.

In considering these cases it is important to bear in mind that, while a solicitor or counsel may have ostensible authority to bind in contract his client to a particular compromise, neither solicitors nor counsel have power to bind the court to act in a particular way, so that if the compromise is one which involves the court in making an order (other than an order merely dismissing the action on the claimant's request), the want of authority may be brought to the court's notice at any time before the grant of its intervention is perfected, ie before the order granting that intervention has been passed and entered, and the court may refuse to permit the order to be perfected: see the cases cited in note 10. So, too, as a matter of policy or practice, when the order has been drawn up and entered, it cannot be discharged by such means on the ground of want of authority in solicitors or counsel, but nevertheless it may be set aside in another action: Ainsworth v Wilding [1896] 1 Ch 673. As to a solicitor's authority to compromise proceedings see Cordery's Law relating to Solicitors (7th Edn) 89-91. See also Waugh v HB Clifford & Sons Ltd [1982] Ch 374, [1982] 1 All ER 1095, CA.

Thus, proceedings for ancillary relief in matrimonial proceedings may be fairly considered to be necessary and proper proceedings, and to be part of the general proceedings on a divorce petition, that is to say, proceedings which the solicitor would be bound or at least entitled to conduct without a fresh retainer: Re Wingfield and Blew [1904] 2 Ch 665 at 682, CA. With limited exceptions¹, a solicitor must not act for a client if there is a conflict of interest². In particular a solicitor must not act for a client if there is a conflict of interest, or a significant risk of such a conflict of interest, between the interests of the client and the interests of the solicitor³. Nor may a solicitor provide alternative dispute resolution services where the solicitor or a person within his firm has acted as mediator or for any party⁴. There are also limited circumstances where a solicitor may act for both seller and buyer in a conveyancing transaction⁵.

The solicitor is under a duty of confidentiality to his client but is also under a duty to disclose all relevant information to his client⁶. Where there is a risk of breaching confidentiality there are limited circumstances where a solicitor may continue to act⁷.

TEXT AND NOTES 6, 7--Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 rr 4.02-4.05 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iii) Transactions between Solicitor and Client/A. IN GENERAL/799. General principles at common law.

799. General principles at common law.

In relation to matters occurring prior to the introduction of the Solicitors' Code of Conduct and other relevant rules¹, the following principles apply².

A solicitor³ who enters into a transaction with a client⁴, or on whom a client confers a substantial⁵ benefit other than the solicitor's proper remuneration⁶, by disposition inter vivos⁷, will not be able to uphold the transaction or will not be permitted to retain the benefit, if the transaction is called in question by the client⁸, unless the solicitor can prove to the satisfaction of the court that he disclosed all material facts within his knowledge to the client⁹, and that the transaction was effected by the client in the free exercise of his will and unaffected by any influence which the solicitor either in fact possessed or in law was deemed to possess¹⁰. The stringency of the burden of proof thus placed on the solicitor varies with the circumstances. In the case of a gift, the burden of proof is more difficult to discharge than in the case of a sale or purchase¹¹, and similarly where the client is young, the solicitor's duty to him if not stronger is at least more obvious¹². The relationship of solicitor and client is regarded in equity as a fiduciary relationship, and the rule of equity that a transaction inter vivos is presumed to have been procured by undue influence until the contrary is shown applies to transactions between a solicitor and his client¹³. Accordingly, the question in each case is not merely whether the client understood and intended what he actually did but rather how his intention was procured¹⁴, and decisions which show how the burden of proof may be discharged in the case of other fiduciary relationships are relevant when considering the position as between solicitor and client¹⁵.

Apart from this equitable doctrine, it is the duty of a solicitor, when contracting with his client for a sale or purchase or other transaction, to make full disclosure of all material circumstances known to the solicitor, and failure to make such disclosure may lead to the transaction being set aside¹⁶.

A transaction in relation to which the solicitor cannot discharge the burden of proof placed on him by the rule is voidable but is not void¹⁷. Thus, it can be confirmed by acquiescence or ratification when the solicitor's influence has ceased and the parties are on equal terms¹⁸, or it may be set aside against the solicitor or volunteers claiming under him but cannot be avoided as against purchasers for value unless they took with notice¹⁹. Rescission can only be obtained where restitution to the original position is possible²⁰.

1 I.e. the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 commenced on 1 July 2007; however, similar provisions were contained in the Solicitors' Practice Rules 1990 (see in particular rr 16D, 16E added on 25 April 2006). The Solicitors' Practice Rules 1990 are no longer in force: see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 25.01(2)(a); and PARA 829.

2 See the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 3.01(2)(b); and PARA 798.

3 The principle discussed here also applies to persons in a position analogous to that of a solicitor: see Huguenin v Baseley (1807) 14 Ves 273 (confidential agent); Broun v Kennedy (1863) 33 Beav 133 (affd (1864) 4 De GJ & Sm 217) (counsel); Tate v Williamson (1866) 2 Ch App 55 (person appointed by relative to advise young man). See also PARA 1185.

4 It has been said that the rule does not apply where the solicitor is not acting in the matter as solicitor for the client, but this is of little assistance (see Edwards v Meyrick (1842) 2 Hare 60 at 68-69), for in order to bring a case within this exception it is necessary for the court to know the circumstances and to be satisfied that from them no duty arose obliging the solicitor to advise the client in the matter, and it seems possible to predicate

this with reasonable certainty only where the solicitor and client were strangers: Montesquieu v Sandys (1811) 18 Ves 302 at 313; Holman v Loynes (1854) 4 De GM & G 270 at 280-281; Edwards v Williams (1863) 32 LJ Ch 763; Wright v Carter [1903] 1 Ch 27 at 53, CA; Allison v Clayhills (1907) 97 LT 709; Demerara Bauxite Co Ltd v Hubbard [1923] AC 673 at 675-676, PC; McMaster v Byrne [1952] 1 All ER 1362, PC. Moreover, the solicitor may be placed by circumstances in a position where he fails in his duty if he does not advise his client to take independent advice: see Willis v Barron [1902] AC 271 at 284, HL.

5 Trifling gifts are not within the rule unless bad faith can be proved: Rhodes v Bate (1866) 1 Ch App 252. Written acknowledgments of indebtedness in respect of statute-barred debts may constitute benefits: Lloyd v Coote and Ball [1915] 1 KB 242, DC.

6 See Savery v King (1856) 5 HL Cas 627; Tyrrell v Bank of London (1862) 10 HL Cas 26; Re Haslam and Hier-Evans [1902] 1 Ch 765, CA. In these cases, as in Tomson v Judge (1855) 3 Drew 306, the rule is so stated as to apply only if the solicitor obtained some benefit. See also Hatch v Hatch (1804) 9 Ves 292 at 297 ('a transaction . . . purporting to be bounty'). No doubt the rule does apply to such cases, but it applies also whether the solicitor has or has not actually obtained a benefit, for in the case of a purchase or sale the burden is on the solicitor to show that the transaction was fair and that he advised the client as diligently as he would have advised a stranger: see Tomson v Judge at 313; Holman v Loynes (1854) 4 De GM & G 270 at 283; Wright v Carter [1903] 1 Ch 27, CA; Demerara Bauxite Co Ltd v Hubbard [1923] AC 673, PC. Thus, if a transaction is challenged, it would not suffice for the solicitor to show only that he received no benefit in fact: Wright v Carter.

7 Dispositions by will are on a different footing: see PARA 810.

8 The client's rights pass to his assignee, personal representatives or trustee in bankruptcy: see MISREPRESENTATION AND FRAUD vol 31 (2003 Reissue) PARA 862.

9 See McMaster v Byrne [1952] 1 All ER 1362 at 1368-1369, PC. See also Hanson v Lorenz and Jones [1986] NLJ Rep 1088, CA where a solicitor was held not liable to account to the client for the profit from a joint venture arrangement where the client understood the terms and effect of the agreement and its terms were fair. A solicitor is under a duty to disclose to a client all information of which he is aware which is material to that client's matter regardless of the source of the information: Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 4.02. However this is subject to the duty of confidentiality (see PARA 740) and where such disclosure is prohibited by law, expressly excluded or where the solicitor reasonably believes that serious physical or mental injury will be caused to any person if the information is disclosed to a client: see r 4.02. Rule 4 also applies to an overseas practice: r 15.04.

For an illustration of excessive remuneration see Mearns v Knapp (1889) 37 WR 585. The solicitor's duty may continue after the relationship of solicitor and client in its strict sense has been discontinued: see McMaster v Byrne [1952] 1 All ER 1362 at 1368, PC, approving dictum of Parker J in Allison v Clayhills (1907) 97 LT 709 at 712.

It has been said that in the case of a gift the rule is absolute and that a gift over and above proper remuneration cannot be retained (Montesquieu v Sandys (1811) 18 Ves 302 at 313), but the law is not now so strict.

The point is of importance with regard to the need for independent advice; it has been said that a transaction of gift or of sale between solicitor and client cannot be upheld in the absence of competent independent advice: Rhodes v Bate (1866) 1 Ch App 252 at 257 (gift); see also Allcard v Skinner (1887) 36 ChD 145 at 181, CA (gift); Liles v Terry [1895] 2 QB 679, CA (gift); Powell v Powell [1900] 1 Ch 243 at 246 (gift); Wright v Carter [1903] 1 Ch 27 at 57 (gift), and at 60, CA (sale). It is submitted that in no case is it now essential that competent independent advice should have been given in order that a transaction of gift or of sale should be upheld: see Holman v Loynes (1854) 4 De GM & G 270 at 284; Readdy v Pendergast (1887) 56 LT 790, CA; Wright v Carter at 54-55; Re Coomber, Coomber v Coomber [1911] 1 Ch 174 (affd [1911] 1 Ch 723 at 726, CA); Inche Noriah v Shaik Allie Bin Omar [1929] AC 127 at 135, PC; Lancashire Loans Ltd v Black [1934] 1 KB 380 at 413, CA; Williams v Johnson [1937] 4 All ER 34, PC; McMaster v Byrne [1952] 1 All ER 1362 at 1369, PC; Re Brocklehurst's Estate, Hall v Roberts [1978] Ch 14, [1978] 1 All ER 767, CA. The giving to the client of competent independent advice is one means, and probably the best means, of ensuring that the client is emancipated from any possible influence from the solicitor, but it is not the only means. NOTES 1, 9--Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 rr 4.02, 25.01 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iii) Transactions between Solicitor and Client/A. IN GENERAL/800. Power to order solicitor to deliver cash account etc.

800. Power to order solicitor to deliver cash account etc.

Where the relationship of solicitor and client exists or has existed, the orders which the court may make against the solicitor, on the application¹ of the client or his personal representatives, include any of the following:

- 1015 (1) to deliver a bill or cash account;
- 1016 (2) to pay or deliver up any money or securities;
- 1017 (3) to deliver a list of the moneys or securities which the solicitor has in his possession or control on behalf of the applicant;
- 1018 (4) to pay into or lodge in court any such money or securities².

Where the solicitor alleges that he has a claim for costs against the applicant the court may make an order for the detailed assessment and payment of those costs and securing the payment of the costs or protecting any solicitor's lien³.

¹ An application for such an order must be made by a Part 8 claim form or, if the application is made in existing proceedings, by application notice in accordance with the CPR Pt 23: CPR 67.2(2).

B. GIFTS

801. Presumption of undue influence.

A gift¹ from a client to his solicitor is presumed to have been made by the client while under the undue influence of the solicitor². The mere position of the parties while the relationship of solicitor and client exists, and until such time as the binding force of the relationship may be taken to have ceased to exist³, renders it very difficult for the solicitor to retain a gift of any real and substantial intrinsic value if the transaction of gift is called in question⁴. Trifling gifts are not within the rule, unless bad faith can be proved⁵. Gifts or benefits to the solicitor's son⁶, or to his wife⁷, even though she may be a near relative, for example a niece of the client⁸, will equally be set aside⁹. The same principle applies where the solicitor is consulted, not strictly as a solicitor, but as a friend of the person consulting him. Thus, where a wife consults her husband's solicitor, she having no solicitor acting for her personally, whether she consults him as a friend or as a legal adviser his duty is the same while he allows her to consult him as if he were her solicitor alone, and, if on that footing he is placed in a position where duties conflict, he should insist that she should consult another solicitor who will be able to act independently on her behalf. If, therefore, while acting under the advice of the husband's solicitor in such circumstances, she makes a gift in favour of the solicitor or his son or other relative, the transaction will be set aside¹⁰.

Where the gift made is of an income-bearing character, such as houses let at a rental or stocks and shares which have earned dividends during the time that the gift remained unimpeached, the solicitor ordered to make restitution will have to account for and pay over to the donor any benefits received by him by virtue of the gift¹¹.

802. Accepting gifts from clients.

Where a client proposes to make a significant¹ lifetime gift or a gift on death to, or for the benefit of, a solicitor, any principal, owner or employee, or family member of any principal, owner or employee, of the solicitors' firm, the solicitor must advise the client to take independent advice about the gift, unless the client is a member of the beneficiary's family². If the client refuses the solicitor must stop acting for the client in relation to the gift³.

1 le the gift is of a significant amount, either in itself or having regard to the size of the client's estate and the reasonable expectations of the prospective beneficiaries.

802 Accepting gifts from clients

TEXT AND NOTES 2, 3--Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 3.04 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iii) Transactions between Solicitor and Client/B. GIFTS/803. When a gift to a solicitor is valid.

803. When a gift to a solicitor is valid.

To entitle the solicitor to retain a gift¹ from a client he must show either that it was made at a time when not only the relationship of solicitor and client had ceased² but the influence might rationally be supposed to have ceased also³; or, if it was made while the relationship subsisted, (1) that nonetheless the client should be considered as being wholly free from any influence on the part of the solicitor in relation to the transaction of gift, which can best be done by showing that the gift was a reasonable one and that the client had competent independent advice from another solicitor who was fully informed of all the circumstances⁴; or (2) that it was affirmed by the client after the relationship had ceased⁵. A gift made during the relationship is voidable only, and acquiescence may be sufficient proof that the gift has been affirmed, provided that the solicitor is able to satisfy the court:

- 1019 (a) that the client's conduct amounted to an unequivocal act of acquiescence⁶;
- 1020 (b) that the act of acquiescence took place after the relationship had entirely ceased⁷; and
- 1021 (c) that the client was fully aware of his right to avoid the gift⁸.

The statutes of limitation do not operate to shift the burden of proof from the shoulders of the solicitor to those of the client seeking to impeach the gift, and he must therefore be careful to preserve all the necessary evidence to enable him to support it⁹.

1 Mere gifts are not chargeable to income tax unless they form part of the emoluments of an office or employment or the profits from a trade, profession or vocation: see INCOME TAXATION vol 23(1) (Reissue) PARA 9; and Bloom v Kinder (Inspector of Taxes) (1958) 38 TC 77, where an ex gratia payment to a solicitor by a company for which he was not acting professionally was held not to be liable to tax.

C. PURCHASES AND SALES

804. General principles at common law.

In relation to matters occurring prior to the introduction of the Solicitors' Code of Conduct and other relevant rules¹, the following principles apply².

Where a client sells property and the solicitor acting for him in relation to the sale himself buys it, the transaction can be avoided by the client, however fair or advantageous to him it in fact was, if the solicitor has not disclosed that he is the purchaser³. Moreover, the sale may be set aside or specific performance refused⁴ if the solicitor has not fully disclosed to the client all relevant information known to the solicitor⁵. A similar principle applies where a client purchases property and the solicitor acting for him in relation to the purchase sells his own property⁶.

There is no absolute rule that a solicitor cannot sell property to, or buy property from, a client⁷, but, in order that the transaction may be upheld if it is challenged, the solicitor should preserve such evidence as will enable him to show that the client was advised in the transaction as diligently as he would have been if he had been contracting with a stranger, and that the transaction was as advantageous to the client as it would have been if he had been contracting on reasonable and equal terms with a stranger⁸. For practical purposes the position may be stated thus⁹: a transaction of sale or purchase between a solicitor and his client will be upheld if the solicitor can prove (1) that he made full disclosure to the client of all relevant information known to the solicitor; (2) that the price was fair¹⁰; and (3) that the client was advised by an independent solicitor to whom all circumstances were disclosed¹¹. Where these requirements are satisfied a transaction will not be set aside because the consideration was costs already incurred¹² or because the solicitor resells at a profit¹³.

1 I.e. the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 commenced on 1 July 2007; however, similar provisions were contained in the Solicitors' Practice Rules 1990 (see in particular r 6 commencing on 12 January 2007 and rr 16D, 16E added on 25 April 2006). The Solicitors' Practice Rules 1990 are no longer in force: see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 25.01(2)(a); and PARA 829.

2 See the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 3.01(2)(b); and PARA 798.

3 McPherson v Watt (1877) 3 App Cas 254 at 264, 272, HL; Moody v Cox and Hatt [1917] 2 Ch 71 at 80, CA. This principle is a general one, illustrating the rule that an agent must not place himself in a position where his interests and his duties conflict: see AGENCY vol 1 (2008) PARA 89. Similarly, since a mortgagee cannot sell to himself, he may not sell to the solicitor acting for him on the sale: see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 466.

4 See Imeson v Lister (1920) 149 LT Jo 446 (failure to disclose name of purchaser which might have affected the price, but was not the solicitor's name).

The consequences of taking a secret commission are discussed in PARA 819. See also AGENCY vol 1 (2008) PARA 91 et seq.

6 Tyrrell v Bank of London (1862) 10 HL Cas 26; Blair v Martin [1929] NZLR 225. The solicitor's clerk may be within the rule: Blair v Martin.

7 Edwards v Meyrick (1842) 2 Hare 60; Cane v Lord Allen (1814) 2 Dow 289, HL. See also PARA 799.

8 It is submitted that the principle thus stated is the true principle both of the early and of the later cases: see Gibson v Jeyes (1801) 6 Ves 266 at 271; Tomson v Judge (1855) 3 Drew 306 at 313; Pisani v A-G for Gibraltar (1874) LR 5 PC 516 at 536; Readdy v Pendergast (1886) 55 LT 767 (affd as varied (1887) 56 LT 790, CA); Demerara Bauxite Co Ltd v Hubbard [1923] AC 673 at 682, PC. Cf McPherson v Watt (1877) 3 App Cas 254 at 266, HL; and see generally PARA 799.

9 Wright v Carter [1903] 1 Ch 27, CA. Cf PARA 799 note 15. The requirement of independent advice may not strictly be justifiable in law as a necessary requirement, but in practice it is certainly expedient.

10 In determining whether the price paid was a fair one, the circumstances affecting the value of the property at the time of the purchase and known to the parties are alone taken into consideration, and the mere fact that its value greatly increased subsequently will not vitiate the transaction. See the cases cited in notes 12-13.

11 Thus the transaction will be vitiated where it is shown that the solicitor-purchaser was aware of a neglect of duty on the part of the vendor's new adviser, or that the solicitor-purchaser withheld or suppressed material information from such new adviser: Gibbs v Daniel (1862) 4 Giff 1. 805. Particular considerations.

A purchase of property by the client from the solicitor cannot be upheld if the client pays more than its fair market value¹, or if the solicitor conceals the fact that the property which the client is purchasing is his own². A sale by the client to the solicitor will equally be set aside by the court where the solicitor purchases the property at an undervalue³, although the solicitor need not disclose matters of speculation equally within his own and his client's knowledge⁴. Other circumstances to be taken into consideration are the fact that the client is in difficulties⁵; or the non-payment of the purchase money, the client having only the personal security of the solicitor⁶; or the omission from the contract of terms showing a profit to the solicitor⁷; or the haste with which the sale is completed⁸. The same principle applies to the case of a purchase by the solicitor from the trustee of a bankrupt client where he makes use of knowledge acquired while acting for the client; he cannot be allowed to retain, as against the trustee, an advantage obtained by him in a purchase by means of the knowledge which he has gained while acting as solicitor to the bankrupt⁹.

806. Proof of payment by solicitor of purchase price.

Between himself and his client the solicitor must be prepared to prove by evidence other than a receipt in or indorsed on the deed that the purchase money has been paid by him¹. However, as between the client and successors in title of the solicitor a receipt clause in, or a receipt indorsed on, the deed will estop the client from denying payment of the purchase money if the successor in title is a purchaser who bought for valuable consideration, not being a nominal consideration in money, and without notice that the money was not paid², and the fact that the purchaser knew that the solicitor bought from his client is not sufficient notice to disentitle the purchaser to this protection³.

807. Sale by order of the court.

A solicitor¹ who, under an order of the court², has the conduct of a sale by auction, or who represents any of the parties to the action in which the order is made³, may not bid for the property without the leave of the court⁴, and, except in special circumstances⁵, without the consent of the parties interested⁶. In applying for leave to bid, it is the solicitor's duty to be honest and straightforward in all statements relevant to the duty which the court has to perform in approving the transaction, whether such statements are made voluntarily or in answer to questions, or arise out of the terms of any proposal or preliminary agreement⁷. In the absence of any request for information, he is not bound to lay before the court all the information in his possession. However, if he purports to give the court information on any particular subject with a view to guiding its discretion and obtaining its approval, he is bound to lay before it all the material information which he possesses on that particular subject⁸.

The leave to bid puts an end to the solicitor's disability to purchase on account of his mere position of solicitor on the record for any of the parties. If, therefore, the auction fails he may, under the same leave, bid for and purchase the property by private treaty⁹.

1 This includes his partner: Price v Moxon (1754) cited in 2 Ves at 54.

2 As to sales by order of the court see CPR 40.15-40.19; and SALE OF LAND vol 42 (Reissue) PARAS 133-136. The same principle applies to the purchase of a bankrupt's property by the solicitor of the trustee: Ex p James (1803) 8 Ves 337.

However, if the sale is to be set aside, the question of concealment or fraud is more important than that of adequacy of price: see Price v Moxon (1754) cited in 2 Ves at 54; Watson v Birch (1793) 2 Ves 51 at 54.

D. MORTGAGES

808. Mortgage to solicitor.

In relation to matters occurring prior to the introduction of the Solicitors' Code of Conduct and other relevant rules¹, the following principles apply².

A solicitor is not prohibited from taking security from his client for money advanced, or for costs already due³ or to become due⁴. Indeed, a voidable purchase may be carried into partial effect as a mortgage for the amount of the purchase money⁵. The validity of any mortgage given by the client is governed by the same principles as govern the validity of a sale by the client⁶. The transaction must be in every way a fair transaction, and the solicitor must not reserve for himself any unusual advantage by the form of the mortgage deed⁷ unless fully explained to the client⁸. Thus, the rate of interest charged must not be excessive⁹, and the ordinary right of redemption must not be fettered or restricted¹⁰. Powers to consolidate¹¹, or to sell immediately on default¹², should not be reserved without adequate explanation. If a mortgage cannot be maintained in its entirety the security will nevertheless be considered as valid for the amount due with interest¹³ and, if excessive powers have been exercised, the solicitor may be made liable in damages for resulting loss to the client¹⁴, or the exercise of powers conferred by the mortgage may be restrained pending ascertainment of the amount actually due although, it seems, these powers are valid¹⁵.

1 le the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 commenced on 1 July 2007; however, similar provisions were contained in the Solicitors' Practice Rules 1990 (see in particular r 6 commencing on 12 January 2007 and rr 16D, 16E added on 25 April 2006). The Solicitors' Practice Rules 1990 are no longer in force: see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 25.01(2)(a); and PARA 829.

A solicitor who pays off his client's mortgage may be deemed to have done so as agent for his client and, although receiving rents, not to be accountable as mortgagee in possession: Ward v Carttar (1865) LR 1 Eq 29.

5 Pearson v Benson (1860) 28 Beav 598. Cf Re Riddell, Public Trustee v Riddell as reported in [1936] 2 All ER 1600, where solicitors who were carrying through a purchase for a client who became incapable themselves temporarily found the purchase money, and were held to have a lien on the property (by virtue, perhaps, of possession of the deeds) for the amount.

6 See Lawless v Mansfield (1841) 1 Dr & War 557 at 600; and PARA 799. The position is different if the client is giving security as the price of indulgence from his creditor, the solicitor, who then may make his own terms: Johnson v Fesemeyer (1858) 3 De G & J 13; Pooley's Trustee v Whetham (1886) 33 ChD 111, CA. To such cases the rule dealt with in the text does not apply, for they are not ordinary mortgage transactions. A mortgage may be set aside for fraud (Ward v Sharp (1884) 53 LJ Ch 313), or pressure and undue influence (Walmesley v Booth (1741) 2 Atk 25 at 29-30). For the position with regard to proof of payment of the sum advanced, and estoppel of the mortgagor in favour of purchasers see MORTGAGE vol 77 (2010) PARA 381. 809. Mortgage to client.

The same principles as apply on a mortgage to a solicitor¹ apply where a solicitor borrows from his client. In the preparation of any mortgage or security on behalf of the client, great care should be taken that there is no departure from the usual form in favour of the solicitor, at any rate unless the departure is fully explained to, and is assented to by, the client². The solicitor's real position at the time should also be communicated to the client³; and even in a transaction of release by which a subsequent security of the solicitor's own will become more valuable, the same full disclosure should be made⁴. A solicitor should not rely on an implied authority to sign the acceptance of an offer of a mortgage on behalf of a client; the solicitor ought, in such a case, to ensure that he has express authority to sign on behalf of his client. When a document is signed by the solicitor on behalf of the client, the mortgagee ought to be advised of the capacity in which the solicitor signed the document⁵.

E. WILLS

810. Solicitor as beneficiary under a will.

In relation to matters occurring prior to the introduction of the Solicitors' Code of Conduct and other relevant rules¹, the following principles apply².

A solicitor is allowed to take benefits under wills made by him for his clients³. In order to be permitted to take a relatively large benefit⁴ under a will which he has been instrumental in preparing or procuring⁵, he must, however, be able to show: (1) that the testator was capable of making a will; (2) that the testator knew and approved of its contents; and (3) that there was nothing in the way of undue advantage taken or influence exercised by the solicitor⁶. In every case honesty and prudence suggest that the client should be sent to another solicitor acting quite independently from the solicitor who is to receive the benefit, and that that independent solicitor should preserve a complete record of the instructions given to him by the client and of the advice given when such instructions were taken⁷. Where a solicitor prepares a will under which he is sole executor, this is by itself sufficient to induce the court to appoint a receiver if a suit is pending as to the validity or meaning of the will⁸.

1 The Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 commenced on 1 July 2007; however, similar provisions were contained in the Solicitors' Practice Rules 1990 (see in particular rr 16D, 16E added on 25 April 2006). The Solicitors' Practice Rules 1990 are no longer in force: see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 25.01(2)(a); and PARA 829.

4 The comparative amount is important: see Barry v Butlin (1838) 2 Moo PCC 480 at 485.

5 There is a general principle that any person who is instrumental in preparing or procuring a will under which he takes a large benefit may be called upon to show not only that the will was read over to a testator of sound mind and understanding who approved it by subsequently signing it, but also the righteousness of the transaction: Fulton v Andrew (1875) LR 7 HL 448 at 472 per Lord Hatherley. The fact that the person benefiting was the testator's solicitor is no doubt a relevant fact and would cause the court to take a strict view of the transaction, but the doctrine of presumed undue influence does not apply: see Craig v Lamoureux [1920] AC 349 at 356, PC. Cf Steward v MacLaren 1920 SC (HL) 146 at 153 per Lord Dunedin.

810 Solicitor as beneficiary under a will

NOTE 1--Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 25.01 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iii) Transactions between Solicitor and Client/F. SOLICITOR AS TRUSTEE/811. General rule as to profit costs.

F. SOLICITOR AS TRUSTEE

811. General rule as to profit costs.

A solicitor-trustee acting on behalf of a trust estate¹ is not, in the absence of a clause giving him that power in the will or settlement under which he is trustee, entitled to charge or recover anything from the trust estate for profit costs². Even where costs due in respect of work done by him on behalf of the trust estate have been paid to him, he must account to the trust estate for such portion of them as represents profit³. This principle applies to the profit costs of a firm of solicitors which is retained by a trustee who is a solicitor and a partner in the firm⁴, and to the case of a solicitor-trustee⁵ who employs an independent solicitor, including a London agent⁶, to do work on behalf of his trust estate on agency terms, as regards any profit which the solicitor-trustee may make by reason of such bargain. Where, however, the solicitor is acting for a beneficiary in an action he is allowed to keep his profit charges even though the costs are paid out of the trust estate⁷.

1 As to the charges of a solicitor appointed a trustee in bankruptcy see the Insolvency Rules 1986, SI 1986/1925, r 6.139(3); and BANKRUPTCY AND INDIVIDUAL INSOLVENCY vol 3(2) (2002 Reissue) PARA 352.

However, the court has jurisdiction to direct that remuneration be allowed, although this power will only be used sparingly and in exceptional cases: Re Worthington, ex p Leighton v Macleod [1954] 1 All ER 677 at 678-679, [1954] 1 WLR 526 at 528 per Upjohn J. Under the general law a trustee is also entitled to remuneration where he has expressly so agreed with the beneficiary before accepting the trust, or where the trust property is in another country whose law allows him remuneration: see TRUSTS vol 48 (2007 Reissue) PARA 930 et seq. Exception to general rule.

812. Exception to general rule.

An exception to the general rule that a solicitor-trustee is not entitled to profit costs¹ exists where a solicitor-trustee acts for himself and others who are defendants in an action for administration of the trust property, and the costs have not been increased by the solicitor-trustee so acting beyond what they would have been if he had acted for such co-defendants alone. In such a case the solicitor-trustee is allowed his full costs of having represented the co-defendants for whom he has acted². This exception has been said to be unsound in principle³, and it will probably not be extended. It has been applied to a case where the solicitor-trustee and his co-trustee were respondents to an application for the maintenance of a minor⁴, but it does not apply where a solicitor is a liquidator, even though by virtue of such office he stands in a fiduciary capacity⁵.

813. Express provision for profit costs.

The instrument creating a trust may give the solicitor, in spite of the fact that he is a trustee, the right to charge and receive payment of his profit costs¹, and if it does so the solicitor's co-trustees may have his bill taxed (now assessed)². The extent of this right depends upon the language of the instrument under which the solicitor acts³. The words used may be wide enough to entitle the solicitor to charge for all business done by him on behalf of the trust estate, whether it falls within the usual course of a solicitor's business or not⁴. On the other hand, the instrument may empower him to make only the usual professional charges; in this case the allowance will be strictly limited to that kind of work which a solicitor would in the ordinary course of business be necessarily employed by a client to do for him⁵. In preparing the instrument under which he is to act, the solicitor ought not to insert the provision enabling him to charge for non-professional business in the absence of express instructions to that effect from his client⁶.

1 See generally TRUSTS vol 48 (2007 Reissue) PARA 930 et seq; WILLS. In the case of a will the solicitor cannot charge profit costs if the estate is insolvent, since the provision enabling him to do so is in effect a legacy of profit costs (Re White, Pennell v Franklin [1898] 2 Ch 217, CA), although even if the estate is insolvent he may be allowed remuneration by the court in proper cases (Re Wright, ex p Wood (1959) 109 L Jo 170). If the estate is insufficient to pay legacies in full, his costs must abate: Re Brown, Wace v Smith [1918] WN 118; O'Higgins v Walsh [1918] 1 IR 126. Moreover, by attesting a will, a solicitor forfeits his right to charge for his services if he is appointed an executor or trustee by that will (see the Wills Act 1837 s 15; Re Trotter [1899] 1 Ch 764), but not if he is only appointed subsequently (Re Royce's Will Trusts, Tildesley v Tildesley [1959] Ch 626, [1959] 3 All ER 278, CA). He is, however, entitled to out-of-pocket costs: Re Shuttleworth, Lilley v Moore (1911) 55 Sol Jo 366. Where property held under a trust instrument containing a charging clause is subjected to statutory trusts under the Law of Property Act 1925, the solicitor-trustee is entitled to charge for work done in the execution of those statutory trusts: Re Pedley, Wallace v Wallace [1927] 2 Ch 168. (iv) Solicitor's Obligations towards his Client

814. General principles.

The obligations of a solicitor towards his client¹ may be viewed from two aspects, that of equity and that of the common law. In equity the relationship of solicitor and client is recognised as a fiduciary relationship² and carries with it obligations on the solicitor's part to act with strict fairness and openness towards his client. Failure to fulfil this obligation renders a solicitor liable to make compensation in respect of any resulting loss to his client³. By the common law a solicitor's retainer imposes on him an obligation to be skilful and careful⁴. Failure to fulfil this obligation may lead to liability in contract⁵, whether he is acting for reward or gratuitously⁶, and whether he has or has not a practising certificate in force at the time⁷, or to liability in tort for negligence⁸.

A solicitor, like any other individual, is liable for his wrongful acts, and if the circumstances justify the charge he may be made liable to his client for libel⁹ or wrongful interference with goods¹⁰. So, too, when acting as agent for his client he is under the obligations ordinarily imposed by the law of agency upon an agent; for example, he is bound to allow his client to inspect documents relating to an action in which the solicitor acted for the client¹¹.

1 In this connection it is often important, particularly where insurance companies are concerned, to bear in mind that the solicitor's client is the person whom the solicitor represents, ie, in litigation, the party for whom the solicitor is entered on the record as solicitor, and that person is not necessarily the same person as he who is responsible for the solicitor's remuneration: see Adams v London Improved Motor Coach Builders [1921] 1 KB 495, CA; Luck v Meyler (1928) 72 Sol Jo 337; Re Crocker, Re Taxation of Costs [1936] Ch 696 at 701, [1936] 2 All ER 899 at 902-903; Groom v Crocker [1939] 1 KB 194, [1938] 2 All ER 394, CA. 4 A solicitor must put at his client's disposal not only his skill but also his knowledge so far as is relevant: Spector v Ageda [1973] Ch 30, [1971] 3 All ER 417. As to the solicitor's obligations to third parties see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 10. When a solicitor acting for his client becomes aware of a potential risk to him in relation to which he has not been expressly instructed, he is under a duty to inform his client of that risk: Credit Lyonnais SA v Russell Jones & Walker (a firm) [2002] EWHC 1310 (Ch), [2003] Lloyd's Rep PN 7. A solicitor must consider at the outset whether a client is eligible for legal aid: Truex (a firm) v Kitchin [2007] EWCA Civ 618, [2007] 2 FLR 1203, [2007] Fam Law 903.

815. Standards of conduct; obligations imposed by the Code.

The Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 places duties on a solicitor to ensure that clients are provided with relevant information¹. A solicitor must:

- 1022 (1) identify clearly the client's objective in relation to the work to be done for the client²;
- 1023 (2) give the client a clear explanation of the issues involved and the options available to the client³;
- 1024 (3) agree with the client the next steps to be taken⁴; and
- 1025 (4) keep the client informed of progress, unless otherwise agreed⁵.

A solicitor must at the outset and, as necessary, during the course of the matter:

- 1026 (a) agree an appropriate level of service⁶;
- 1027 (b) explain his responsibilities⁷;
- 1028 (c) explain the client's responsibilities⁸;
- 1029 (d) ensure that the client is given the details of the person dealing with the matter and the name of the person with overall supervision in writing⁹;
- 1030 (e) explain any limitations or conditions arising from any relationship with a third party which affect the steps the solicitor can take on the client's behalf¹⁰.

The client must also be given the best information in writing about the likely overall cost of a matter both at the outset and, when appropriate, as the matter progresses¹¹.

816. Standards of conduct; obligations imposed by the court.

A solicitor is under a professional obligation to observe the standard of conduct required of members of his profession and to conform to the disciplinary regulations applicable to all solicitors¹. These obligations are not enforceable by the client for his own benefit, but a failure to observe them will subject the solicitor to the possibility of punitive action at the instance perhaps of the client². So, too, a solicitor is under obligations to the court as its officer, and these obligations may be enforced in proceedings before the court and may result in compensation being made to the client, although in principle these obligations are not owed by the solicitor to the client but are obligations the observance of which is required of a solicitor by the court before which he practises³.

SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iv) Solicitor's Obligations towards his Client/A. IN GENERAL/817. Common law position of solicitor acting for opposing interests.

817. Common law position of solicitor acting for opposing interests.

In relation to matters occurring prior to the introduction of the Solicitors' Code of Conduct and other relevant rules¹, the following principles apply².

A solicitor who is or has been retained by a client is under an obligation not to disclose confidential information which has come to his knowledge as solicitor for the client³, and, like any other agent but in a higher degree because of his position as an officer of the court and the privileges which the law allows to legal professional confidence, he is bound to observe the utmost good faith towards his client⁴. The court will grant an injunction to prevent any breach of these obligations⁵ and will award damages for an actual breach⁶, but an injunction will not be granted unless mischief will probably flow from the acts which it is sought to restrain⁷. There is, however, no general rule prohibiting a solicitor who has acted in a particular matter for one of the parties from acting subsequently in the same matter for the opposite party, although where a solicitor owes a duty to someone other than a particular client which conflicts with his duty to that client, he is not thereby relieved of any duties to the client⁸. Where a partner in a firm of solicitors which has acted for one party in litigation moves to a new firm and one of the opposing parties then wishes to employ his services as a solicitor, the burden is on that partner to prove that there is no real risk that he has any relevant confidential information which makes it improper for his services to be so employed⁹.

In proceedings of a purely friendly or formal description, where there is no real conflict of interests, a solicitor may properly represent different parties, but as soon as any conflict of interests arises it is the solicitor's duty to cease to represent any party whose interests conflict with those of his other client¹⁰. Thus, where a solicitor has been representing trustees and a minor and the question of compromising the minor's claim arises, the solicitor should arrange for the minor to be separately represented¹¹. The same principle applies in bankruptcy proceedings in regard to the interests of the trustee, the creditors and the bankrupt¹², and, in the management of the affairs of a mentally disordered person, in regard to the interests of his receiver and adverse claimants¹³. So, too, a solicitor should not be appointed receiver in other cases if he represents persons whose interest is to check the receiver's accounts¹⁴, and a solicitor under-sheriff cannot act for a claimant against the execution creditor in interpleader proceedings¹⁵.

A solicitor may only act for both seller and buyer in conveyancing, property selling and mortgage related services under certain circumstances¹⁶. Where the property to be sold is jointly owned, a solicitor instructed by one joint owner must ascertain that he has the other joint owner's authority to act¹⁷.

Where a solicitor does act for both mortgagor and mortgagee, he owes a duty to both clients¹⁸.

1 I.e. the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 commenced on 1 July 2007; however, similar provisions were contained in the Solicitors' Practice Rules 1990 (see in particular r 6 commencing on 12 January 2007 and rr 16D, 16E added on 25 April 2006). UPDATE

814-819 In general

Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 Guidance to r 2 note 2, rr 3, 15, 25.01 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iv) Solicitor's Obligations towards his Client/A. IN GENERAL/818. Conflict of interests under the Code.

818. Conflict of interests under the Code.

A solicitor must not act if there is a conflict of interest¹. However a solicitor or the solicitor's firm may act for two or more clients in relation to a matter in situations of conflict or possible conflict if:

- 1031 (1) the different clients have a substantial common interest in relation to that matter or a particular aspect of it²; and
- 1032 (2) all the clients have given in writing their informed consent to the solicitor or the firm acting³.

A solicitor's firm may act for two or more clients in relation to a matter in situations of conflict or possible conflict if:

- 1033 (a) the clients are competing for the same asset which, if attained by one client, will make that asset unattainable to the other client or clients⁴;
- 1034 (b) there is no other conflict, or significant risk of conflict, between the interests of any of the clients in relation to that matter⁵;
- 1035 (c) the clients have confirmed in writing that they want the solicitor's firm to act in the knowledge that the firm acts, or may act, for one or more other clients who are competing for the same asset⁶; and
- 1036 (d) unless the clients specifically agree, no individual acts for, or is responsible for the supervision of, more than one of those clients⁷.

It must be reasonable in all the circumstances for the solicitor or the firm to act when acting in accordance with heads (1), (2), (a)-(d) above⁸.

If a solicitor or his firm is already acting for more than one client in a matter and a conflict arises relating to that matter the solicitor or the firm may only continue to act for one of the clients providing the duty of confidentiality owed to the other client is not put at risk⁹.

1 Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 3.01(1). There is a conflict of interest if:

- 135 (1) the solicitor or his firm owes separate duties to act in the best interests of two or more clients in relation to the same or related matters and those duties conflict or there is a significant risk that those duties may conflict (r 3.01(2)(a)); or
- 136 (2) the solicitor's duty to act in the best interests of any client in relation to a matter conflicts or there is a significant risk that it may conflict with the solicitor's interests in relation to that or a related matter (which includes any other matter which involves the same asset or liability) (r 3.01(2)(b)).

A solicitor must decline to act where he, a member of his family, or a principal, owner or employee of his firm holds some public office or appointment as a result of which:

- 137 (a) a conflict of interests, or a significant risk of a conflict, arises (r 3.05(a));
- 138 (b) the public might reasonably conclude that the solicitor, or his firm, had been able to make use of the office or appointment for the advantage of the client (r 3.05(b));

139 (c) the solicitor's ability to advise the client properly and impartially is inhibited (r 3.05(c)).

A solicitor who provides alternative dispute resolution must not:

140 (i) advise or act for any party in respect of a dispute in which the solicitor or any person within his firm is acting, or has acted, as mediator (r 3.06(a));

141 (ii) provide alternative dispute resolution services in connection with a matter in which the solicitor or any person within his firm has acted for any party (r 3.06(b));

142 (iii) provide alternative dispute resolution services where the solicitor or any person within his firm has acted for any of the parties in issues not relating to the mediation, unless that has been disclosed to the parties and they consent (r 3.06(c)).

The Solicitors Regulation Authority does not have the power to waive rr 3.01-3.05: r 3.23

There are also several rules that apply in relation to conveyancing or property selling services: see rr 3.07-3.22, 18.03. Rule 3 applies to an overseas practice: see r 15.03. However rr 3.07-3.22 do not apply if the land in question is situated outside England and Wales: see r 15.03.

143 (1) draw all the relevant issues to the attention of the clients before agreeing to act or, where already acting, when the conflict arises or as soon as is reasonably practicable, and in such a way that the clients concerned can understand the issues and the risks involved (r 3.02(4)(a));

144 (2) have a reasonable belief that the clients understand the relevant issues (r 3.02(4)(b)); and

819. Secret profits.

A solicitor must not, without the knowledge of his client, make any profit or receive any benefit other than his professional remuneration from the transaction which he is retained to carry through¹, and any solicitor who receives a commission from the other party must account for it to his client unless he has his client's permission to keep it². Moreover, the acceptance of a secret profit, or an attempt to obtain one, may be a criminal offence³ and amount to professional misconduct⁴. Thus, if a solicitor who is instructed to effect an insurance policy on behalf of his client receives from the insurers an agency commission, he must account for it to his client in the absence of an agreement between them to the contrary⁵, the burden of establishing which will be on the solicitor⁶.

As to what constitutes 'a commission' see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 guidance notes 53-55. 146 (1) the client has been told of the commission and has agreed that the solicitor or the firm may keep the commission (r 15.02(2)(a)(i)); or 147 (2) in all the circumstances (including the law governing the retainer and the prevailing custom of lawyers in the jurisdiction) it is not reasonable to pay the commission to the client (r 15.02(2)(a)(ii), (b)).

814-819 In general

Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 Guidance to r 2 note 2, rr 3, 15, 25.01 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iv) Solicitor's Obligations towards his Client/B. POSSESSION OF LEGAL SKILL AND KNOWLEDGE/820. Liability for negligence.

B. POSSESSION OF LEGAL SKILL AND KNOWLEDGE

820. Liability for negligence.

A solicitor holds himself out to his clients as having adequate skill and knowledge¹ properly to conduct all business that he undertakes, whether contentious² or non-contentious³. He owes a duty to his client both in contract and in tort⁴, and he may be liable to a third person for the tort of negligence⁵. Where the solicitor is in breach of his contractual duty to his client, or where he fails to use proper care and his client or a third person, where he owes a duty of care to that third person⁶, suffers loss⁷ as a result, he is liable in damages⁸ even if the claim in negligence is for purely financial loss⁹. The solicitor's contractual duties to his client may, in some instances, be continuing duties, so that the limitation period¹⁰ runs¹¹ from the date when the obligation becomes impossible of performance or when the client elects to treat the continued non-performance as a repudiation of the contract¹².

A solicitor forfeits his right to receive costs for work done by him which is useless as a result of his negligence¹³.

1 The fact that a case giving guidance to solicitors as to the performance of their duties was not reported in any major series of law reports is a factor in favour of the solicitor: Pearson v Pearson (Queen's Proctor showing cause) [1971] P 16, [1969] 3 All ER 323. As to a solicitor's duty of care to a prospective client see Crossan v Ward Bracewell [1986] NLJ Rep 849. As to the solicitor's duty to instruct counsel see Re A (A Minor) [1988] Fam Law 339, CA. The precise nature of the solicitor's duty depends on the client's experience: RP Howard Ltd and Richard Alan Witchell v Woodman Matthews & Co [1983] BCLC 117.

2 A solicitor is not, however, liable in negligence in contentious business circumstances where counsel, if employed, would have enjoyed immunity from suit: see Rondel v Worsley [1969] 1 AC 191, [1967] 3 All ER 993, HL; Saif Ali v Sydney Mitchell & Co (a firm) [1980] AC 198, [1978] 3 All ER 1033, HL. Where a solicitor in a small country town represents a legally aided client with respect to a comparatively small claim, the court should not impose on him too stringent a standard of care: Balamoan v Holden & Co [1999] All ER (D) 566, (1999) Independent, 15 June, CA. A solicitor has a duty of care to inform of any potential risk to his client that he is aware of, even where he has not been expressly instructed in relation to the risk: Credit Lyonnais SA v Russell Jones & Walker [2002] EWHC 1310 (Ch), [2003] Lloyd's Rep PN 7. The scope of a solicitor's duty of care owed to his client depends on the instructions he receives and the particular circumstances of the case:

Pickersgill v Riley [2004] UKPC 14, [2004] Lloyd's Rep IR 795. See also Fairbrother v Gabb & Co [2002] EWCA Civ 803, [2002] All ER (D) 364 (May).

Where the solicitor is instructed to prepare a will and is aware of the urgency of the situation he is liable in negligence to the intended beneficiaries if he fails to ensure that the will is duly executed before the death of the testator: Smith v Claremont Haynes & Co (1991) Times, 3 September. See Carr-Glynn v Frearsons (a firm) [1999] Ch 326, [1998] 4 All ER 225, CA (where solicitor's breach of duty of care to a testator in preparing his will results in a loss to the estate, a duty of care is owed to beneficiary whose gift is rendered ineffective); and Humblestone v Martin Tolhurst Partnership (a firm) [2004] EWHC 151 (Ch), (2004) 6 ITEL 900 (solicitor's failure to check valid execution of will resulted in liability to intended beneficiary). The duty imposed by White v Jones also applies to lay will-writers: Esterhuizen v Allied Dunbar Assurance plc [1998] 2 FLR 668. Where solicitors have failed to include a specific devise in a will, the disappointed beneficiary must bring rectification proceedings and exhaust that remedy before suing for negligence: Walker v Geo H Medlicott & Son (a firm) [1999] 1 All ER 685, [1999] 1 WLR 727, CA, unless the rectification proceedings are unlikely to result in material recovery of funds: Horsfall v Haywards (a firm) [1999] 1 FLR 1182, CA. See also Westbury v Sampson [2001] EWCA Civ 407, [2001] 2 FCR 210, [2002] 1 FLR 166 (solicitor not liable when negligence not causative of any loss).

6 See Ross v Caunters [1980] Ch 297, [1979] 3 All ER 580, where it was held that solicitors who failed to notice that their client's will was attested by a beneficiary's husband owed a duty of care to that beneficiary because it was obvious that carelessness on their part would be likely to cause damage to her, and (applying M'Alister (Donoghue) v Stevenson [1932] AC 562, HL) since the loss was directly caused by the solicitors' breach of their duty of care this was not a case in which reliance by the plaintiff was essential to liability; however, reliance is essential where the solicitor negligently makes an untrue statement: if the loss to the claimant occurs without his having relied on that statement, plainly the solicitor has in no way caused the loss (see Ross v Caunters at 313 and 592). Cf Clarke v Bruce Lance & Co (a firm) [1988] 1 All ER 364, [1988] 1 WLR 881, CA where (distinguishing Ross v Caunters) it was held that a solicitor was not liable to a beneficiary when acting for a testator in a transaction which adversely affected the value of the beneficiary's interest. See also Balfron Trustees Ltd v Peterson [2001] IRLR 758.

7 Failure to receive an assured benefit is a loss: see Ross v Caunters [1980] Ch 297 at 321, [1979] 3 All ER 580 at 598, where a gift by will to a beneficiary failed owing to the negligence of the testator's solicitors. See also Hinc v Warren Rees & Co (a firm) [2002] EWCA Civ 764, [2002] 17 EG 157 (CS) (solicitor negligently failed to procure a good title on a conveyance but whilst the claimants were attempting to sell the property the breach did not result in any loss).

8 As to the measure of damages for breach of contract see Whiteman v Hawkins (1878) 4 CPD 13, where a mortgagee's solicitor who failed to check that the land was unincumbered was liable for the amount secured by the prior equitable mortgage which had to be paid off; Otter v Church, Adams, Tatham & Co [1953] Ch 280, [1953] 1 All ER 168, where personal representatives of a childless tenant in tail whose solicitors failed to advise disentailment recovered as damages the value at his death of the settled estates with income his estate would have received from the estates from his death, subject to an allowance for the chance that on being properly advised he might not have disentailed; Pilkington v Wood [1953] Ch 770, [1953] 2 All ER 810, where a purchaser refused to complete because of a defect in title, and the damages recovered by the vendor against the solicitors who acted for him when he bought the property were the difference at the time of the original purchase between the value of the property with a good title and its value with the defect. Where a solicitor is negligent in the conduct of an action (see Godefroy v Dalton (1830) 6 Bing 460 at 46-468 per Tindal CJ; Godefroy v Jay (1831) 7 Bing 413 at 419) or negligently fails to bring an action, the measure of damages is the amount that the claimant might have recovered in the action if the solicitor had exercised due diligence (Harrington v Binns (1863) 3 F & F 942 (failure to sign judgment and issue execution); Kitchen v RAF Assocn [1958] 2 All ER 241 at 250, [1958] 1 WLR 563 at 574-575, CA, per Lord Evershed (followed in Yardley v Coombes (1963) 107 Sol Jo 575); Buckley v National Union of General and Municipal Workers [1967] 3 All ER 767) (failure to bring action within the limitation period)). As to the recovery of damages for anxiety and mental distress caused by negligent conduct of an action see Cook v S [1967] 1 All ER 299, [1967] 1 WLR 457, CA, where in a divorce action such damage was held not reasonably foreseeable; Heywood v Wellers (a firm) [1976] QB 446, [1976] 1 All ER 300, CA, where mental distress was held to be a foreseeable consequence of solicitors' failure to enforce an injunction to restrain molestation. 821. Facts not constituting negligence.

A solicitor is not guilty of negligence if he has merely acted upon his client's instructions in the reasonable belief that they were correct¹, or if he has fully explained the position to his client and is nevertheless instructed to proceed², or merely because he has committed an error of judgment, whether on matters of discretion³ or of law⁴, for example on points of new occurrence or of doubtful construction⁵. Where the facts would otherwise establish a case of negligence, the solicitor may escape liability on the ground that he acted upon counsel's advice⁶. For this purpose he must show that the counsel whom he consulted was, in his judgment, a competent person⁷, that the facts of the case were fully laid before counsel⁸, and that he himself merely carried out what counsel had advised⁹. However, counsel's advice is no protection to the solicitor where, in the circumstances, the solicitor ought to have the knowledge himself¹⁰, or where the question is one of practical procedure¹¹, not involving any special difficulty¹².

SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iv) Solicitor's Obligations towards his Client/B. POSSESSION OF LEGAL SKILL AND KNOWLEDGE/822. Negligence in contentious matters.

822. Negligence in contentious matters.

The immunity from negligence in contentious matters when providing any legal services in relation to any proceedings in any court which would be provided by a barrister if one were briefed, which solicitors previously possessed, no longer exists¹. The immunity of barristers and solicitor advocates is no longer in the public interest in either civil or criminal proceedings².

Where counsel has been briefed, a solicitor has been held liable for negligence where:

- 1037 (1) before bringing the action, he failed to make proper investigation into the cause of action³, or, knowing that the client had done some act which would preclude him from recovering, neglected to point this out⁴;
- 1038 (2) he advised the client to enter into litigation even though success was improbable and though counsel's advice was against the action being brought⁵;
- 1039 (3) he proceeded under a wrong statute or section of a statute⁶;
- 1040 (4) he failed to issue or renew a writ in time to prevent the application of what is now the Limitation Act 1980⁷;
- 1041 (5) he brought an action in the wrong court, for example where he sued in the High Court although, owing to the amount claimed, the action ought to have been brought in a county court⁸, or where he sued in an inferior court, although he knew that the cause of action arose outside its jurisdiction⁹;
- 1042 (6) there was inexcusable delay in the prosecution of the claim¹⁰;
- 1043 (7) he failed to inform the trustee of a bankrupt that if he brought an action without the consent of the creditors he would be liable to pay costs out of his own pocket¹¹;
- 1044 (8) he failed to prepare the case properly for trial¹²;
- 1045 (9) on the trial of an action, he neglected without reasonable excuse to instruct counsel to appear on his client's behalf¹³, or abandoned the defence of the action without informing his client¹⁴;
- 1046 (10) he failed to see that a material witness whom his client had undertaken to call was in court when wanted, with the result that his client lost his action¹⁵;
- 1047 (11) there being a good defence to an action, he allowed judgment to go by default¹⁶;
- 1048 (12) in a proper case he failed to issue execution¹⁷;
- 1049 (13) he did not communicate an offer of compromise to his client¹⁸;
- 1050 (14) he advised a hopeless appeal which could not benefit the client¹⁹;
- 1051 (15) he neglected to register a pending action²⁰.

The solicitor's duty to protect the interests of his client may require the instruction of different counsel if it appears that the client's interests are not being protected as the result of counsel's incompetence²¹.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iv) Solicitor's Obligations towards his Client/B. POSSESSION OF LEGAL SKILL AND KNOWLEDGE/823. Negligence in non-contentious matters.

823. Negligence in non-contentious matters.

It is a solicitor's duty to carry out non-contentious matters according to the regular method prescribed by statute, rule or custom¹. Thus, he is not to be deemed to be guilty of neglect or breach of duty by reason of his omission in good faith to negative the giving, inclusion, implication or application of any of the powers, covenants, provisions, stipulations and words which under the Law of Property Act 1925 are deemed to be included or implied in any instrument or are made applicable by that Act to any contract for sale or other transaction, or to insert or apply any others in their place².

A solicitor will, however, be guilty of negligence where:

- 1052 (1) he fails to explain adequately to the client any document which is to be executed by the client, such as a deed or will³, a bill of sale⁴, a lease or a mortgage executed by the client as guarantor⁵, and where he fails to warn a testator about the requisite formalities of attesting a will and on the return of the will fails to check that it has been properly attested⁶;
- 1053 (2) in acting for the settlor under a voluntary settlement, he fails to see that all usual clauses, such as an ultimate power of appointment in the settlor's favour after the specific trusts have been worked out, are inserted⁷, and to point out to his client the statutory provisions relating to voluntary conveyances⁸, or to preserve strict evidence of the settlor's ability to pay his then existing debts without the aid of the settled property⁹;
- 1054 (3) in acting for a mortgagee, he fails to require production of the deeds relating to the property, and his client in order to sell under his mortgage has to pay off a prior equitable mortgagee¹⁰, or where, having reason to be doubtful of the solvency of the mortgagor, he fails to make the usual and proper searches in bankruptcy¹¹, or where he fails to give the proper notices to secure priority for a charge taken on his client's behalf¹², or where he advises an investment without seeing that the security is adequate in amount as well as sufficient and proper in point of form¹³; or he fails to inform them that there is a second mortgage on the property¹⁴;
- 1055 (4) in acting for a vendor, he allows an unusual covenant to be inserted in the conveyance, and neglects to explain its effect¹⁵;
- 1056 (5) in acting for a purchaser, he fails to ensure that his client is aware of the existence of an incumbrance¹⁶;
- 1057 (6) in acting for a purchaser of leasehold property, he fails to investigate the vendor's title¹⁷, or to require production of the head lease¹⁸, or the last receipt for ground rent¹⁹;
- 1058 (7) in acting for a purchaser of a property, he fails to inform the purchaser that the local authority has not approved plans for the erection of his proposed house but relies upon the promise of the vendor (also his client) to obtain the necessary approval²⁰, or where the property consists of vacant land and he fails to search the commons register²¹, or where, if the property is subject to a tenancy, he fails to make sufficient inquiries as to the recoverable rent and rent limit²², or where he fails to register an option to purchase²³;

- 1059 (8) in drawing up an agreement on behalf of his client, he fails to insert a necessary stipulation²⁴, or, if a seal is essential to its validity, neglects to make it under seal²⁵;
- 1060 (9) in acting for a company he fails to advise the company's board of the statutory requirement to obtain the approval of members for a property transaction involving company's directors²⁶.

A solicitor is also liable to his client if he loses or mislays his deeds²⁷, or if he fails to communicate to his client facts which involve a particular course of action contemplated by the client being attended by risk²⁸, or if he fails to ensure that a life policy, forming part of the security for a mortgage, is in force by the date of completion²⁹.

He is not, however, under any obligation to draw his client's attention to the fact that the contract that is to be carried through cannot be enforced against the client³⁰, nor is the solicitor liable for honestly understating the amount of a rentcharge charged on land where he did not know that a greater amount was in fact charged³¹, nor, in the absence of special instructions, for failing to remind the client of the date for exercising an option to determine a lease, but does owe a duty to inform him of the time limit for lodging an appeal against the determination of rent at a rent review³². A solicitor acting for a vendor in a normal conveyancing transaction does not, however, owe a duty to a prospective purchaser when answering inquiries before contract³³.

A solicitor who is acting for both mortgagor and mortgagee is under no duty to go beyond the scope of instructions by proffering unsought advice on the wisdom of the transaction where a client is in full command of his faculties and aware of what he is doing³⁴.

A general duty of care exists in relation to the giving of references³⁵.

1 See eg Simmons v Pennington & Son [1955] 1 All ER 240, [1955] 1 WLR 183, CA, where a vendor's solicitor so answered a requisition that the purchaser was enabled to repudiate, and he subsequently advised the vendor not to resell the property during the pendency of proceedings by the purchaser. The property was destroyed by fire, and it was held in an action for negligence by the vendor against the solicitor that the solicitor was not negligent in answering the requisition as the reply was given in accordance with general conveyancing practice and the consequences could not reasonably have been foreseen, and, even if the advice against resale was negligent, damage by fire was too remote. C. LIABILITY FOR ACTS OF AGENTS OTHER THAN PARTNERS

824. Delegation of authority.

A solicitor undertaking any kind of business on behalf of a client is bound to give to it that amount of personal attention which it reasonably requires. If, therefore, he hands it over to an agent to carry it through for him, he is responsible for the agent's acts and defaults¹. Thus, he is liable for any want of care, knowledge or honesty in his clerk² or his London agent³, and he can be made liable under the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over its officers for the misconduct of his clerk within the scope of his authority⁴. He is not, however, responsible for agents employed by him on the client's behalf to do other than legal work, such as a stockbroker, accountant or surveyor, unless knowledge of the agent's incompetence can be proved against him⁵. It is also his duty to give proper instructions to any agent whom he may employ to conduct the client's business. If the solicitor instructs counsel, he is bound to prepare or to give counsel verbally adequate instructions to enable him properly to lay the case before the court⁶, but here his liability under this head ceases. Thus, if he has properly instructed counsel who fails to attend, he is not responsible for counsel's default⁷. However where a solicitor instructs an overseas solicitor to act on his behalf in connection with the purchase of a property he is responsible for checking the searches have been carried out before handing over the purchase money⁸.

A solicitor is responsible for money paid to and misappropriated by a clerk only if the client shows that the clerk either had authority to receive the money, or was held out as having such authority in such manner that the client reasonably believed in his authority and that the client relied on that belief⁹. Therefore, in the case of fraud by a clerk, the solicitor will be responsible if the matter was one which it would have been within the clerk's authority to carry through in an honest manner¹⁰.

1 See AGENCY vol 1 (2008) PARA 48 et seq. A receipt or certificate given on behalf of a firm of solicitors by a clerk authorised to do so should be signed by him personally for the firm: see Practice Direction [1953] 2 All ER 1234, [1953] 1 WLR 1395.

824 Delegation of authority

NOTE 4--Appointed day is 1 October 2009: SI 2009/1604.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(6) SOLICITOR AND CLIENT/(iv) Solicitor's Obligations towards his Client/D. LIABILITY FOR ACTS OF PARTNERS/825. Authority of partners.

D. LIABILITY FOR ACTS OF PARTNERS

825. Authority of partners.

Each partner in a firm of solicitors acting within the scope of his apparent authority as a partner binds his co-partners unless the partner so acting has in fact no authority to act for the firm in the particular matter, and the person with whom he is dealing either knows that he has no authority or does not know or believe him to be a partner¹. Thus, prima facie, each partner binds the firm when in the ordinary course of business he gives an undertaking², or is guilty of negligence³, fraud⁴ or misconduct⁵. Where, however, one partner pledges the credit of the firm for a purpose apparently not connected with its business as a firm of solicitors, the firm is not bound unless that partner was specially authorised by the others to do so⁶. Thus, in the absence of special authority to the partner so purporting to contract, the firm is not liable upon his promissory note⁷, bill of exchange⁸ or post-dated cheque⁹, or upon an undertaking to pay a debt and costs on behalf of a client¹⁰; nor is the firm liable for the fraud of a partner acting in his private capacity, such as mortgagor¹¹, administrator¹² or trustee¹³, nor for the misconduct of a partner in allowing a stranger to make use of the firm name¹⁴. It is not within the scope of a solicitor's business to constitute himself a constructive trustee and, therefore, his doing so does not bind and make liable as a constructive trustee a partner who is not aware of the dealings establishing the constructive trusteeship¹⁵.

Similarly, where a partner receives money or securities from or on behalf of a client, and misappropriates them, the firm is liable, provided they came to the hands of the partner in the ordinary course of business¹⁶. Solicitors are not, however, as such, scriveners¹⁷. If, therefore, without the knowledge of his co-partners, a partner receives money or securities for safe custody or on deposit until an investment can be found, the firm is not liable¹⁸. To render the firm liable, it must be shown that the receipt of the money or securities was authorised¹⁹ or ratified²⁰ by his co-partners, or that they consented to his having a general authority to act without their knowing what he did²¹. On the other hand, the firm is liable when the money is received for the purpose of being invested in a specific security²² and for negligence in advising trustees upon the question whether a particular security was in law a proper trust investment²³.

In special circumstances incoming partners were held not liable even though they knew of the breach of trust: Twyford v Trail (1834) 7 Sim 92. (7) PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT, PRACTICE AND REDRESS

(i) In general

826. Introduction.

The professional conduct of solicitors is now mainly governed by the Solicitors Act 1974, the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 and rules made under the Solicitors Act 1974¹. However non-statutory misconduct is still relevant in considering the conduct of solicitors prior to 1 July 2007².

In relation to European cross-border practice³ the Council of the Bars and Law Societies of Europe Code of Conduct applies⁴.

1 See PARA 828 et seq.

2 The date at which the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 came into force: see PARA 830 note 1. The court is entitled to assume that counsel and solicitors have not acted unprofessionally or in breach of the rules of professional conduct unless there is a sound evidential basis for reaching the contrary conclusion: R v Greaves [2008] EWCA Crim 647, (2008) Times, 28 April, [2008] All ER (D) 389 (Apr).

826-829 In general

Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 rr 15, 16, 22, 23, 25 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(7) PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT, PRACTICE AND REDRESS/(i) In general/827. European cross-border practice.

827. European cross-border practice.

In relation to European cross-border practice¹ the Council of the Bars and Law Societies of Europe Code of Conduct applies². Much of that Code is duplicated in the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007, which additionally makes provision for specific aspects of the European Code not otherwise covered³, in relation to:

- 1061 (1) occupations considered incompatible with legal practice⁴;
- 1062 (2) fee sharing with non-lawyers⁵;
- 1063 (3) co-operation between lawyers of different CCBE states⁶;
- 1064 (4) correspondence between lawyers in different CCBE states⁷;
- 1065 (5) paying referral fees to non-lawyers⁸; and
- 1066 (6) disputes between lawyers in different members states⁹.

1 'European cross-border practice' means:

148 (1) any professional activity in a CCBE state other than the UK, whether or not physically present in that CCBE state (Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 16.01(1)(a)(i)); and 149 (2) any professional contact with a lawyer of a CCBE state other than the UK (r 16.01(1)(a)(ii)).

However for the purposes of r 16.01 professional contacts and professional activities taking place within a firm or in-house legal department are not European cross-border practice: r 16.01(1)(b). 'CCBE state' means any state whose legal profession is a full member, an associate member or an observer member of the Council of the Bars and Law Societies of Europe Code of Conduct: Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 24.01.

2 See the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 16. This rule applies:

151 (2) in relation to a registered European lawyer, to his European cross-border practice from an office within the UK (see r 16.01(2)(b));

152 (3) in relation to a registered foreign lawyer who is a partner in a multi-national partnership, a director of a recognised body which is a company, or a member of a recognised body which is a limited liability partnership within the meaning of the Limited Liability Partnerships Act 2000, to the European cross-border practice from an office in England or Wales (see the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 rr 16.01(2)(c), 24.01);

153 (4) to a recognised body incorporated in England and Wales in relation to its European cross-border practice from an office in, or outside, England and Wales (see r 16.01(2)(d)); and 154 (5) to a recognised body incorporated outside England and Wales in relation to its European cross-border practice from an office outside England and Wales (see r 16.01(2)(e)).

3 See the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 r 16, which also applies to an overseas practice to the extent that such practice is a European cross-border practice: see r 15.16.

UPDATE

826-829 In general

Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 rr 15, 16, 22, 23, 25 amended on 31 March 2009.

Halsbury's Laws of England/LEGAL PROFESSIONS (VOLUME 65 (2008) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 301-762; VOLUME 66 (2009) 5TH EDITION, PARAS 763-1558)/3. SOLICITORS/(7) PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT, PRACTICE AND REDRESS/(i) In general/828. Power to make Code of Conduct and rules.

828. Power to make Code of Conduct and rules.

The Solicitors Regulation Authority¹ may make rules² for regulating in respect of any matter the professional practice, conduct and discipline of solicitors and for empowering the Authority to take such action as may be appropriate to enable the Authority to ascertain whether or not the provisions of rules made, or of any code or guidance issued, by the Authority are being complied with³. If any solicitor fails to comply with such rules, any person may make a complaint of that failure to the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal⁴.

As from a day to be appointed rules made by the Authority may:

- 1067 (1) make provision generally or subject to exceptions or only in relation to specified cases⁵;
- 1068 (2) make different provision for different cases or circumstances or for different purposes⁶.

1 The Solicitors Act 1974 s 31(1), (1A) refer to the 'Society' (ie the Law Society elected in accordance with provisions of the Charter and the Solicitors Act 1974 (see s 87(1); and PARA 602 note 4)): see s 31(1), (1A) (s 31(1) amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 31(1), (2)(a), (d)). However in practice the body currently responsible for the regulation of solicitors and the making of such rules is the Solicitors Regulation Authority (see PARA 619).

2 Until a day to be appointed such rules must be made with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 31(1) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 31(1), (2)(b), Sch 23). However, where under the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 4 (approval of certain rules in connection with the grant of rights of audience or rights to conduct litigation) (see PARA 329 et seq) the Secretary of State approves any rule (whether or not the rule required to be approved under Sch 4) such as is mentioned in the Solicitors Act 1974 s 31(1), the requirement of the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls does not apply: see the Solicitors Act 1974 s 31(3), (4) (both added by the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990 Sch 17 para 10 and prospectively repealed by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 31(1), (4), Sch 23). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

As from a day to be appointed the powers conferred by the Solicitors Act 1974 s 31(1) include power to make, in relation to solicitors, provision of a kind which the Authority would be prohibited from making but for the Legal Services Act 2007 s 157(5)(c) (not yet in force) (see PARA 386): Solicitors Act 1974 s 31(1A) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 31(1), (3)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed.

3 Solicitors Act 1974 s 31(1) (amended by the Access to Justice Act 1999 Sch 7 para 1). As from a day to be appointed the Solicitors Act 1974 s 31(1) is amended to enable rules to be made regarding fitness to practise and to empower the Authority to take such action as may be appropriate to enable them to ascertain whether or not the provisions of rules made, or of any code or guidance issued by them are being, or have been, complied with: s 31(1) (prospectively amended by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 31(1), (2)(c), (e)). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. The Authority has a power to waive in writing the Solicitors' Code of Conduct 2007 but not in relation to r 1 (see PARA 831), rr 3.01-3.05 (see PARAS 802, 818), r 4 (see PARA 740), r 6 (see PARA 833), r 15.01 (see PARA 830), r 15.03 (see PARAS 802, 818), r 15.04 (see PARAS 740, 799), r 15.18, rr 15.22-15.24, r 18, rr 22-24: see r 22.01. Rule 22 also applies to an overseas practice: see r 15.22.

4 Solicitors Act 1974 s 31(2). As to the Solicitors Disciplinary Tribunal see PARA 629 et seq.

5 Solicitors Act 1974 s 86A(1) (prospectively added by the Legal Services Act 2007 Sch 16 paras 1, 74). At the date at which this volume states the law no such day had been appointed. Without prejudice to the generality of the Solicitors Act 1974 s 86A(1), any rules prescribing a fee may provide for that fee to be reduced or waived in such circumstances as may be specified in the rules: s 86A(2) (as so prospectively added).
